FIVE DROWN WHEN RESCUE BOAT IN FLOOD IS UPSET

Two Doctors, a Woman and Her Two Children Die in Marais des Cygnes Near Ottawa, Kan.

MEN IN SKIFF WERE SAVING REFUGEES

Roads in Many Parts of Missouri Submerged, Trains Detoured, Families Driven From Homes.

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Kan., Nov. 17.—Five persons were drowned in the flood waters of the Marais des Cygnes River here this afternoon. A motor boat, in which two doctors, Dr. Ralph Shiras and Dr. J. Ward Smith, were doing rescue work, capsized throwing the two men, Mrs. G. C. Jones and her two small daughters into the flood.

The doctors had made four trips during the day rescuing refugees from farms near the river and were on their fifth trip when a wave upset the boat about a quarter of a mile from shore. Many persons witnessed the drowning.

Only the body of Dr. Shiras has been recovered.

The flood at Ottawa was still rising tonight after inundating part of the business district and nearly all the industrial section of the city, including the city power plant, leaving the city without light and shutting off the drinking water supply. Communication with the outside world was difficult with railroads and highways cut off and telephone and telegraph lines down in many places.

National guardsmen were called out to patrol the streets and assist in rescue work.

As the waters approached the community hospital, patients were removed to private homes.

Churches are cooking meals for the refugees and private houses have been opened to those whose homes were under water.

Rains Cause Floods in Northern and Western Missouri.

Large areas of northern and western Missouri are suffering from floods caused by heavy rains that began on Thursday and in some sections were still pouring down yesterday.

Several of the important Missouri highways and many of the lesser ones and county roads were flooded, interrupting bus and other motor traffic. Several railroads had to detour or annul their trains because of floods or washouts, and schedules in some instances were upset by the necessity of running trains slowly.

Fall crops and unharvested corn suffered to a considerable extent in some parts of the area affected and families had been driven from their homes in some places.

The Grand River is in a serious flood, and many lesser streams, like the Blackwater and Chariton, are raging torrents. Many creeks, also, have spread far across their bottoms. The Osage River is approaching a serious flood stage. Bankful stages are forecast for the Missouri, Black and St. Francis Rivers. The Mississippi is rising rapidly but will not flood. The only reports of threatened trouble from the rain in the southern part of Missouri came from the lowlands surrounding the latter two rivers.

State Road Submerged Six Feet.

Reports were not compiled yesterday of all the less important State highways affected by the high water, one reason being that many of them had not been blocked as yet, but were expected to be as the floods rose.

U. S. highway No. 40, the St. Louis-Kansas City route, is flooded at Sweet Springs and Grain Valley, east of Kansas City, and water was within six inches of its pavement across the Missouri River from Boonville yesterday morning. Construction work on a new bridge on another State route nearby was washed out.

U. S. No. 50, another road between St. Louis and Kansas City, was flooded near Warrensburg and near Lee's Summit. The weather was clearing near Kansas City yesterday and it was thought that routes No. 40 and No. 50 might be open today.

Water was flowing over State Highway No. 15 for a depth of about six feet and width of a quarter mile, at the Black Creek bridge, a mile south of Shelbyville, and the flood was rising.

U. S. No. 71 is flooded by a creek near Harrisonville and by a branch of the Osage at Rich Hill. U. S. No. 36 is under water of the Four Students, Missing Week in Snow, Rescued

Youths and Girls From California U., Without Food or Shelter, Call Help by Telephone.

By the Associated Press.

LAKEPORT, Cal., Nov. 17.—How four University of California students wandered with bare feet and in tattered clothing through the snowy wastes of California's Lake County mountains for nearly a week was told this afternoon by John Dempster, one of the four students missing since a week ago yesterday.

Dempster, with Miss Anna Ramsperger and her twin sister, Minna, both of Logan, Utah, and Robert H. Keller of Los Angeles, this afternoon were taken to the ranch of Willis Durham, a ranger, where they were put to bed and fell immediately into a sound sleep. They had been without shelter since they disappeared and became the object of one of the most intense searches in the history of Northern California.

Group Found Near Telephone.

Weakened by exposure, the four young students collapsed when they reached the Durham ranch. They were taken there by a party which made a forced ride over 35 miles of snow-covered trail to a ranger's lonely kiosk which housed the telephone, the four used in making known their plight. The kiosk, only a box, furnished no shelter. Previous reports said the four had found shelter in a cabin. The four were huddled near the telephone box when a party led by Claude Simon reached them early today with food and blankets.

Dempster described their feelings when they saw searching airplanes disappear after flying over them.

"We reached the summit of Hull Mountain last Saturday, early." Dempster said. "At the top we encountered a blizzard, but kept on. It got so severe it drove us back. We started down the mountain that night and got into the Eel River Canyon. It was wild and dark. We lost our way. By morning we had lost all sense of direction.

Food for Only Two Days.

"We had rations for only two days and we saved them, but by Monday we were entirely out of food. From then on the trip was a nightmare. The thick shrubbery tore our clothes almost off us.

"Our shoes wore out on the rocks, and we had to go barefoot in the snow.

"By Thursday we were hopelessly confused and our walking only seemed to make things worse. Besides, the pangs of hunger were making us light-headed. Thursday and Friday we saw the airplanes flying overhead. We thought they might be looking for us, but we had no way of signaling to them.

"We were down in the thickets. Everything was wet. We had no matches and no way of building a signal fire. We almost cried when we saw the planes go out of sight where we could not see them again.

Through Snow and Rain.

"There was snow and there was rain. Finally we floundered up the side of a mountain, a new one we had not reached before. That was last night.

"I saw a telephone wire and thought we could get aid. We walked and walked. I don't remember what happened until the men came this morning."

Federal and State Governments had united in the search at the request of Gov. C. C. Young.

MAN, WOMAN AND CHILD HURT WHEN STRUCK BY AUTOS

Edward Lorts Suffers Fractured Skull and Legs; Mrs. Mary Hayes Has Broken Bones.

Edward Lorts, 49 years old, a laborer, of 1215 Grattan street, suffered fractures ofthe skull and both legs at 8 o'clock last night when he was knocked down at Twenty-second street and Chouteau avenue by an automobile driven by Esca Henry, 21, a draftsman, of 425 Fassen street.

Mrs. Mary Hayes, 68 years old of 1200 Monroe street suffered a fractured thigh and several fractured ribs, when she was struck by an automobile driven by Louis Schwefferman, 2503 Sullivan avenue, as she was crossing Clinton avenue at Thirteenth street early last night.

She was taken to City Hospital, where her condition was said to be critical.

Playing in the street with his toy wagon, John Mills, 12 years old, of 620 Sidney street, suffered a skull injury and serious lacerations last night when he was run down by an automobile in the 2800 block of South Broadway. He was taken to city hospital.

F. Siedman, 24 years old, a chauffeur, drove the machine that struck the boy. He was arrested.

TOTAL STATE VOTE 1,509,748; SETS NEW ELECTION RECORD

Hoover's Majority Is 170,249, According to Virtually Complete Missouri Returns.

All voting records were broken at the recent election in Missouri, when 1,509,748 ballots were cast for Governor with returns from all counties complete except for absentee votes in some. This is approximately 200,000 greater than in 1920 and 1924.

The total vote for United States Senator, in the returns tabulated, was 1,506,091, and for President, 1,498,589.

The plurality of Herbert Hoover over Gov. Alfred E. Smith was 170,249, with 834,419 votes for Hoover and 664,170 for Smith.

The plurality of Roscoe Patterson, Republican candidate for United States Senator, was 63,195 over Charles Hay, Democratic candidate. The vote: Patterson, 784,643; Hay, 721,448.

The plurality of Henry S. Caulfield, Republican candidate for Governor, was 52,252 over Francis Wilson, Democratic candidate. The vote: Caulfield, 781,000; Wilson, 728,748.

FORD'S PLANTATION HANDS GET 36 CENTS A DAY

Brazilians Who Expected High Pay from Auto Magnate Disillusioned.

BELEM, Brazil, Nov. 17.—Brazilians who had expected to get rich quick on the Henry Ford rubber plantations in the Trapajos River region are reported in newspapers here to have become disillusioned. They had flocked there expecting high pay, but found the wages only 3 milreis a day (36 cents), without shelter and with alleged inadequate rations.

MILLICH'S CHARGES LED TO TRUE BILL AGAINST BOSWELL

Murderer's Statement on Gallows First Connected State's Attorney With the Birger Gang.

LINKED PROSECUTOR IN BOOTLEG TRUST

Mayor of Herrin, His Brother, Chief of Police and Water Superintendent Also Indicted.

A statement made by Rado Millich, Montenegrin "knife man," before he was hanged more than a year ago at Marion, Ill., for the murder of a fellow member of the Birger gang, was primarily responsible for the investigation which resulted Friday in the indictment, on a liquor conspiracy charge, of State's Attorney Arlie O. Boswell of Williamson County.

Millich, who was prosecuted by Boswell, denounced the State's Attorney in a prepared statement which he read from the scaffold, as being linked with Birger gang operations. Prior to the execution he made a statement to Sheriff Oren Coleman of Williamson County, who has been at loggerheads with Boswell for two years. Sheriff Coleman was one of the principal witnesses before the Federal grand jury in East St. Louis last week.

Art Newman Witness Also.

Another witness was Art Newman, gambler, gunman, convicted murderer and erstwhile lieutenant of the late Charlie Birger. Newman, now serving a life term in Chester penitentiary for the murder of Mayor Joe Adams of West City—a crime for which Birger was executed—is scheduled to go to trial at Marion on Nov. 26 for the murders of State Highway Patrolman Lory L. Price and his wife. Boswell is to be the prosecutor, provided Newman and his co-defendants, Freddie Wooten and Riley Simmons, do not get continuances. If they do Boswell will not prosecute them, since he goes out of office on Dec. 3, having failed of renomination.

More than 20 witnesses testified in East St. Louis about liquor conditions in Williamson County and in the indictment with Boswell the jury named another county official, a former municipal police chief of Williamson County, and six alleged bootleggers.

It is understood the Government will attempt to prove, if the case is called for trial, that exclusive rights to the bootlegging business in Williamson County were given to Birger, and that whatever acts of violence he and his men committed to hold their position, were overlooked by certain Williamson County officials.

Boswell, who anticipated the indictment by announcing he expected to be named by the grand jury, lays the charge to the work of political enemies, of whom unquestionably he has many in Williamson County. During the klan disorders there Boswell was one of the leaders of the hooded order and the enmities made in those days have cooled but little.

Others Under Indictment.

A second indictment was returned Friday night charging the existence of a liquor protection conspiracy in Herrin and naming as defendants Mayor Marshall McCormack; his brother, Elmer, a Herrin policeman; Chief of Police John Stamm, and Water Superintendent Alving Misker.

A former Herrin policeman who admitted having collected from saloonkeepers for protection, was the principal witness against those named in the Herrin indictment. Altogether 15 witnesses testified about conditions in the city, the largest in Williamson County, which was the scene of several bloody fights during the days when the klan was in power.

It is understood the grand jury was told the Herrin defendants were part of a system which systematically extorted money from saloonkeepers for unmolested operation and that when the police department became embroiled in a row over the money, the collection job was turned over to the Water Superintendent.

In a statement yesterday Mayor McCormack charged the indictment was the result of a political plot.

Earlier last week the grand jury returned two indictments naming 72 persons in Alexander County as alleged members of a liquor conspiracy. Among the defendants is Sheriff Roche of Cairo, nine of his deputies and an assortment of individuals designated by prohibition agents as still tenders, barkeepers and whisky runners.

CHILDREN SAVED FROM HYDROPHOBIA BY MARINE FLYERS

Serum Dropped When Rain Prevents Land Trip With Victims in Nicaragua.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—How a Navy doctor and marine aviator saved two children bitten by a mad dog in Matagalpa, Nicaragua, is told in a letter from the Rev. A. S. Schoenich of that place, to Brigadier-General Logan Feland, Commander of the Second Brigade of Marines, which was made public today by the Navy Department.

The pastor wrote that, when the children were bitten, Nicaragua doctors informed him cure was impossible unless they were taken to Managua. Conditions of roads and rivers due to rains prevented this trip. As a last resort, the pastor said he told Navy Lieutenant D. T. Hunter, stationed at Matagalpa, of the situation.

"Early the next morning the sound of motors told of the approach of an airplane," the pastor's letter continued, "which, in a few minutes, had circled the town and dropped a tiny package." This proved to be anti-hydrophobia serum, which Dr. Hunter immediately injected. The letter concluded: "Thanks to Lieut. Hunter and the United States Marines in Nicaragua, what was impossible was made possible."

TIP DRIES UP DOWNTOWN BARS FOR A DAY AT LEAST

Rumor That 100 Federal Agents Have Come to St. Louis Makes Bootleggers Wary.

St. Louis probably was the dryest large city in the United States yesterday.

"Gimme a shot" or "put a little soda in mine," addressed to the attendant in any of the local saloons, especially downtown, yesterday brought forth the reply: "Not today, brother, we're cleaned up. We gotta tip there's a hundred new agents in town today."

Not all of the bartenders had the same information as to the number of new agents in town, the figure varying from 50 to 700, but all had the same tip about their presence.

"Yes, it's a hot tip," said James Dillon who directs the raiding forces of the Federal prohibition unit in St. Louis. "A passenger agent of a railroad was in to see me this morning and said he had heard about the large number of men in here for the week-end and wanted to get the business for his road if they were going to move on from here to Kansas City. Enterprise, I call it."

With many of the saloons serving nothing but soft drinks, Dillon at noon yesterday decided to give his overworked squad of 10 men a rest and declared a half holiday.

WOMAN PROPOSED, SAYS MAN IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

Wealthy Chicagoan, 61, Declares She Wanted More Than the $100,000 He Offered Her.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Franklin S. Hardinge, 61 years old, wealthy oil heater manufacturer, today filed answer to Miss Anne Livingstone's $250,000 breach of promise suit, charging that she made the proposal of marriage to him.

They were to have been married last winter, but the wedding was called off when Miss Livingstone refused to sign a pre-nuptial agreement relinquishing all claims to Hardinge's estate, except $100,000. She then sued for breach of promise.

He recently married a woman whose name he refused to divulge.

Hardinge's reply said that he met Miss Livingstone on a train coming from Tulsa, Ok., and that she proposed to him. At that time, he said, she agreed to sign the pre-nuptial pact but in addition demanded a large block of Hardinge Brothers' stock as well as a responsible position in the firm. He said he spent $10,000 for gifts to her, after which she said she loved a married man living in St. Louis and denounced Hardinge in the presence of her relatives.

LINDBERGH TO HUNT DUCKS AND FISH NEAR TAMPICO

To Spend Week-End at Home of Ambassador Morrow Before Flight to Tantoyuquita.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh motored to Cuernavaca today to spend the week-end at the home of Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow. Morrow remained here to leave tomorrow with President Calles and President-elect Portes-Gil to inaugurate a school of agriculture at Teneria.

Lindberg will return from Cuernavaca Monday and probably will hop off Tuesday for the village of Tantoyuquita, near Tampico, where he will spend a day or two duck hunting and fishing. He then will proceed to Tampico, where he will be the guest of H. V. Thompkins, manager of the Mexican Gulf Oil Co. After his visit at Tampico he will fly to Brownsville, Tex.

MUTINY OF NEGRO FIREMEN BLAMED BY ENGINEERS FOR FAILURE TO SAVE VESTRIS

STORM KILLS 22, 12 MISSING, OVER WESTERN EUROPE

19 Dead in England and Three on Continent — Gale Turns and Whips Shores of North Sea.

THREE VESSELS SEND OUT S O S SIGNALS

Two Tugs Tow Swedish Steamer Into Boulogne When Cargo Shifts—Heavy Damage Inland.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—The terrific gale which has swept Western Europe for two days was raging over the Continent tonight with a known death toll of 39 and with 12 other persons missing in its broad path of destruction. England was enjoying a lull in the windstorm, but the North Sea countries still were bearing its full force.

Of the three deaths reported on the Continent, one occurred in Antwerp, one in Coblenz and one at Bethune, France. A family of 12, the master of a Dutch sailboat, his wife and 10 children, was given up as lost at Amsterdam when a report was received that the wreck of their boat had been seen off the island of Terschelling, in the Zuyder Zee.

Nineteen persons were killed in England, either by wreckage torn loose by the wind or by stumbling in front of vehicles while bucking the storm with heads down. In addition, 17 men drowned at Rye Thursday when a lifeboat capsized. Telephones, telegraph and train services were demoralized. Channel steamers last night required from eight to 13 hours for a voyage normally made in less than two, with resulting suffering for the passengers.

Woman Killed at Coblenz.

Germany felt the violence of the storm today. The Rhineland was visited by a fierce wind and torrential rain, which caused many injuries. A woman was killed and seven persons injured in the collapse of a house at Coblenz. A tug from Hamburg brought in the English steamer Linaria, which had lost its propeller in the rough seas. Many other vessels reported their distress to that port.

The gale ravaged the coast of Denmark and a number of small craft were reported sunk. Ferry service to Germany was suspended. Lloyd's reported both Amsterdam and Rotterdam were battered by the gale, with resulting collisions between steamers in both ports.

Three calls from ships in distress and one from an unidentified airplane were heard at Boulogne, and two more were picked up at Quimper.

The French Weather Bureau tonight forecast an end of the storm, which blew only intermittently in the afternoon. The disturbance seemed to be headed in the direction of Scandinavia.

The gale was one of the worst recorded in 12 years. It paralyzed small shipping and seriously menaced many large craft. The steamers Arelanza, for Buenos Aires, the Columbus, for New York, and the Alaunia, for Canadian ports, arrived in Cherbourg Roads 12 hours late as the result of the tempest on the English Channel. The Columbus lost one of its anchors.

The big Swedish cargo steamer Scandsuvia sent out a call for help when the cargo shifted under the violence of sea and wind. Two tugs towed the vessel into Boulogne listing many degrees to port. The Greek cargo carrier Amazon and the English ship Aquila of Liverpool sent out S O S calls while off the coast of Brittany.

The principal violence of the storm on the continent was felt in the Britanny section. From La Rochelle to Brest there was a succession of veritable cloudbursts of rain and hail, alternated with furious gusts of wind. On the channel coast conditions were the same from Cherbourg to Boulogne.

Inland the material damage was considerable. The Coast Departments from Havre to Boulogne were deprived of wire communication, and telegraph and telephone wires also were down throughout Normandy.

DOWN TO 5C, $51,000 EMBEZZLER IS CAUGHT

Garfield, N. J., Bank Teller Walks Into Arms of Detectives Who had Seen Poster

With his last 5-cent piece in his pocket and his room rent unpaid, Frank Canning, 35-year-old bank teller, charged with embezzling $51,000 from the First National Bank of Garfield, N. J., walked into the arms of a detective at Delmar boulevard and Hamilton avenue at noon yesterday. He is ready to go back and take his punishment.

A pair of thick-lensed spectacles and a partly-concealed blind eye betrayed him. A $500 reward circular with his photograph and description was posted last week in the assembly room at Page boulevard Police Station where it caught the eye of City Detective Arthur Egenriether. The detective recalled that he had seen such a man a few days before at Delmar and Hamilton.

For several days Egenriether cruised that nighborhood with two other detectives hoping to see the man again. Yesterday Canning stepped from a drug store and lighted a cigarette as the police car drew up. Egenriether jumped out.

"Canning?" he inquired and the man replied, "No, the name's Frank Fearon." He laughed lightly, explaining that he was a gambler "in a big way" and a bookmaker.

He led the detectives to his furnished room at 5896A Delmar boulevard and casually exhibited his personal belongings. There was nothing to indicate his name was either Canning or Fearon. Almost doubting that they were right, the detectives took him to Page boulevard Station.

Egenriether looked at the circular again and decided the resemblance was too striking to admit of error. He passed it to his prisoner who stared at it for a moment and grinned. "I don't remember ever having that one taken," he remarked. "And I didn't get anywhere near $51,000."

"How much was it?"

"Oh, I don't remember. It ran over four years and I never kept books on it. I took a pocketful, several thousand dollars, when I left for my vacation Sept. 11, but I never counted it."

"What did you do with the money?"

"Fast women, slow horses, railroad tickets and hotel bills."

"Why did you steal?"

"I was playing the horses and they weren't running fair. I decided I wouldn't run fair either."

"How did you take the money without being caught?"

"That's my secret."

Canning gave his answers in a jaunty manner. He explained that he was unmarried and declared that "it didn't matter now what happened." Asked by a reporter if he was sorry, he smiled, brushed a thread from his neatly-pressed brown suit and replied, "My conscience hurt me in Garfield. That's why I left. Nothing bothers me now."

KEPT AT WORK FOR A TIME AT PISTOL'S POINT

Correspondent of Reuters, British News Service, Relates Story Based on Officers' Accounts.

STOKERS FINALLY FLED TO THE DECK

S O S Not Sent Out Earlier, Because, Except for This, It Would Not Have Been Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The New York correspondent of Reuters, Ltd., the British news agency, sent to his home office in London today a dispatch which said that the liner Vestris sank because the Negro firemen refused to keep up steam in the boilers and that Capt. Carey did not send his S O S sooner "because there was no need for it."

The dispatch was based on the story gleaned by the correspondent from three officers of the Vestris—refrigerating Engineer Smith, fourth Engineer Officer Prestwick and sixth Engineer Officer Dixon.

Sea Smashed Glass Port.

"It was on Sunday," the dispatch relates in giving the substance of the officers' stories, "that a glass port in a coal door about five feet above the waterline was broken by a big sea and immediately a solid torrent of green water started to rush headlong into the ship. This is what started the trouble, but in itself it was never enough to sink the ship or even to cause serious danger.

"From the position of the door it was difficult to cover the gap with a makeshift bulkhead and therefore the pumps were started to get rid of the water. A list developed, but it did not exceed 30 degrees, which was not regarded as dangerous—as Smith related, he had himself crossed all the way from Argentina to England in a ship with a list almost as great. A great deal of water did, however, flow in and the Negro firemen, most of whom were from the Barbados, gradually became more panicky.

"No Reason for S O S."

"All went smoothly, however, until Monday morning and neither Carey nor the chief engineer saw any reason to send out an S O S. The pumps were working effectively and although the mass of water was not decreasing the situation was in hand. None of the engineers was worried and right up to 9 a. m. Monday none of them had the slightest idea the ship was in any danger of sinking.

"About this time, however, the Negroes became almost impossible to handle. Their nerves had been frayed by the ship's list, which made firing the boilers difficult while the water was swishing waist high on the staboard side of the engine room.

"They kept on slipping away up to the deck when the engineer officers' backs were turned and, although the mate several times drove them back, three or four at a time, at the point of his revolver, nothing could keep them down or at work.

Water Gained When Pumps Failed.

"Finally the officers could do no more and the steam began to fail with the corresponding and increasing lack of power in the pumps. More and more water poured in through the broken port while by this time undoubtedly the ship had strained one or more places in the heavy rolling, thereby letting in more water.

"At 10 o'clock Capt. Carey decided it was time to send out the S O S and the order was shouted to the radio room from the bridge.

"But all three engineers were insistent that up to that time and until the list had become so heavy there was no need for an S O S and that therefore the widely circulated tale of Carey's alleged indecision or delayed S O S had no basis in fact."

Meanwhile, the dispatch said, 10 white engineers were trying to replace the Negro firemen "who by

HOOVER ATTENDS FOOTBALL GAME; SAILS TOMORROW

Watches Contest Between Stanford and University of Washington — Serenaded by Band.

CALLERS WISH HIM PLEASANT JOURNEY

President-Elect and Party Will Leave Home at Palo Alto This Evening to Board Battleship.

By the Associated Press.

PALO ALTO, Cal., Nov. 17.—On the eve of his departure from his home for his good will tour of Latin-America, Herbert Hoover yielded again to the lure of college memories today while he watched the football team of his alma mater battle the eleven of the University of Washington.

After a morning spent in his study at the work of clearing away the huge heap of correspondence and last minute details for the trip, the President-elect, with Mrs. Hoover, drove from his home across the Stanford University campus to the stadium to witness the second and last football game he will see this season.

His morning's work had been broken only by a few callers who came to express hope that he would have a pleasant journey, and by a serenade by the University of Washington band. Among his visitors was John L. Lucey of Dallas, Tex., president of the Associated Hoover Clubs of Texas. Lucey said after his visit with the President-elect that "the break in the solid South is permanent if Mr. Hoover meets the wishes of the South, and I am confident that he will."

Hears Student Serenade.

The serenade by the student bandsmen was given from the garden at the back of the Hoover home while President-elect and Mrs. Hoover listened from an upper balcony. The two applauded as the band concluded its performance and then Hoover said:

"I thank you. I am glad to see you all down here. I hope you have some luck this afternoon."

"Please don't make it more than a tie," Mrs. Hoover asked. "If you play football as well as you play music, I am afraid it may be more than a tie."

The students applauded and then broke into a Hoover cheer, followed by one for Washington.

Last Orders to Gardener.

This morning Mrs. Hoover went over the grounds with Henry Maier, head gardener of Stanford University, giving parting instruction for the care of the grounds while she and her husband are in South America. Certain of her favorite flowers drew her special attention and she went into detail regarding their care.

Although the day was the last entire one that the Hoover party will remain in Palto Alto, no definite announcement of the itinerary had been made. The details, a formal statements at the Hoover home said, would not be made public until after Hoover had conferred with Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher on board the Battleship Maryland. Passports for the party were issued today by W. A. Newcomb in San Francisco, under a special order of the State Department, and later were to be visaed by the Consuls of the countries which will be visited.

The party will leave Palo Alto tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock for the journey down the California Coast to San Pedro, arriving at the port for Los Angeles at 9:45 o'clock Monday morning. The present plan does not contemplate any stops other than operating ones during the overnight journey, and the party will board the ship immediately after arrival at San Pedro. The Maryland will sail Monday.

Hoover Accepts Machado's Invitation to Visit Cuba.

By the Associated Press.

HAVANA, Nov. 17.—Announcement was made today that President-elect Hoover has accepted a personal invitation of President Machado to visit Cuba during his forthcoming Latin-America trip. A cable was received at the presidential palace last night from Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuba Ambassador at Washington, stating that Hoover had accepted.

Firemen's Mutiny Blamed For Loss of the Vestris

this time were up on deck." The substitute stokers remained below, the correspondent reported, until five minutes before the Vestris' final plunge.

SHIP ALEAK FOR DAY AND A HALF

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Sea water poured into the steamer Vestris through leaky ports and hatches for a day and a half before the ship sank, the two senior surviving officers testified today, but almost until the very end they thought she could be saved.

The only witnesses at today's session of the Federal inquiry into the disaster, which cost 110 lives, were First Officer Frank Johnson, a wind-bitten little mariner who was making his first trip as second-in-command, and the burly chief engineer, James Adams.

Johnson flatly contradicted the previous testimony of two wireless men from the Vestris and even took exception to the accuracy of the last wireless report about the sinking ship sent by Capt. William J. Carey, who went down with the ship.

Adams told of reporting to the Captain at 11 o'clock Monday morning, an hour after the SOS had been sent out, that he believed he could keep the ship afloat as long as he could keep up steam, although at that time it had been lying almost on its side for hours and was steadily filling with water.

Water Gained on Pumps.

Both testified about ports and doors in the side of the ship that let water pour in so fast that the combined efforts of the machine pumps and a bucket brigade of the crew could not keep up with it.

They also told how the ship lurched in a heavy sea and a part of the cargo, crated automobiles, splintered a wooden bulkhead and burst into the crew's quarters.

Johnson was produced at the Federal Building by officers of the Lamport & Holt Line on request of United States District Attorney Tuttle, who is conducting the investigation, after Department of Justice agents had sought in vain for two days to serve a subpena on him.

He sat with crossed legs and as the questioning went on and on he showed recurring flashes of irritation that raised his voice momentarily from the raspy monotone in which he gave most of his testimony.

Admits Neglect of Coal Ports.

He told of being appointed second in command just before the Vestris sailed and acknowledged to Tuttle that part of such an officer's duty was to see to the proper securing of coal and cargo ports before the ship left its dock.

"What did you do about the closing of the coal ports?" Tuttle asked. It had been testified that there were two coal ports, three feet square and about five feet above the water line, which fastened with bolts from the outside.

"I told the ship's carpenter to close them," he said.

"Did you inspect personally to see if the work was well done?"

"No."

Tuttle then brought out through questioning that the first officer had never inspected these ports because "There has never been any trouble with them."

"There was trouble enough with them on that trip," Tuttle replied, then asked if it were not true that gaskets, washers, intended to make the ports watertight when they were bolted, were not missing. Johnson said he knew of no place for any such gaskets in the ports, but finally acknowledged he was not sure whether there ever had been any gaskets.

Contradicts Captain.

Johnson said he made the first discovery that anything was wrong Sunday night at 7 o'clock. Tuttle reminded him that two wireless men from the ship had testified to there having been a definite list as early as midnight Saturday.

"They were wrong," said Johnson.

Tuttle recalled that in Captain Carey's last wireless he had said the ship had been hove to since Sunday noon.

"That was because of bad weather," Johnson said.

"But in that same message," Tuttle pursued, "the captain described the weather as only moderately rough."

"It was more than moderately rough," the mate insisted.

"You contradict your captain?"

"Yes."

Johnson said that Sunday evening the ship lurched heavily and he was at once informed that a bulkhead had broken down and cargo had gone through to the forecastle. He inspected and said he found that a "half-door" near the bulkhead, a hinged opening in the side of the ship slightly larger than the coal ports and about the same distance from the water line, was leaking.

Unable to Stop One Leak.

On one side of the door, he said, about as much water was coming in as is carried in a two-inch pipe. He had men try to tighten up the bolts, which on this door were on the inside, but the door seemed to be sprung and the leak could not be stopped.

Johnson said that the cargo that went through the bulkhead weighed about 15 tons, but that the shifting of this weight was not sufficient to make the ship list. He said water entering the ship was responsible for the list, which increased during Sunday night to about 30 degrees.

"Where was the water coming in, besides that two-inch stream around the half door?" Tuttle asked. "That's just what we tried to find out," said Johnson. He said that in his opinion "something had sprung" in the side of the ship and told of hearing water running in between decks where no one could get at it. He didn't know whether the water was coming in faster than the pumps could get it out, and did not know what the capacity of the pumps was.

Two Answers to One Question.

"You were first officer of the ship," Tuttle said. "Have you no explanation as to what made it sink?" "No."

A little earlier in the examination Tuttle had asked "What is your explanation of why the ship sank?" To this Johnson replied: "Exceptionally bad weather."

"What time was this you heard water between decks?" "I'm vague about that." "Oh," said Tuttle, "are you going to be vague about time, too?"

Yesterday the two wireless operators were unable to agree at what time the S O S message was despatched.

Johnson first said that water was not coming in the coal ports and then qualified this to say he "shouldn't think" it was. Later the chief engineer differed with him on this point.

Asked when he began to think the bailing of the ship with buckets to supplement the pumps was useless, he replied that he "thought there was a chance all along." He said that, in his opinion, the chances of sinking did not become greater than those of staying afloat until nearly noon, Monday, two until nearly noon, Monday. The ship went down at 1:25 p. m.

At 4 o'clock Monday morning, he continued, he decided there was serious danger and went to the Captain on the bridge and told him things looked serious. He said he did not urge the sending of a distress call, then or at any other time, leaving such a decision entirely to the judgment of the Captain. The Captain, he added, never discussed the matter of an S O S with him.

Only Six of 14 Lifeboats Lowered.

Whether the Captain sent any messages to the line offices or to other ships before or after the S O S he said he did not know. When the time came to launch the life boats Johnson assigned members of the crew to the work, but only six of the 14 boats, he said, had been lowered away when the Vestris sank.

Chief Engineer Adams—a big, ponderous man, slow-moving and slow-speaking, followed Johnson to the stand.

In contrast to Johnson, who had been nervous and irritable, Adams was calm. Patiently, over and over again, in his scarcely audible voice, Adams tried to explain to Tuttle the problems that confronted him on the Vestris all day Sunday and Monday morning.

The climax in Adams' story came when Tuttle asked him if he had talked to the captain Monday morning.

"Yes, I went up to see him about 11 o'clock Monday morning," Adams said. "He asked me how things were going. I said, 'Captain, the water is not gaining now. I'm holding. I can manage to keep her afloat as long as I can keep up steam.' The captain said, 'Well, do the best you can,' and that was the last time I spoke to him."

Stokers Worked in Water.

Adams then told of keeping the pumps going all Sunday night. Previously he had told of discovering four leaks Sunday, both port and starboard, had said that he had discovered late Sunday afternoon a starboard leak which he thought was through the coal, part which had been wrenched loose in the storm and had described how, standing in the water, the stokers had kept the boilers going.

"And yet the water kept increasing?" Tuttle asked. "No."

"But the ship kept listing more and more all Sunday night—from about 10 to 20 or 30 degrees—didn't she?" "Yes."

"Then more water was coming in than going out, wasn't there?" "Not in the engine room," Adams replied patiently.

"But in the rest of the ship?" Tuttle insisted. "The pumps were all in the engine room."

"But all over the ship—obviously more water came in than went in at other leaks?" "Yes."

Expected Rescue Boats.

"Then why did you tell the Captain at 11 o'clock Monday morning that you were stemming the flood?" "I had been able to get up more steam."

"But water had begun to come in at other leaks?" "Yes."

"Would you say a list of 32 degrees was dangerous?" "Yes."

"And with the boat listing to that degree, and the decks awash, you told the Captain you could pump the ship out?"

Adam's face was expressionless as he replied, still patiently in his low, monotonous voice: "I could pump out the engine room. I didn't tell him I could get the ship dry. I said I thought I could keep her afloat, and he told me he expected two destroyers by night."

Adams was then excused, and adjournment was taken until 2 p. m. Monday. Meantime Tuttle's staff will go over preliminary statements they have taken from prospective witnesses.

I. C. C. DECLARES ITS RIGHT TO FIX RAIL-RIVER RATES

Denison Law Empowers It to Establish Such Tariffs Without Public Hearing, It Claims.

By RAYMOND P. BRANDT,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Inland Waterways Corporation, which operates the Government barges on the Mississippi and Warrior Rivers, won a complete victory over the railroads that have been reluctant to co-operate in the establishment of joint rail and water routes in the Mississippi Valley territory, when the Interstate Commerce Commission held today that under the amended Denison act the Commission had power to order such through rail and water routes without prior hearings.

The decision was the result of proceedings started by the commission on its own motion to interpret the amendments to the Denison act passed in the closing days of the last session of Congress. A public hearing was held Oct. 12 to obtain the views of the interested parties, namely the advocates of waterways transportation and the railroads.

The railroads, represented by the Association of Railroad Executives, contended that it would be unconstitutional for the commission to order such routes and establish joint rates without giving the railroads concerned an opportunity to testify at public hearings.

Seeks Test of Act's Validity.

In its decision, the commission held that the question of constitutionality was for the courts to decide. Although concurring in the commission's decision, Commissioner Woodlock said that he thought the commission's action would accelerate a final determination of the constitutionality of the amended Denison act, which seemed to him "at least doubtful."

Commissioners Brainerd and Farrell, also concurring, pointed out that if the commission gave an order for the establishment of joint routes and rates, the railroads could force a prior hearing by making a formal complaint against the order.

Waterway advocates, such as the Mississippi Valley Association and the Upper Mississippi and St. Croix River Improvement Association, intervened in behalf of the Waterways Corporation and argued that if prior hearings were demanded by the commission, the railroads could delay for several years the establishment of the joint rail and water routes.

Order to Be Asked For.

In its decision, the commission also held that although the Inland Waterways Corporation and its successor, if acting under a mandate of Congress, did not need a certificate of public convenience and necessity, any other water line instituting such a service would be required to appear at a hearing before such a certificate would be granted. Once it had obtained a certificate, such new organization could ask for an order for joint routes and rates under the present decision.

The next step for the establishment of the joint routes and rates will be for the Waterways Corporation to petition the commission for a general order requiring the railroads in the Mississippi Valley territory to establish joint routes and rates. Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, executive chairman of the corporation, was not in Washington today. At his office it was said that the corporation had been waiting for the commission's decision before preparing the petition.

BYRD EXPEDITION SHIP ARRIVES IN DUNEDIN, N. Z.

First Antarctic Exploring Party to Call at Port Since That of Capt. Scott.

This story is published exclusively in St. Louis by the Post-Dispatch. All news articles from members of the Byrd party or from special correspondents assigned to it will appear only in the Post-Dispatch in this city.

DUNEDIN, N. Z., Nov. 18. (Sunday)—The steamship Eleanor Bolling of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition arrived at Dunedin at 8 o'clock this morning after anchoring during the night off Taiarva light.

Richard G. Brophy, the business manager of the expedition who had sailed with Commander Byrd on the whaler C. A. Larsen, came aboard the Bolling and congratulated Capt. Gustav L. Brown and the crew on the speed of the ship's passage. Brophy will go on the Bolling to Wellington, N. Z. on Tuesday.

Hundreds of people thronged to the ship during the day and crowds are visting the sledge dogs at quarantine island. There was no official reception to the men of the Bolling because today is Sunday, but the public interest is great, inasmuch as this is the first Antarctic expedition to call here since that of Captain Scott.

TWO ROBBERS TAKE $290 IN DAYLIGHT HOLDUP OF GROCERY

Compel Manager and Three Customers to Enter Icebox and Escape in Auto.

Two robbers obtained $290 in cash in a holdup at the Kroger Store at 5008 North Broadway at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

After taking $90 from the manager, Thomas Stahl, and $200 from the cash register, they compelled Stahl and three customers to enter the icebox. They escaped in an automobile in which a third man had waited.

An armed man who entered the drug store of Sam R. Morris, at 4642 Shenandoah avenue, last night held up Sidney Ackerman, clerk, took $150 from the cash register and escaped.

ROADHOUSE CLOSED BY 'BELVEDERE' JOE

Gonnella Changed Notorious Cafe to 'Respectable Place' but It Didn't Pay.

"Belvedere Joe" Gonnella's notorious cafe and dance hall on Olive Street road, scene of two gang murders and once the hangout of the Egan gang of St. Louis gunmen in the days before "Dinty" Colbeck and his chief lieutenants went to prison for mail robbery, quietly closed its doors last night. For six months Gonnella had tried to operate "a respectable place for nice people." It didn't pay.

Mayor Eugene D. Ruth Jr. explained last night why Gonnella operated a respectable place. A year ago, when University City annexed the district, the authorities decided that "Belvedere Inn" because of its reputation, should be watched.

When Gonnella opened last May, he was told that no gambling or drinking or disturbance would be tolerated. He was told that the license tax on a dance hall, under a University City ordinance, was $10 a night, and he was required to pay. He was given ample police protection. Every night, when the beat patrolman passed, he dropped in to see that all was well at "Belvedere Joe's." At 1 a. m. he reminded Joe of the University City closing law. Occasionally Chief of Police Ward dropped in to say "Hello."

Gonnella carried on through the summer with a jazz band and accommodations for several hundred persons. He closed up for a short period in September and then reopened for another feeble spurt, which ended last night. He announced that the property had become too valuable for its present use and would be sold. He would take a little automobile tour with Mrs. Gonnella, he said, and then look around for a location farther out.

Gonnella, who for 25 years at one location or another, has flaunted the slogan "Nothing worries Belvedere Joe," was described by a St. Louis County grand jury in 1924 as "one of the four most notorious law violators in St. Louis County."

At that time, "Belvedere Inn" was known as "Capri Inn." A year before it was "Venetian Garden." But Federal Judge Faris fined Gonnella $700 for violating the Volstead act and padlocked the place for a year. Gonnella handled that situation by operating in a rebuilt garage a few yards away, with Mrs. Gonnella at the cash register.

GOV. SMITH TIRED OUT BY VACATION CROWDS

Interest of Southerners Worse Than Campaign, New York Executive Says.

By the Associated Press.

EDGEWATER GULF, Miss., Nov. 17.—Gov. Alfred E. Smith reached the Gulf Coast today for a vacation at this resort between Gulfport and Biloxi.

He said he was fagged out after what he described as an experience worst than his presidential campaign. He had been set upon by crowds, aroused from sleep at night, called on for attendance at various functions until he had been worn into a nervous state.

He reached here just before dawn but did not rise until after 9 o'clock and remained in his private car on a railroad siding until 11. When he did leave, it was pouring rain and when he reached his hotel he went straight to his apartment with his party and remained there, the approach was barricaded by a hotel attendant, until afternoon, when he went out for a round of golf.

After luncheon, which was served in his rooms, Gov. Smith held a conference with newspaper men.

"This is the first and last interview I will give on my vacation until I say goodby," he said. "I am here to rest."

The Governor explained that he would withhold any announcements of his future movements.

"When I reached here I found as much mail waiting for me as I had been in the Governor's mansion. People wish me to do many things but I cannot answer all of those letters if I am to have any rest. I do not wish to be unappreciative, but if I say what I plan to do, it will set the mail loose on me."

COUNTERFEITER SAYS $10 BILLS COST $100 EACH

Victor Klingensmith, 31, Engraver, in Jail, Declares Crime Is Not Profitable.

HE HAS SERVED TWO PRISON TERMS

Got $350 in Seven Years Out of Bogus Money — Could Have Earned Much More Honestly.

It has taken Victor Klingensmith, a photographer and photo-engraver who turned counterfeiter, seven years to learn that he cannot produce $5 and $10 bills as cheaply as Uncle Sam. His bills have cost him several times their purported face value, not to mention two prison sentences and a prospective third term, following his arrest here Friday.

"I started making $5 bills in Butte, Mont., in the early part of 1921," Klingensmith, who is 31 years old, told a Post-Dispatch reporter at the Federal Building yesterday. "I thought I was smart enough to produce perfect bills that couldn't be detected by experts.

"I had passed only a few bills when I was caught in a store at Salt Lake City. I served 27 months in Leavenworth prison for that. They caught me again in April, 1927, when I was 'shoving' $10 bills at Sacramento, Cal. I served a year in jail. After my discharge, I worked at odd jobs to buy new plates and other equipment to start all over again. I went to East St. Louis in August and rented a two-room shack on North Seventh street. I lived frugally, in order to use my savings in my work. I had passed only a few bills when I was caught for the third time.

"In the whole seven years I passed about $600 worth of bills, of which my share was between $350 and $400. I had to split with fellows who helped me put the bills into circulation. Some got $2 on each $10, others got as high as 50 per cent.

"I have spent 39 months in prison and have ignored opportunities to make a good living at my original trade. I could have made more money honestly at my trade in one year than I have made at counterfeiting in seven years. I figure my $10 bills must have cost me $100 each, considering everything."

Klingensmith's $10 counterfeits were "pretty good," Secret Service agents said. However, the printing was too dark and the bills were too heavy, the counterfeiter having used ordinary rubber cement to paste the sides of the bill together.

Kingensmith was arrested outside a Labadie avenue grocery store where he had sent an East St. Louis youth to purchase a pound of coffee and a can of milk with a $10 counterfeit. The youth had informed police and Federal agents who were waiting near by pounced on Klingensmith as the youth delivered the grocreies and change to him. Klingensmith had nine other $10 counterfeits, and $1500 more in bad bills was found in his rooms. His counterfeiting apparatus also was seized.

5 DROWNED WHEN FLOOD RESCUE BOAT IS UPSET

Many Cars in Ditches.

Between Hofflin and Cuba, Crawford County, there is a three-quarters of a mile detour on U. S. No. 66, which became slippery with the rain, causing many automobiles to slide into ditches. The State Highway Department announced that if too much trouble was experienced there, a stretch of newly laid concrete would be opened to light cars, but not to trucks.

All of the dirt roads in the northern and western parts of the State are too muddy for travel. The Automobile Club of Missouri feared that continued rises of the Black and St. Francis rivers would put highways Nos. 25, 60 and 67 under water in the vicinity of Poplar Bluff by tomorrow. At present, No. 25 is used for the route to Memphis, while another highway is under construction south of Sikeston.

Several families were driven from their homes at New Franklin, north of Boonville. More than half a dozen interurban busses were tied up at Boonville yesterday, marooning about 150 passengers.

The water supply at Brookfield was threatened when the flood entered the city pumping plant. Some gas mains there were flooded. Edina, Knox County, was cut off from highway travel in all directions.

The rainfall at Macon was 4.5 inches in 24 hours, ending yesterday, exceeding all records there. Marshall had 5.5 inches of rain in 24 hours. There was 7 inches in 30 hours at Carrollton, flooding highway and stopping railway, bus and mail service.

Railroads Detour Trains.

Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Chicago & Alton trains were detoured over the Wabash Railway by way of Moberly yesterday because of high water and washouts near Kansas City. Two trains from Kansas City to St. Louis Friday night were annulled because of a washout at Pleasant Hill, and the "Sunflower Special" was detoured over the M.-K.-T. between Fort Scott, Kan., and Sedalia. Frisco trains between Springfield and Kansas City were detoured between Fort Scott and Kansas City over the Missouri Pacific and Santa Fe, while a washout near Paola, Kan., was being repaired. Tracks of the Missouri Pacific and M.-K.-T. also were flooded near Paola, and the Frisco and Missouri Pacific each had a train marooned at Paola. The Frisco tracks north of Clinton were under water, stopping traffic. The Shelby County Railroad line was blocked.

Grand Above Flood Stage.

As the rain was continuing along the Grand river yesterday, Weather Forecaster Hayes of St. Louis could not predict the flood crests to be attained there, but he expected the stream, usually little more than a creek, would pass the 30-foot mark. It was at 25 feet at Chillicothe yesterday, or seven feet above flood stage. Northward, at Gallatin, the stage was 29.2 feet, flood level being 20. At Brunswick, close to the mouth, the mark was 11.1 feet today, flood level being 12, and a crest of 16 is anticipated next week. On Thompson's Fork of the Grand, at Trenton, the flood stage of 20 was reached yesterday.

The Osage flood will extend from the mouth to the headwaters, Foresaster Hayes says, and while the Missouri is likely to do no more than fill its low banks from the mouth to St. Joseph, it will back up numerous creeks. He does not believe the rises in the Black and St. Francis will cause trouble unless more rain falls than is anticipated.

The Mississippi at St. Louis yesterday morning was 11.2 feet and a rise of about three feet by today was expected. The flod mark is 30 feet.

Hundreds Homeless and Three to Five Lives Lost.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 17.—A let-up of the torrential rains, which deluged Eastern Kansas and Western Missouri for two days, promised relief tonight from floods that had taken three, and possibly five, lives and rendered hundreds of persons homeless.

A cold wave set in, adding to the discomfort of flood sufferers, and in Central Kansas snow and sleet followed the rains.

Damage to crops, industrial plants, homes, bridges, railway tracks and highways was estimated at several millions of dollars.

A man drowned yesterday when his motor car was swept into a flooded stream near Paola, Kan., was identified today as A. R. Hudson of Joplin, Mo., agent of a correspondence school.

Swept From Porch to Death

Mrs. Grace Tucker, 33 years old, was drowned yesterday near Wellington, Mo., when she stepped off the porch of her home into the swirling water from Sni-a-Bar creek, as she and her family prepared to leave their home to escape the flood. A rescue crew saved other members of the family.

Edward Tucker, the woman's husband and a daughter, Alta, 9, were washed down the stream against a fence, to which they clung until aid reached them.

Harry Limberg of Wellinkton, who had been summoned to help the family move from the flooded district, also was caught in the raging water. He seized Norma Tucker, 14, as they were washed from the steps of the house, and together they floated downstream to the fence and clung there until rescue crews arrived.

Augusta, probably the hardest hit town in Kansas, continued to combat the flood, which swept into the little city yesterday, cutting off its city water and electric light systems and marooning hundreds of persons.

The Blue River became a raging torrent along the eastern edge of Kansas City. More than 100 families were forced to flee their homes, three bridges were washed out and several industrial plants suffered flood damage.

Former $25,000-a-Year Executive, Who Left Wife for Girl, 15, Tempted Cellmate to Kill Him, Police Think

DON PRENTISS.
From a Police Photograph Taken in Cleveland, O.

Cleveland Authorities Say Don Prentiss, Who Lost Position Through Drink, and was Under Sentence Under Mann Act Planned Own Death.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 16.—The career of Don Prentiss, who climbed from penniless obscurity to a $25,000-a-year executive position in the General Motors organization only to fall back to a point where he deserted his family and fled with a 15-year-old girl, ended this week in the county jail here, when he was beaten to death by a cellmate while awaiting removal to Atlanta penitentiary to serve a one-year term for violation of the Mann act.

While his death appears on the surface to be a brutal murder, authorities are inclined to believe it may have been an unusual form of suicide. In Prentiss' clothing a penciled will was found in which he bequeathed $500 to his cellmate, James Nevins. The police theory is that he either asked Nevins to kill him or tempted Nevins to murder by leaving the will in his view.

Nevins would say nothing, although the slain man's attorney, Henry Lavine, reported that Prentiss, who was 41 years old, had told him of a premonition that he would never live to see Atlanta prison.

Unusual Career Traced.

Acquaintances of Prentiss trace his unusual career back about 11 years, when he married a San Francisco society girl shortly after her graduation from the University of California. At the time he had written several books on salesmanship, and was a quiet, studious, sober young man.

He took his bride, Mrs. Madeline Prentiss, to Detroit and took a position with the Packard Motor Car Co. as an assistant to the sales manager. He worked untiringly, spurning social diversions, and was pointed out as a man marked for commercial success. This prediction was borne out to some degree when in his early 30's he joined the General Motors organization as sales promotion manager of the Olds Motor Works with a $25,000 salary.

Moving to Lansing with his new position, Prentiss and his wife found themselves swept into the social life of the smaller city. Before long Prentiss was working at top speed by day and filling his nights with late parties and entertainment. He began to drink heavily.

His work fell off and his ability began to dull. His superiors talked to him, warned him, but there was no change. Finally in December, 1927, the company gave him a bonus of $12,000 and canceled his contract.

Months of Turmoil.

The 11 months which followed to his tragic death were months of turmoil. Prentiss took his wife and two small children to Detroit, where he rented a large apartment with a housekeeper and a maid. He had plenty of money, General Motors stock and other shares. He wanted a good job or none. While he waited he burned the candle at both ends.

He was almost constantly drunk and fierce quarrels with his wife ensued, followed by long absences from home. She heard stories of other women and the quarrels were renewed. He spent his money freely and once, while drunk, sold a block of General Motors stock at 40 points below the market.

He told his wife he hated her and demanded a divorce. He urged her to go to Paris and obtained her a passport, which she destroyed. Finally she decided to visit her relatives in San Francisco, leaving the children with the housekeeper and maid. Prentiss bought tickets for her, and laughed when he handed to her steamship tickets via the Panama Canal. The trip that should have taken a week lasted a month.

Found Apartment Closed.

When Mrs. Prentiss returned to Detroit, she found the apartment closed. Prentiss had taken the children and the 15-year-old maid to a Canadian resort town. The wife followed, dismissed the maid, and permitted her husband to return to Detroit alone. He sent her no money and when the resort closed in October, she returned to Detroit.

Her husband had disappeared again and she found herself alone and penniless in the big apartment. She called on cousins in San Francisco, who sent money to her so that she could take the children to California.

Meanwhile, Prentiss had resumed his relations with the nurse maid. They went to Cleveland, where the former automobile executive tossed away the last remnants of his fortune. He persuaded the child to telephone her mother to send her money for a ticket home. The mother consulted Federal authorities, who advised her to send a money order. Federal agents were waiting at the express offices when the man and girl appeared to cash the order.

STOCK-BUYING FRENZY EXTENDS TO CHICAGO

Women Among Thousands Who Crowd Brokerage Houses to Play Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—The frantic speculation in stocks has reached a stage bordering on hysteria in Chicago. Among 300 brokerage houses, banks and investment companies orders for purchase and sale of 900,000 shares of stocks were transmitted to the New York Stock Exchange Friday and 300,000 shares today. Brokers have given up the old idea of making customers comfortable in their offices. Standing room is at a premium, with no standing where one is lucky to be seated. Race track fans, grain traders and real estate speculators have pushed the old stock traders aside.

Women have forced their way into quarters where once they were excluded. Through men friends they give their orders and watch the moving picture of the tape. Thousands drive in daily from towns in three States to play the stock market. The crush of orders is so heavy that brokers find it difficult to execute them. No attention is paid to the delay of the tape. Quotations of a few of the leaders on the bond ticker or a special wire flash showing big advances in the leaders is enough to bring out orders for stocks that may be two or three points away from the tape.

Chicago missed the big rise in its own stocks, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Harvester and Union Carbide. It is estimated that 70 per cent of the new players are tied up in stocks selling under $50, and half of these in stocks selling under $20. The Cuban sugars, beet sugars and the low rubbers have been poison to the customers who believed much could be made from little.

WOMAN, 70, ON HONEYMOON DIES AFTER AUTO ACCIDENT

Mrs. Charles H. Haines, 10 Days Ago Was Married to Sweetheart of Her College Days.

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 17.—A college romance that culminated in marriage 50 years later, ended in tragedy here when a 70-year-old bride of less than two weeks died of injuries suffered in an automobile wreck on her honeymoon. She was Mrs. Charles H. Haines, wife of Dr. Charles H. Haines, a retired Methodist Minister of College Station, Texas, who died at hospital here today.

Mrs. Haines and her husband and Dr. L. S. Smith and Mrs. Smith of Frankfort, Ind., who were on the way to Orlando, Fla., for the winter, were injured Monday near Jonesboro, Ga., when another auto crashed into their machine. All except Mrs. Haines suffered only minor injuries.

Mrs. Haines, who was formerly Allie K. Beale of Frankfort, Ind., and Dr. Haines met when they were students at old Asbury University, now De Pauw University, Greencastle, Ind., in 1877. Recently the friendship was renewed and Nov. 8 they were married.

KILLED BY AUTO WHEN HE TRIES TO ASK FOR RIDE

Patrick J. McAdams, 45 years old, a clerk, 985 Utah street, was killed by an automobile at 2:30 a. m. yesterday, when he stood in Gravois road, near McKenzie road, St. Louis County, to ask for a ride to the city.

The driver, Irwin Shubert, 24, 8809 Gravois road, said McAdams stepped in front of his automobile waving his arms and pointing toward St. Louis. He was hit when Shubert failed in an attempt to swerve aside.

Shubert drove with McAdams to the office of Dr. Walter L. Kelley, in Affton, where McAdams was pronounced dead, and then took the body to Coroner Bopp's morgue in Kirkwood. There were no witnesses to the accident, Shubert said, and an accident verdict exonerating Shubert was returned by a Coroner's jury.

$314,905,000 of Bonds Voted by Cities and States For Public Improvements

Missouri's $75,000,000 Road Item Second Largest Carried in Recent Election; Proposals Calling for $286,941,000 Failed.

Eight states and eight cities voted on proposed bond issues aggregating $601,846,000 in the general election of Nov. 6 and $314,905,000 of the bonds were approved by the people, $286,941,000 failing. Missouri's $75,000,000 State road bond item was the second largest item, being exceeded only by $100,000,000 for a similar purpose voted in Iowa.

In Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, California, Pennsylvania, Colorado, West Virginia and Louisiana, State issues carried in the sum of $247,000,000 and failed in the sum of $228,000,000. In Chicago, Cleveland, Detroit, Baltimore, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Toledo and Akron (together with their suburban counties in some instances), a total of $67,905,000 in bonds was voted, and a total of $58,491,000 failed.

Most of the state proposals were for roads—$240,000,000 carrying and $120,000,000 failing.

The story of Missouri's passage of its $75,000,000 State road bond issue is known. This brings the total of its highway bonds to $135,000,000, second only to Illinois, which in the past has voted $160,000,000 in two issues, and with Pennsylvania, having $100,000,000, seemingly third. The neighboring state of Iowa has a thorough system of State highways, but with a great mileage of dirt or mud. Its $100,000,000 will be spent to pave the primary system, a referendum measure having passed with a 2 to 1 majority.

Some Carried, Some Defeated

West Virginia voted an additional $35,000,000 in road bonds to complete its fine hard road system, and the majority was overwhelming. A $30,000,000 road issue carried in Louisiana. On the other side of the picture, Colorado defeated an additional $60,000,000 road issue better than 2 to 1, Pennsylvania voters knocked out a $50,000,000 road proposal and the California electorate refused to authorize $10,000,000 to build highway subways in the elimination of grade crossings, current revenues now caring for this work.

Other bond items defeated in Pennsylvania were: $50,000,000 for welfare buildings, $25,000,000 for acquisition of State forestry land, $8,000,000 for expansion of Pennsylvania State College and $5,000,000 for National Guard armories. California, however, voted $6,000,000 for buying State park land and $1,000,000 for support of the international Olympic games to be held in Los Angeles in 1932.

In Illinois, a proposal for $20,000,000 in bonds to acquire State hunting and fishing grounds for the public, which was submitted by the Legislature but opposed by various civic and agricultural organizations, was defeated, 2 to 1. The adverse vote in Chicago, most of whose residents felt they would derive no benefit from the land, was largely responsible for the result.

Chicago Defeats Local Issues.

Chicago likewise disapproved of 11 local bond issues aggregating $29,291,000. Observers, seeking to explain this, suggested that the people did not trust Mayor Thompson's administration and did not want to let its officials handle this money. There have been high taxes and unfair assessments, Thompson's opponents charge, tending to make voters say "no" to all propositions involving expenditure of funds. The next mayoralty election will be in 1931.

The defeated items were $24,541,000 for eight street widenings, $1,500,000 for street lighting, $450,000 for a municipal airport and $2,800,000 for a Cook County nurses' home. Chief widenings included were of Ashland avenue, to make it a north-south through street on the West Side; Western avenue, for a similar reason; La Salle street, north of the Chicago River, and an extension of Wacker drive, the double-deck thoroughfare.

Cleveland and Cuyahoga County carried the following $8,925,000 items: $2,500,000 for an athletic stadium on the Lake Erie front, seating 85,000, and which the Cleveland Indians will use for baseball games, among other purposes; $2,500,000 for new hospitals, $2,000,000 for street and sewer repairs, $1,625,000 for a new County Courts Building and jail, sought by civic organizations for 10 years, and $300,000 for street lighting. They defeated $2,000,000 for a new school headquarters building and $750,000 for lake front sewer construction.

Detroit Votes for Airport.

Detroit and Wayne County defeated a $20,000,000 issue for a civic center, by 221,000 votes, against 148,251, but approved one of $5,000,000 for a large municipal airport. This was the first occasion for some time when voters there approved one proposal and killed another. The civic center was designed to take land on the water front and erect a new city hall and other public buildings there.

The $16,000,000 in issues carried in Baltimore, were: $10,000,000 in port improvement refunding bonds, to replace an older issue at a lower interest rate, and $6,000,000 for widening and extension of North Howard street and construction of a long viaduct there.

Cincinnati carried these items, totaling $5,150,000: $2,000,000 for grade crossing elimination, $1,000,000 for a viaduct, $1,000,000 for Plum street improvement, $500,000 for parks and playgrounds, $300,000 for a hospital, $250,000 for sewers and $100,000 for parkways and boulevards.

In San Francisco, $3,500,000 in bonds for city hospital improvements and a general health program and $2,200,000 for sewers carried, aggregating $5,700,000 but these items failed: $3,100,000 for playgrounds, $2,000,000 for parks, $950,000 for development of an aquatic park and $750,000 for a tunnel to carry through a busy business street.

Toledo Votes for Schools.

Toledo, Lucas County, O., approved $11,800,000 in bonds, covering $5,000,000 for School Board use; $3,000,000 for bridges, $2,850,000 for development of Toledo University and $950,000 for a county hospital. A measure for $100,000 to build a Toledo zoo failed.

Akron voters approved a total of $15,330,000 in bonds, although that is one of the smaller cities. The items are: $6,000,000 for waterworks expansion, $3,000,000 for the city's share of grade crossing elimination work, $2,800,000 for school development, $2,140,000 for widening traffic arteries, $900,000 for street paving and repairing and $490,000 for a new viaduct.

Twenty-five of the 48 states have adopted the bond plan for financing highway construction in the decade or so since the importance of good motor roads has been generally realized. From 1916 to July 1, 1927, they issued $740,614,500 in bonds, according to records of the American Automobile Association, but this is considerably less than the total of bonds actually authorized in that period. The figures by states, exclusive of the new issues voted in the recent election, follow: Alabama, $23,000,000; California, $55,000,000; Colorado, $11,000,000; Delaware, $9,780,000; Idaho, $2,720,500; Illinois, $89,000,000; Louisiana, $700,000; Maine, $13,929,000; Maryland, $17,997,000; Massachusetts, $2,395,000; Michigan, $54,419,000; Missouri, $65,000,000; Nevada, $900,000; New Jersey, $65,000,000; New Mexico, $2,000,000; New York, $40,000,000; North Carolina, $85,300,000; Oregon, $38,300,000; Pennsylvania, $100,000,000; Rhode Island, $4,300,000; South Dakota, $6,000,000; Utah, $7,000,000; Virginia, $5,278,000; West Virginia, $47,000,000; Wyoming, $4,600,000.

CAUSES TRAIN WRECK WHEN HE FLINGS SELF ON TRACK

Despondent East Side Postman Ends Life by Leaping in Front of Locomotive.

Despondent because a physician had told him he was suffering from heart disease and would have to give up his job as a letter carrier, Louis H. Heimkamp, 60 years old, 2719 McCasland avenue, East St. Louis, ended his life by leaping in front of a Terminal freight train near Twenty-first street and Broadway at 10:30 a. m. yesterday.

His act resulted in the derailing and wrecking of six empty box cars, for F. Shepard, engineer, saw him leap and applied the brakes so suddenly that the train buckled in the middle, the heavily loaded cars in the rear forcing the lighter ones off the track.

TEAM HAS A COACH BUT NEEDS A LAWYER

Western Military Academy Players Run Into Play Here Football Rules Don't Cover.

Western Military Academy's football team, which came over from Alton yesterday to play the Principia in the latter school's annual dad's day failed to bring along a legal staff as well as a coaching staff and as a result of that oversight ran into a series of legal criss-cross plays the rule book didn't cover.

Driving out to Taylor Field, Lackland and Walton roads, with their bright new red and blue sweaters and red and blue stockings, the military boys found themselves confronted by an attachment writ in the hands of a deputy sheriff, depriving them of all their paraphernalia, including even footballs and pants.

They faced the prospect of playing in B. V. D.'s or not at all until the mothers of two W. M. A. students came to the rescue and signed a $200 bond, releasing the equipment and allowing the game to proceed.

As it was, they were deprived of a 45-minute practice period before the game and of the full attention of their coach, Maj. F. A. Garretson, who spent most of the afternoon trying to be attorney as well as fooball mentor. During that time Principia scored the touchdown which was the only score of the game.

To add a little more gall to a morsel already bitter, they learned it was all the fault of "Prexy." There were no "rahs" for "Prexy" going home. Here is the way the trouble started:

On Oct. 9, 1927, Col. G. D. Eaton, president of the W. M. A. and a stockholder in the institution, was driving his automobile on U. S. Highway 61, near Festus, when it collided with a car driven by Roy T. McKee, 23 years old, of Hematite, Mo. McKee was killed. The young man's mother, Mrs. Dora Huey of Hematite, filed suit in the St. Louis Circuit Court for $10,000 damages.

According to Mrs. Huey's attorney, Col. Eaton evaded service in the suit and was warned a few days ago that if he continued to do so, trouble might result. He said, it was declared, he would come to St. Louis and permit a deputy to serve him with the summons. He didn't come.

EADS BRIDGE BECOMES WHITE WAY WITH ALUMINUM PAINT

Railroad Decks and Lower Part of Span Get Coat of Maroon.

Repainting of the metal work of the highway deck of Eads Bridge with white aluminum paint is nearing completion. The surfaces are gleaming brightly. The Terminal Railroad, which controls the bridge, decided it should be furbished up to keep pace with the new electric lights of the business districts of St. Louis and East St. Louis, which it links.

President Miller of the Terminal regards the work as creating a "white way" between the cities. The bridge already had strong electric lights. The railroad deck and metal on the lower parts of the graceful spans have been painted maroon, instead of the customary black, carrying out Miller's idea of attractiveness.

VESTRIS DISASTER STIRS INTEREST IN SEA SAFETY PLANS

Adminisrtation Is Anxious to Have U. S. Represented at April Conference in London.

TO ASK CONGRESS FOR $100,000

Move for International Agreement on This Line in 1914, Halted by the War.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Officials of the Coolidge administration are perfecting plans for American participation in the Safety-at-Sea Conference, to be held in London some time after next April 1.

The American delegation will go to London prepared to fight for the adoption of the highest possible safety standards.

In this connection it was recalled today that the partial convention adopted by the first international conference of this kind in 1914 was nullified by an amendment adopted by the United States Senate reserving the right to go beyond the provisions of the agreement in legislation for the promotion of safety at sea.

There has been some complaint, credited to British shipping interests, that certain present safety requirements are unnecessarily severe. In view of the disaster to the steamer Vestris, on which 110 lives were lost last Monday, it is not anticipated that any such contention will be seriously advanced at next year's conference.

War Interrupted Plans.

The 1914 conference did not complete its work, the World War having intervened. However, that gathering did attack the safety problem from all angles and had made substantial progress before its work was halted by the outbreak of hostilities in Europe. The 1914 convention has been made the basis of national laws in several countries.

Congress has not yet formally authorized American participation in the forthcoming conference. A resolution passed both House and Senate but was lost in the shuffle on the closing day of the last session and did not reach the Speaker of the House for his signature. It is expected to go through on the first day of the December session.

An appropriation of $100,000 will be asked for to defray the expenses of sending an American delegation and technical assistants. There has been some criticism in Congress of this amount.

The American delegation to the 1914 conference, which was an outgrowth of the Titanic disaster, consisted of 12 members with technical assistants. A delegation of equal strength is planned for next year's conference.

Meanwhile, several technical committees, working under the direction of the Bureau of Navigation of the Department of Commerce, are studying proposals submitted by Great Britain about a year ago. It is understood that the American technical men do not for the most part find their views and those of the British far apart. There are some exceptions, having to do with points of construction and other purely technical questions.

When the American delegation arrives in London it will be prepared to place before the conference proposals of its own, based on the study of the British proposals submitted to other nations for preliminary study. Other delegations are expected to do likewise.

GEORGE HEEGE TO SEEK SPEAKERSHIP OF HOUSE

Kirkwood Man, Re-Elected for Sixth Term, Announces Candidacy.

George F. Heege of Kirkwood, re-elected to the Legislature for his sixth consecutive term, yesterday announced his candidacy for the position of Speaker of the House.

Heege is one of a large field of candidates for the place, the most important in the Lower House and one usually considered a stepping stone to higher places in politics. Edward Winter, Lieutenant-Governor-elect, was Speaker of the last House. Among Heege's opponents will be Jones H. Parker of St. Louis, who was Speaker in the 1925 Legislature; Frank B. Meyer of Gasconade County; E. A. Duensing of Lafayette County; O. B. Whitaker of Hickory County; William E. Freeland of Taney County and J. W. Campbell of Cedar County.

In the last House Heege was chairman of the Committee on Criminal Jurisprudence, Duensing of the Committee on Roads and Highways, Parker of the Committee on Judiciary, Meyer of the Committee on Appropriations and Freeland of the Committee on Education. Campbell has been a member of the Legislature several terms, but was not a member of the last House. Whitaker also has served several terms, but has not been in the House since 1923, when he was Republican floor leader.

CHAMBERLAIN URGES NO NAVAL COMPETITION

British Foreign Secretary, Going Home, Says, "We Have No Rivalry With U. S."

By the Associated Press.

QUEBEC, Nov. 17.—A plea for greater understanding of the position of Great Britain by the people of the United States was made by Sir Austen Chamberlain, British Foreign Secretary, today, just before his departure for home after a long visit on this side of the ocean for his health, which is much improved.

The Foreign Secretary declared that Great Britain had no rivalry with the United States and had no desire to enter upon naval competition with it.

In answering a request that he comment on the Armistice day speech of President Coolidge and the discussion which it aroused in the British press, the Foreign Secretary told interviewers that he wished one could see "a greater disposition on the part of the American people to study the actual position of Great Britain and see how very peculiar it is."

"We have no rivalry with the United States," Sir Austen continued. "We have no desire to start or enter upon a naval competition with them, but our circumstances are very peculiar and I believe they would judge us more fairly if they appreciated them.

"We are the center of a world-wide empire. While their communications are mainly continental, ours lie across the seas. We often have no more than a few weeks' supply of food in our country and are dependent on keeping open our sea communications with you here in Canada and with Australia."

Questioned as to the probable outcome of the general elections to be held in Britain in the coming year, Sir Austen replied unhesitatingly, "Baldwin will have a majority."

MURDER OF 'BIG TIM' AVENGED BY CHICAGO KILLING IS THEORY

Police Have No Clews, However, in Fatal Shooting of Laundry Drivers' Union Officer.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Three theories, based on speculation alone, were evolved by police tonight to account for the assassination of John G. Clay, secretary and treasurer of the Laundry and Dye House Drivers' and Chauffeurs' Union, who was shot and killed last night in union headquarters.

The killing, police believed, was in revenge for the murder of "Big Tim" Murphy, or it was the act of Clay's enemies in his own union or the first gesture of a rival organization trying to "muscle in" on Clay's power and influence.

No arrests have been made. Authorities admitted they were working without any tangible clews to support any of their theories. Clay was shot to death by several men who fired with pistols and shotguns through a plate-glass window of the union offices. The men escaped in an automobile without being seen. A coroner's inquest today was continued.

Police recalled, however, that Clay had been mentioned as a suspect when "Big Tim" Murphy, former labor leader and mail robber, was shot to death in his own dooryard a few months ago. "Big Tim," it was reported, was contemplating entering the cleaning and dyeing field and had encountered opposition from those already in it.

SPEEDER, CHASED SIX MILES BY POLICE, PAROLED BY JUDGE

Rosecan Suspends Driver's Workhouse Term on Pledge Not to Drive for Month.

A 30-day workhouse sentence was stayed by Police Judge Rosecan yesterday upon the promise of Elmer Boessel, 20, a druggist, of 8616 Trafford lane, who was arrested for driving 65 miles an hour on the morning of Nov. 1 following a six-mile chase, to refrain from driving a car during the period of the sentence.

Boessel and James D. Wilson, a druggist, of 814 North Kingshighway, who was with Boessel, testified that they failed to notice the red and green lights on the police car and thought they were pursued by robbers. They charged that Traffic Policemen Keeton and Kelly struck them and pulled them from their machine following the arrest. The officers denied this. Two charges against Boesell, of running through traffic signals were dismissed.

A relief bill to award Miss Dorothy Hartman $2500 for an alleged bullet wound suffered when Keeton fired at Boessel's was introduced in the Board of Aldermen Friday.

Complains of Radio Interference.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 17.—The Missouri Public Service Commission was called upon today to assist a radio fan in overcoming interference that was breaking up reception of radio programs, the interference presumably arising from power lines of an electric light and power company. The complaint was filed by Oscar H. Avery, a druggist, of Troy, Mo., against the East Missouri Power Co. of Troy. Avery charged continuous interference in Troy had made his radio set, and that of other persons, virtually useless. He said the interference ceased at a time when the power plant was not in operation.

Navy Band Concerts.

The United States Navy Band, under direction of Lieut. Charles Benter, will give concerts at 2:50 and 9 p. m. today at Western Military Academy, Alton, under auspices of the Alton Exchange Club. The proceeds, above expenses, will go into the club's charity fund.

Soothing, Dry Sore Scalps

If you hair is dry and brittle—if your scalp is sore and tight—you will find instant relief in this wonderful tonic. Fitch's "ideal" rubbed gently into the scalp not only soothes and heals, but gradually stimulates a normal supply of oil, so that dry, brittle hair begins to take on natural lustre and sheen. A wonderful dressing for unruly hair.

Generous size bottle.... 89c

Fitch's Ideal

Boal's Fruit Laxative Rolls

Many of us can remember 'way back when mother gave the children figs and senna leaves to correct little disorders that all have to contend with. When the feverish brow gave the signal mother often diagnosed the case as "worms" or "bowel trouble." Then came castor oil or a dose of homemade fruit and herb medicine. Boal's Rolls simply offer you the old-fashioned treatment in a new form. They are made by mixing together figs, raisins, herbs, leaves and other correctives, then pressed into rolls. They are delicious and tasty as any candy bar.

SAYS SHE, NOT POLICE, BEAT ACCUSED YOUTH

Sister of Girl Alleged to Have Been Attacked Supports Captain's Statement.

When Police Capt. George Tabb and several of his detectives appear before Judge Gayer in Court of Criminal Correction Tuesday to answer "third degree" charges made by Fred Schwartz, 18-year-old clerk, 1409 Temple place, their denial will be supported with testimony of Miss Lucille Burbes, 3516 Cass avenue, that she, not the police, beat the youth at Dayton Street Police Station the night of Sept. 12.

Arraigned Friday on a charge of attacking Miss Burbes' 14-year-old sister, Schwartz told Judge Gayer that he was brutally beaten by four police officers who used a rubber hose and a night stick as well as their fists in an attempt to force a confession. "I believe what you say," said Judge Gayer, continuing the hearing until Tuesday and ordering Capt. Tabb and every detective on duty that night to appear in court.

Yesterday Capt. Tabb denied that his men had mistreated Schwartz and attributed to Miss Burbes the many bruises and other injuries described by Schwartz's family physician. She confirmed Capt. Tabb's statement that she had flung herself at the youth striking him with her fists and a metal-topped handbag until policemen tore her away.

Capt. Tabb also asserted that the youth's father, David Schwartz, had a personal grudge against Police Sergt. James H. O'Gorman. In court Friday, young Schwartz identified O'Gorman, a witness against him in the assault case, as one of his assailants. O'Gorman denied the accusation. Schwartz said the three other men were detectives whom he could identify if he saw them.

Hungarians to Quit Transylvania.
By the Associated Press.

BUDAPEST, Nov. 17.—Approximately 650,000 Hungarians living in Rumania, including 350,000 naturalized citizens, will be expelled from Transylvania following a decision of the Ministry of Labor in Bucharest. An exception will be made in favor of those who lived there before 1914 and who are married to or who marry Rumanian wives before the end of the current month. These are granted three years' respite.

RIVER COMMISSION HOLDS ITS FIRST FULL MEETING

Secretary of War Davis to Join Group at Vicksburg, Miss.

The first public hearing of the regular low water inspection trip of the Mississippi River Commission was held yesterday on board the steamer Mississippi at St. Louis.

Secretary of War Davis is to join the commission, which departed immediately after the hearing, at Vicksburg. He plans to inspect the flood control projects below that point and return from New Orleans in time to address the Mississippi Valley Association convention here Nov. 25 and 27.

GALLSTONES KILL MILLIONS ANNUALLY

According to eminent medical authorities, Gallstones exact even a greater toll of lives than modern warfare. It is estimated that every year millions of people die directly or indirectly from Gallstones or kindred ailments. An old German doctor, Dr. Hildebrand, devoted years in an effort to find a Gallstone cure. His efforts were spurred on by the fact that he was a sufferer himself. After numerous experiments he at last found a treatment that cured him of his Gallstones. The old doctor then prescribed this treatment to other sufferers. The amazing results they report is convincing evidence of the merit of his treatment. For a limited time through the Dr. Hildebrand Laboratories, Dept. 496, 155 N. Union Ave., Chicago, Ill., sufferers everywhere may obtain a test of this marvelous treatment free. Anyone troubled with Gallstones, Liver or Stomach ailments should send their name at once.

Skin Like Ivory!

Now, a New Kind of Facial Creme Brings Amazing New Results, or Your Money Back

Whitens Your Skin Smooths Out Lines Banishes Freckles Reduces Pores

Skin like ivory! No freckles . . . no blackheads . . . no more fine lines . . . cleared of every tiny imperfection and smoothed to flawless texture . . . soft, supple, creamy-white! Do you want such superb skin beauty? Then try one jar of this new-type facial creme . . .

Gervaise Graham Beauty Secret

The New, Six-fold Facial Creme

Not a cold cream . . . not a bleach cream . . . not a skin food, you may expect this six-fold creme to surpass them all. In Beauty Secret I have succeeded in blending the best beauty helps ever known . . . and I have multiplied their benefits. Now expect new things from your facial creme!

Complete Skin Treatment

Gervaise Graham Beauty Secret has the power to whiten the skin a new safe way, and nothing is more fascinatingly beautiful than a milky-white complexion. This is but one of its benefits. Freckles steadily fade out. Blackheads dissolve completely. Another amazing tendency of Beauty Secret is to reduce coarse pores to smoothest, finest texture. Beauty Secret not only cleanses the skin completely . . . it stimulates, tones, firms. Tonic oils impart to the skin a supple elasticity which in the greatest degree smooths out fine lines and crow's feet. Now, for the first time, a complete skin treatment in one facial creme. Now results that you can really see!

Positive Guarantee

I guarantee Beauty Secret, or refund money. Use it as you would any face creme for one or two weeks. Then if you are not simply delighted, your money will be refunded for the asking.

dubious?

If you have been paying much higher prices, doubtless you doubt and discount some of the things we say about LOSSE clothes at $50 to $70. You would like to believe, but find it difficult.

Take these Fall weight GLEN ADDIES, for example. Scotch wool, spun and woven at Peebles, which is an ancient town just south of Edinboro. Designs and colorings that fairly smell of heather. Firmly woven, but not hard. Holds its shape and will not shine at elbows and trouser seat. Your hand and eye will tell you the quality.

As to fit, trim and finish—they must satisfy you or the suit belongs to us—you can't pay for it.

A Message from Santa Claus

Greetings to my many friends in St. Louis. It gave me a wonderful thrill to see the thousands of boys and girls with their fathers and mothers out at Forest Park Saturday morning to meet me upon my arrival. It was a stormy trip, and especially the end of the journey. But for the miraculous skill of my trusty pilot, a safe landing would have been unlikely.

But I arrived only a few minutes late, and received a hearty greeting from your good Mayor and the thousands of boys and girls, both at the field, at the Shriner's Hospital for Crippled Children, and again at Vandervoort's, my Toy Headquarters and the home of my Mystery Palace.

I hope all the boys and girls who were unable to meet me because of the stormy weather Saturday morning, will come down to see me Monday or early in the week. I promise all of you souvenirs, which you would have received had you been out to greet me on the flying field.

Affectionately yours,

Santa Claus.

Women Sue Hotel for $90,000.

Two suits for a total of $90,000 were filed in Circuit Court yesterday by Mrs. Florence L. Boyer and her sister, Miss Hager Lewis, against the Coronado Hotel Co. They allege that on the night of last Oct. 17 when they were guests at the Coronado Hotel, the assistant manager and a house detective entered their room and caused them to suffer nervous shocks and humiliation. Wilbur B. Jones, attorney for the petitioners, declined to discuss details of the suits. The hotel manager said he had had no complaint.

Sick Stomach Teaches Her a Good Lesson

Miss Jeanne Ginsberg, Bronx, N. Y., writes: "I had become accustomed to arising each day with a heavy head, dizzy and a bad taste in my mouth. My bowels were frequently clogged and constipated. I feel greatly relieved since taking your purely vegetable laxative."

'TOUGH WILLIE' DENIES ROTHSTEIN KILLING

Story Told by Gambler's Cashier Satisfies District Attorney —Administrators Named.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—William McCabe, nicknamed "Tough Willie," went to the office of District Attorney Joab Banton today for questioning in the Arnold Rothstein murder investigation. McCabe, who has been referred to as the murdered gambler's racetrack cashier, appeared voluntarily, surrendering first at a police station.

After the questioning, Banton said McCabe had denied any knowledge of the fatal shooting of Rothstein in the Park Central Hotel two weeks ago tomorrow, and that he (the District Attorney) was satisfied McCabe had had no connection with it, having been on shipboard at the time.

Surrogate O'Brien today appointed temporary administrators of the Rothstein estate to start immediately at straightening the slain man's tangled affairs. Those named were Abraham E. Rothstein, the gambler's father; Samuel Brown, an executor, and Andrew J. Sheridan, a real estate operator.

Inez Norton, former actress, to whom Rothstein made a substantial bequest in the will executed on his deathbed, filed and later withdrew an affidavit in Surrogate Court today, wherein she said the gambler had planned to marry her as soon as his wife divorced him.

Miss Norton said Rothstein had showed her letters written to him by his wife from London and Paris, which asserted that, if he had no objection, she would wait until she returned to obtain the divorce. When Mrs. Rothstein did come back, the affidavit alleged, she resided at a hotel and received $2000 a month from the gambler under a separation agreement. The withdrawal was made after the appointment of the administrators.

CONSERVATION A PATRIOTIC MOVEMENT, SAYS DAWES

Vice President Declares Saving a Tree or Purifying a Stream a Demonstration of Idealism.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—The conservation movement is America's finest demonstration of pure idealism and unselfish patriotism, in the belief of Vice President Charles G. Dawes.

Addressing the Chicago Izaak Walton League tonight over a nation-wide radio hook-up, Dawes said:

"Those who adhere to conservation solely for the love of the out-of-doors, who comprehend their duty only in terms of planting a tree, purifying a stream, protecting a bird's nest or otherwise making the out-of-doors a little cleaner or more beautiful, have justification enough for their work and reward in their accomplishments.

'But there is another aspect of conservation that challenges the attention of 125,000,000 Americans, and that is the economic. On these grounds alone we may call upon self-interest of our people and justify all the time and energy expended in a conservation movement."

Dawes deplored the depletion of forests without reforestation, the pollution of streams and the lack of attention these things have received from the people and the makers of laws.

TORAL MAKES PLEA FOR PEACE

Assassin of Obregon Asks Friends Not to Oppose His Death.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—Jose De Leon Toral, from his penitentiary cell, today made a plea to his friends to accept the verdict of the jury which convicted him of assassinating President-elect Obregon, and his sentence to execution by a firing squad.

He said it was God's will, and counseled them not to offer objection, as he did not want to be the cause of further bloodshed. He told a newspaper man today that this was the message he had attempted to deliver just after being convicted in the San Angel court.

CHINA PLANNING A FLEET

Nationalist Leaders Announce Proposals for a Naval Base.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 17.—Chiang Kai-shek, head of the Nationalist Government, and Admiral Yang Shu-chwang, commander in chief of the Chinese Navy, are determined that China shall have a modern fleet and adequate coast patrols. They have recommended that Hsiangsham, near Ningpo, be considered as a possible naval base.

The first Nationalist gunboat for patrolling in land waters, was recently launched in a Government shipyard here and two boats of the same type are on the ways.

Britain and Argentina in Dispute.

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 17.—The old controversy between Argentina and Great Britain with reference to the possession of the Falkland and other islands has flared up with the establishment of an Argentine wireless station in South Orkneys Islands. The British Government presented a friendly note to Argentina complaining against what it believed to be an interference in its possessions, but the Argentine Government answered moderately but firmly, that it used only the rights of dominion it has over these lands.

Spectator Injured at Bull Fight.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—A curious accident occurred at a recent bull fight here, in which a spectator was seriously injured. When the matador endeavored to drive his sword into the nape of the bull's neck for the kill, the animal hurled the weapon from him with such force that it sailed into the grandstand, burying itself in the body of a spectator.

OFFICIAL RETURNS OF COUNTY VOTES

No Change Made in Any Results of Local Races; 416,040 Ballots.

Exactly the same proportion of the registered voters in St. Louis County cast ballots in the general election of Nov. 6 as in St. Louis—93 per cent. The official count, completed by the County Election Board yesterday, shows that 76,682 ballots were cast, out of the registration of 82,380.

Combined, St. Louis and the county cast a vote of 416,040 out of a registration of 447,319. The latest estimate of their aggregate population is 1,048,100. Heretofore, the record percentage of the registrants voting in St. Louis was 89 per cent, and in the county 86 per cent.

No changes in the results of local races were made by the official returns in the county. The closest race was that for Coroner— the only office to which a Democrat was elected. The board's count gives Dr. John O'Connell, the winner, a majority of 840 votes over Rolland H. Bopp, Republican candidate. Bopp will not contest the election.

Scratching for Smith.

Al Lill (Rep.), the Sheriff-elect, is shown to have defeated S. C. Petersen, the Democratic candidate, by 2908 votes. Petersen has talked of a contest. A third candidate, Marshall P. Peterson, running as an independent and cutting in on Petersen's political strength, polled 6250 votes, the official tally shows.

While Gov.-elect Caulfield (Rep.) gained a majority of 11,125 over Francis M. Wilson (Dem.), in the county, President-elect Hoover led Al Smith by only 8755. This is indicative of the extent to which ballots were scratched in favor of Smith.

The vote for Hoover was 42,572, for Smith 33,817, for Norman E. Thomas (Socialist) 273 and for the Socialist-Labor candidate 20. In each case, the count for the elector receiving the highest vote is given. Caulfield polled 43,724, Wilson 32,599, Joseph G. Hodges (Socialist) 190, Edward T. Middlecoff (Socialist-Labor), 15, and W. G. Brandenburg (Prohibition) 21. For United States Senator, Roscoe C. Charles M. Hay (Dem.), 34,003, outrunning Al Smith although he is a dry and the county is wet politically; Charles H. Harrison (Socialist), 246, and William W. Cox (Socialist-Labor), 21.

Nolte Leads Mulloy.

Although the unofficial returns indicated that Circuit Judge Mulloy, re-elected, led the Republican county ticket by a slight margin and outran State and national candidates, the official count shows that Julius R. Nolte (Rep.) exceeded Judge Mulloy's vote by 25.

The county favored the $75,000,000 State road bond issue by better than 3 to 1, giving it a majority of 35,510, and gave small favorable margins to the unsuccessful propositions for the St. Louis police pension and to raise Legislators' pay. Its vote was: Bonds, yes 50,818, no 15,308; police pension, yes 32,791; no 31,742; Legislators' pay, yes 31,749, no 29,701.

State Senator—Richard F. Ralph (R.), unopposed, 46,790.

Circuit Judge (two elected)—Julius R. Nolte (R.) 48,483, Jerry Mulloy (R.) 48,458, Barton N. Grant (D.) 27,582, Walter W. Schiek (D.) 27,017.

New Goitre Remedy

Great interest attaches to reports of a remarkable method for treating goitre recently demonstrated at the W. T. B. Laboratory, 919 Sanborn Bldg., Battle Creek, Mich. It is used by the patient herself in her own home, and it is said that the largest and most hideous goitres begin to recede almost in a day. They gradually get smaller until in three or four weeks they are often gone entirely. The treatment is perfectly safe for anyone to use, and many believe it will prove the long-sought specific for all goitres. A little book issued by the laboratory explains the method fully and will be mailed free for the asking to anyone interested.

VANDERBILT'S YACHT SAILS

Wife Takes No Maid on Round-World Cruise.

By the Associated Press

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., Nov. 17.—W. K. Vanderbilt's yacht Ara sailed today on an eight months' round-the-world cruise in which the millionaire New York sportsman hopes to capture rare specimens of sea life for his private collection and for American museums.

Scientists, artists, fishing guides, mechanics and a surgeon, together with the most modern deep sea fishing equipment obtainable, combine to make the expedition one of the most complete of its kind ever attempted. Mrs. Vanderbilt decided to "go it alone" and left her maid behind.

Motorist Drowned in Creek.

JOPLIN, Mo., Nov. 17.—News of the drowning near Paola, Kan., yesterday of A. R. Hudson of Joplin, when his motor car was swept into a flooded creek, was received by his widow here today. Hudson, a district representative of the International Correspondence Schools of Scranton, Pa., left for Paola on business Monday, intending to return here last night. He came to Joplin 18 months ago from Kansas City. He was 37 years old and a native of England.

HELP KIDNEYS BY DRINKING MORE WATER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Help Neutralize Irritating Acids.

Kidney and bladder irritations often result from acidity, says a noted authority. The kidneys help filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it may remain to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread; the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is often one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Begin drinking lots of soft water, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast. Continue this for two or three days. This will help neutralize the acids in the system so they no longer are a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normal again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by acid irritation. Jad Salts causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant effervescent lithia-water drink which may quickly relieve your bladder irritation.

TONY FOLEY AND 10 OTHERS GET CHANGES OF VENUE

Judge Mulloy, Accused of Prejudice, Sends Cases to Judge Kiskaddon's Court.

Changes of venue to the court of Circuit Judge Kiskaddon were granted yesterday by Circuit Judge Mulloy to 11 persons under indictment in St. Louis County. Their attorneys alleged prejudice on the part of Judge Mulloy, who had no alternative but to grant the request. The cases had been docketed in his court for tomorrow.

The defendants are: Toney Foley, his brother, Paul Foley; Thomas J. Whitelaw and Basil Neel, charged with setting up and operating gambling devices; Joseph Tegethoff, Police Judge, Justice of the Peace and member of the town board in Brentwood, charged with transportation of a pint of liquor; Merle Lemcke, Arthur Withrow and Leo Gibbin, charged with assault resulting from a disturbance in Brentwood; Prosecuting Attorney Mueller, charged with accepting bribes in two cases, and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin, owners of the Empire Building, 6128 Easton avenue, Wellston, where one of Tony Foley's gambling establishments has been operated, charged with permitting gambling devices to be set up on the premises.

SLAIN WOMAN'S WILL FILED

Mrs. Ellen Griffin Left Bulk of Estate to Her Son.

Mrs. Ellen Griffin, 82 years old, who was found murdered last Tuesday in her home near Mascoutah, left the bulk of her estate to a son, Arthur, according to her will which was filed for probate in Belleville yesterday. The son receives a farm which, in case of his death, goes to his two children, Russell and Ethel. Russell was bequeathed a 37-acre farm and Ethel one of 20 acres.

The son has notified Sheriff Charles Ahrens of Belleville that he will give a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of his mother's slayer.

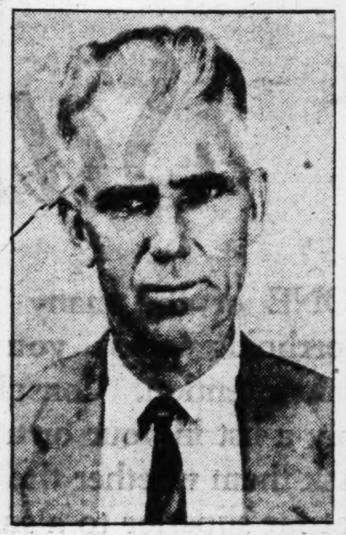
IT RESTORED ME TO GOOD HEALTH

Said Railroad Conductor, Who Says That Every Symptom of Ill Health Was Overcome Through Use of the Great Herb Extract Remedy.

"I feel that it is a duty upon my part and at the same time I find pleasure in telling my friends and everyone I come in contact with about Miller's Herb Extract or 'Herb Juice,' as most people call it. This medicine has completely restored me to good health and I wouldn't take hundreds of dollars for the health and strength it brought," said Mr. C. L. Stoll, well-known Missouri-Pacific Railroad conductor, who lives at 817 N. Second Street, De Soto, Mo., who is one of thousands to heartily indorse nature's great herb extract medicine.



MR. C. L. STOLL

"Now my work is a pleasure with good health every day, my runs do not cause me any trouble as was the case months ago before I found the right medicine to banish my ailments. Miller's Herb Extract is the only medicine I could ever find that just suited my case. I used various remedies, trying to get my health back, but was disappointed and discouraged time and again, money spent to no avail. I suffered terrible indigestion pains, every meal caused me distress. Gas pains would press up around my heart. I couldn't sleep or rest, would have to walk the floor to get relief. I had been troubled with constipation for years, would have to take some strong purgative every few days to get bowel action. No medicine I used would regulate my bowels, nothing would relieve and overcome the constipation condition. My system took up the poison, then I had aches and pains in my arms, shoulders, joints and all through my body. I felt like I had a bad case of rheumatism. I felt weak, nervous, no appetite, no energy, but, instead, my system was run down that I could see nothing ahead but misery, suffering and ill health. Then, a few months ago, I read in the papers something about Miller's Herb Extract or 'Herb Juice.' The people who had used it said it was the finest medicine on the market for such ailments. They got relief. This induced me to try a bottle, it worked wonders for me in freeing me from my ill health, those awful pains left me when the medicine cleaned out and regulated my system. No more aches and pains for me now. I am free from constipation, indigestion and bloating spells. I can eat anything I please without any trouble at all. In fact, my whole system seems to have been made over and I am feeling like a new man. And, too, what this medicine has done for me, it has done the same thing for my wife who was in poor health for years. She, too, has found health and strength by using the Herb Extract remedy. It is little wonder that we think it is the greatest laxative, system regulator and body builder ever offered to the people."

Hundreds call daily to see the Herb Juice Medicine Company's special representative, who has established headquarters at Wolff-Wilson Drug Store, Seventh and Washington, to learn more of this great medicine that is bringing health and happiness to so many St. Louis citizens.

BANKRUPT'S JAIL SENTENCE "FROM NOW ON" UPHELD

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Sustains Faris, Sets Aside Habeas Corpus for Offender.

"From now on."

That is the jail sentence for contempt of court which Bernard Reiss, bankrupt Morgan street shoe dealer, again faces, following an adverse decision yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Reiss first heard those fateful words from the lips of Federal Judge Faris in June, 1927, when the judge agreed with Bankruptcy Referee Coles and Reiss' creditors that Reiss owed his creditors $27,345 and had the money "salted away" somewhere and was in contempt for not producing it.

Reiss, who has a wife and four small children, protested that he had lost the money gambling. He asserted "from now on" meant for the rest of his life as he could not possibly dig up that much money. However, he offered to settle with his creditors for $9500. The offer was declined.

Already Reiss has spent three months in jail. A month after his original commitment he was released on bond under a writ of habeas corpus issued by Federal Judge Reeves at Kansas City, while Judge Faris was on vacation. When Reiss failed to produce the $27,345 at a hearing Dec. 30, Judge Davis, the third district judge to sit in the case, dissolved the writ and sent Reiss back to the Warrenton jail, where he remained until early last March, when he was again released on bond on an appeal in the habeas corpus action.

The Court of Appeals has now decided that Judge Reeves lacked jurisdiction in the case and exceeded his powers in setting aside the original jail sentence, which is now reimposed. Reiss must surrender and travel back to Warrenton within 30 days, under the Appellate Court ruling. He may elect, however, to carry the matter to the United States Supreme Court.

"The decision doesn't mean Reiss must stay in jail forever," explained Judge Faris. "He can get out as soon as he purges himself of contempt. That is up to him."

TERHUNE ACCEPTS OFFER OF AIRPLANE RIDE HOME

Zeppelin Stowaway to Be Guest of Curtiss-Robertson Co. in Trip From New York.

Clarence Terhune, Zeppelin stowaway, has accepted an offer to come from New York to his home here by airplane, it was announced yesterday by Maj. William B. Robertson, president of the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., at Lambert-St. Louis Field.

Maj. Robertson telegraphed Terhune following his return by steamer from Germany that a plane would be sent to New York for him. Maj. Robertson received a response from Terhune which read: "Have accepted your offer and will advise you of time I expect to leave." Dale Jackson, test pilot for the Curtiss-Robertson company, will take off for New York in a Curtiss-Robin cabin plane a day in advance of the time Terhune decides to start home.

Terhune also telegraphed Madison County authorities asking for the date of his birth in Alton and the full names of his parents. It is presumed the information is wanted in connection with some of the contracts tendered to him.

SAVED FROM PRISON BY DEATH

Tubercular Man, Under 10-Year Sentence, Succumbs in Cell

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Carl R. Bruce, 52 years old, arrested for practising a confidence game last August. He had tuberculosis and lay in the county jail hospital until arraignment yesterday. In spite of his attorney's advice, he pleaded guilty.

"One to 10 years in Joliet prison is the best I can do," said the Court. "Yes, I know," responded Bruce, "but I'll not live to serve it out." Soon after the prisoner was returned to jail a guard went to tell Bruce to prepare for the trip to Joliet. Bruce was dead.

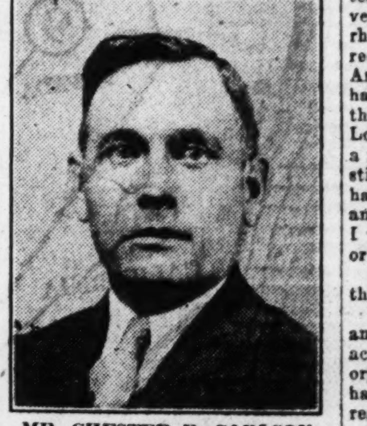
WELL-KNOWN FERGUSON MAN COMES OUT STRONG FOR WELDONA TABLETS

Had Rheumatism Since 1917—Joints Creaked and Snapped—Ached and Pained—Feels Like New Man

WANTS SKEPTICS TO INVESTIGATE RECOVERY

The Weldona representative who is meeting the public at a local drug store is called by his friends a "rheumatic nut," because he talks rheumatism, thinks rheumatism, and dreams rheumatism. He is enthusiastic about his subject and can certainly give some very interesting talks on this common ailment. Judging from the following letter one can understand his enthusiasm.



MR. CHESTER R. CARLSON

Mr. Chester R. Carlson, who lives at 325 Railroad Ave., Ferguson, came forward with the following report: "For eleven years I suffered with rheumatism in my left arm. I could not raise it to my shoulder to comb my hair or put on my coat and could only sleep on my right side. My left hip was very painful and it was difficult for me to get up from a chair after sitting any length of time. My knees creaked and snapped and pained me on going up or down stairs. I think I have tried about everything recommended for rheumatism, but nothing reached my case until I obtained Weldona tablets. I have always criticized anyone giving testimonials, but I believe I am conveying a blessing to sufferers of rheumatism in telling them how I recovered. I am an agent for the American Railway Express Co., and have been with them for twenty-three years, so am well known in St. Louis. Weldona tablets have made a new man out of me. The pain and stiffness has left and I can get my hand to my head as well as ever. If anyone wishes to investigate my case I would be glad to have them write or call on me at any time."

$1000 reward to anyone proving that testimonials are not genuine.

Weldona is absolutely harmless, and its use will not upset the stomach, affect the heart or any other organ. It contains no dope or other harmful ingredients and is full of results for rheumatics.

The Weldona representative who now meets the public every day at Walgreen's Drug Store, 514 Washington Ave., St. Louis, gladly explains more about this remedy and gives out the 24-page, fully illustrated and interesting books, entitled: "Germs of Rheumatism," which are absolutely free of charge to all who call or write for them.

THE McCLEARY SANITARIUM

The largest institution in the world devoted exclusively to the treatment of rectal and colonic diseases.

15,000 Patients from Every State, Canada and Many Foreign Countries.

Many Suffer Needlessly

Thousands suffer from various ailments without knowing that rectal trouble in some form or other is directly responsible for it. Many men and women who have thus spent years, not knowing what was wrong with them, have found new health when these troubles were corrected. You can never hope to be well until the cause of your trouble has been removed.

The McCleary treatment finds favor with men and women, young and old, for it entirely does away with harsh surgical methods of treating hemorrhoids or piles. All the discomfort and dangers of ether and chloroform have been eliminated.

A Treacherous Affliction Healed Without Surgery

THE OLD THEORY that surgery was the only method by which hemorrhoids (piles) could be successfully treated has been wholly disproved. This treacherous affliction which slowly but surely undermines the health of its victims can be healed totally and successfully without recourse to surgical aid.... As pioneers in the non-surgical treatment of hemorrhoids (piles), Dr. McCleary and his associates have established a wonderful reputation for their skill in treating all curable Colon and Rectal conditions. Their services have been sought by men and women from every state, from Canada, Cuba, Mexico and other foreign countries. Their reference list now contains the names of over 15,000 persons, including business men and women, farmers, bankers, teachers, ministers, in fact those from almost every vocation in life.

These Symptoms are Warnings

Nature sets up danger signals to warn us. If these warnings are heeded in time much suffering and often grave danger can be avoided. If you have been troubled with headaches, nervousness, faulty nutrition, stomach and liver troubles, constipation, etc., and have been unable to overcome them, you should write at once for our Free Book and learn if your symptoms are not due to some rectal or colonic trouble.

So confident are we of results that we say to one and all alike, "if we treat you for any rectal trouble that we fail to cure, you need not pay us one cent." Send for your copy of our Free Book today and learn the facts.

Illustrated Book FREE!

We have just prepared a new book describing the McCleary treatment which is fully illustrated, printed in colors and copyrighted. It explains, in a very interesting and instructive manner, the various kinds of Hemorrhoids (piles) and other rectal troubles and the mild McCleary treatment that has proved so successful. A copy of this book will be sent postpaid, free to anyone. Use the coupon or send name and address in a letter or postal.

IF YOU ARE ONE of the many hundreds in every community who suffer from hemorrhoids (piles), you should give so important a matter as your health immediate attention. Consult with any of our former patients (we will be glad to supply a list in your own community) and learn the truth from those who know. Ask them whether the few mild non-surgical treatments here are not far superior to a surgical operation involving confinement in bed or hospital. A complete list will be sent you on request. It is very likely that it contains the names of some of your friends or acquaintances.

Our reference list includes the names of over eleven hundred residents of Greater Kansas City, and our list of former patients from Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska, Colorado, Illinois, Iowa and Arkansas would fill several newspaper pages.

Simply use the coupon below, or if you wish you may write us in strictest confidence, describing your case as accurately as possible, and your letter will be completely answered in detail. In either event, our book and large reference list will be sent free postpaid in plain wrapper.

WEEK'S SMALL LOAN CHANGE EXPLANATION

That Those Who Sold Stock Before Election Have Been Buying It Back and Paying for It Outright Will Probably Prove Most Plausible One, Review Says.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Evening Post in copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"Those that liquidated their stock before the election in the hope of getting it back cheaper afterward have spent an uncomfortable week. The bull market instead of losing its momentum is developing a breadth and buoyancy that surpasses the wildest dreams of the past. Six million share sales no longer provide the thrill that came not so long ago with a 3,000,000 share session. In all walks of American life the stock market has become the one topic in conversation to which all can contribute. When the craze for equity issues reaches this stage no amount of statistics can point the way to its end. Even the country's best bankers have been fooled by this market, and too soon unloaded stock upon the public which took it eagerly asking for more. Before the election this fall many investors, uncertain how the results would affect the stock market, chose to play safe. They sold stock in the full realization that they might be obliged to pay a few points up in refilling their investment portfolios.

One Explanation.

"It was inevitable that this week's wholly unexpected showing in the brokers' loan account should ignite the 6,700,000 share session with prices rising to a new record high that it did. The common interpretation of the market had been that stocks were passing from strong into weak hands. In consequence an advance of $150,000,000 in brokers loans would not have been a surprise. Loans had been mounting for 11 weeks in succession, but the activity of post-election week suggested distribution and a record rise in loans. When the weekly reserve statement revealed so modest an increase as $1,849,000, the financial district was stunned. It began to seek ingenious explanations until the truth of what had happened began to dawn. In the end the simple explanation probably will turn out to have been the most plausible. Those that sold stock before election have been buying it back and paying for it outright.

Reserve System Changes.

"By purchasing more than its usual volume of bankers' acceptances this fall the regional institutions have enabled member banks to cut down substantially their dependence upon the reserve banks. In good part the relaxation in money rates this autumn has been produced by this reduction from $1,200,000,000 to $858,000,000 in discounts. Outstanding bills jumped $118,000,000 last month. Their growth of late has broken all records. As part of its obligation to commerce the reserve system has taken a large portion of the new bills which, with the prevailing discrepancy in interest rates, were not particularly attractive to investors. The report that got around this week was that the reserve bank soon would reduce these purchases. But in that possibility there is no new threat for the stock market. As the year draws to a close the reserve banks always reduce their bill purchases. And they do so for no other reason than that the volume of bills offered normally falls off then.

Question of Rates.

"Nothing immediately on the horizon suggests any radical shift in money rates. Call money is in supply at 6 per cent for the reason that the peak of the autumn demands commercially has been passed and the holiday demands have not set in. Doubtless the Thanksgiving period will witness the usual currency outflow and, falling near the month end settlement date, may tighten funds somewhat. Yet the more significant losses in currency that the approach of the holidays still lie several weeks away. Meanwhile, more gold has been returned to these shores than had been anticipated and is using its full measure of influence for ease psychologically and actually. It still seems doubtful whether the reserve authorities will seek to curb speculation by any further immediate shift in the rediscount rate. The medicine might not work and nobody realizes this better than the reserve officials."

Corporation Reports.

Increased net profit for the first nine months is reported by Weston Electrical Instrument Corporation of Newark, N. J., of $380,430, equal to $2.19 a share on 75,000 no par class "A" shares and $1.44 a share on 150,000 no par common shares. This compares to $349,778, or $1.[illegible] on 87,000 class "A" shares and $1.20 a common share in the corresponding 1927 period.

Utica Gas & Electric Co. of Utica, N. Y., ended the 12 months on Sept. 30 with net income of $1,111,035 against $1,168,[illegible] in the preceding 12 months.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Columbian Carbon Co. of New York, and subsidiaries earned in the first nine months of the year $2,105,851, equal to $5.21 a share, a gain of nearly 40 per cent. Over the corresponding period 1927, when $1,511,601 was earned.

GRAINS CLOSE DOWN IN WEEK-END TRADE

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, Nov. 17.—Wheat futures closed lower at the final session of the week on the local market, corn also finishing down on report of prospects for improved weather. The latter grain sold higher early in day. The reaction in domestic wheat market was credited to view there was observance of any impetus to buying in the President's grange speech.

In the cash grain market Saturday No. 2 red wheat of choice quality was 1 cent higher. There was a demand for bright starchy wheat, but dark types continued slow. Mixing grades and No. 3s, however, were in better demand. Offerings cleared pretty closely. Hard wheat was steady. Demand was fair and mainly from shippers. Low grades were wanted by elevator interests and chicken feed buyers. High moisture corn was unchanged to 1 cent lower, and No. 3 yellow 2 to 2½ cents off. Low grades with billing for export and accumulative accounts were in fair demand, but mills and industries still bought only for their immediate needs. Oats were ½ cent higher. All types were in good demand from local trade and shippers and a close clearance was effected.

Fractional gains were shown by corn at opening while wheat declined fractionally and ruled so early. Liverpool wheat closed unchanged on December and March and ⅛d lower on May. Winnipeg was down ¼c early.

December wheat opened at $1.15⅝-¾; May wheat $1.23⅞, December corn 87¼c and May corn 91¾c.

Local wheat receipts, which were 89,600 bushels, compared with 74,200 a week ago and 49,000 a year ago, included 34 cars local and 30 through. Corn receipts, which were 131,600 bushels, compared with 88,200 a week ago and 4200 a year ago, included 85 cars local and 9 through. Oats receipts, which were 76,000 bushels, compared with 60,000 a week ago and 78,000 a year ago included 32 cars local and 6 through. Hay receipts were 13 cars local and 6 through.

WHEAT PRICES DOWN BUT MARKET IS NOT LARGE

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Selling out on the part of traders who had been looking for immediate new farm relief developments did much to press wheat values downward today. In this connection, President Coolidge's address to the National Grange last night furnished no apparent fresh motive for buying, and prices gave way to a moderate extent as a result today in a market that on the whole was by no means a large scale affair, and was therefore easily influenced.

Closing quotations on wheat were easy, ¼c to ¼c net lower, corn finished ⅝c to ¾c off, oats unchanged to ⅛@¼c up, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 5c.

Some wheat traders had of late incorrectly assumed that in speaking to the National Grange, President Coolidge would take occasion to outline more definitely than heretofore plans for farm relief legislation. Considerable recent buying has been on the basis that this course would be followed and when the attempt to anticipate a hoped-for advance in prices failed of success, more or less selling today was naturally a sequel. Commission houses and pit speculators were the chief sellers, with December delivery showing the most weakness.

Firmness of the Liverpool wheat market despite prospects of heavy world shipments helped somewhat to counteract the general downward trend of wheat values here. Besides, Kansas advices were at hand telling of discovery of Hessian fly eggs on new wheat in Northern Kansas. Meanwhile, although the Winnipeg wheat market displayed relative strength, export demand today for wheat from North America appeared slack, no sales of consequence being heard of. Incidentally too, dispatches from Argentina said weather condition there were more auspicious and the wheat harvest becoming general.

Corn at first showed a decided upturn in price on account of continued wet weather throughout the corn belt. Later, however, prospects of clearing conditions head a tendency to weaken the market, and there was also much notice taken of the fact that arrivals of corn at Chicago today totaled 298 cars, against 145 cars a week ago and only 70 cars on the corresponding day last year. Moreover, messages from the seaboard intimated that but little corn export demand was in evidence.

Oats displayed a firm undertone notwithstanding downturns in corn and wheat. Virtually no rural offerings of oats to arrive were received.

Scattered buying steadied the provision market in the face of weakness of hog values.

Dry Goods Market Review.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Moderately increased sales of fine ray for dress wear were reported. Fine lawns in the gray were sold from stock at slight concessions. Blanket stocks are being moved more freely. Printed silks are more active for spring. Heavyweight burlaps have advanced sharply in Calcutta markets. Worsted dress and light weight coating materials for spring and being bought steadily. Sheeting for the bag trade were in a slightly increased demand. Print cloths were irregular.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.

Venezuelan Oil production in October totaled 10,519,588 barrels, with a daily average of 339,342 barrels, a new high record. This compares to 9,447,503 barrels, or 315,917 barrels daily, in September, the previous record, and 6,023,704 barrels, or 194,313 daily, in Oct. 1927.

Shipments of soft coal over the Reading System in September were 1,426,284 tons against 1,577,382 tons in September, 1927.

Heavy melting steel scrap No. 1 has declined 25c a ton. Quotations were $17 to $17.50 a ton, daily metal trade reports.

Western Union Telegraph company's executive committee has authorized the expenditure of $4,000,000 for installation of additional Simplex Printer automatic sending and receiving apparatus. This will bring the total amount to be spent on this project to more than $10,000,000.

Commercial failures last week numbered 440 against 363 in the preceding week and 442 in the corresponding 1927 week, R. G. Dun & Co. reports. Decreases, however, were reported in the South, Pacific Coast and West.

Total assets of the New York Central Railroad company on Sept. 30, were $3,573,044,832 against $1,529,366,183 on Sept. 30, 1927. Profit and loss surplus was $219,107,887 against $202,465,288 on Sept. 30, 1927.

After a period of comparative dullness in which it displayed indifference to stock market movements, the New York bank stock market has lately displayed renewed activity. Today many issues were in strong demand, with National City Bank at $965 and $975, up about $20 over Friday's close and $50 on the week. American Exchange Irving Trust Co. was $490 bid, up $10 on day and $40 on week. First National Bank at $4524 and $4575 advanced $150.

A New York Produce Exchange membership has been sold for $23,800, a new high record price and an advance of $2800 over the previous sale.

Horace E. Dodge, on his return from Europe, announced the Horace E. Dodge Boat Works, Inc., of Detroit, would build 400 boats in 1929, including three new models.

The Union Pacific Railroad is disclosed as the holder of $245,868,000 in marketable securities, with the bulk of it in stocks, bonds, notes and equipment trust certificates of other railroads.

The average pig iron production in France in the first nine months reached 834,000 metric tons, compared to 774,000 in the corresponding 1927 period. Steel production was 770,000 metric tons, against 689,000 in the first nine months of 1927. Pig iron production in England in September decreased for the fourth successive month to 503,900 tons from 591,500 tons in September, 1927. Steel production totaled 718,000 tons, a decrease of 60,000 tons from September, 1927.

BEST-CLYMER STOCK FEATURE OF WEEK

Leads in Volume of Transactions and Price Advance for Period—Gain Mostly Lost.

Best-Clymer was the best climber on the St. Louis Stock Exchange during the past week, going up 7 points on a turnover of more than 2000 shares. The advance was accompanied by report of negotiations being carried on between that company and another. From low point of week, 18¾, there was upward movement that carried the price to 26 from which level there was 2 point reaction Friday. At final session week there was 3½ point drop on 30 shares, leaving net gain only 1½ points for week.

Skouras was another feature, recording advance of 4 points and reaching a new high for year. Transactions aggregated about 1700 shares. The top for the week was 57.

Wagner Electric was above previous week's close only one day of past week and during the period ranged lower. The stock sold ex-dividend during the week.

International Shoe sold at fractional gain to unchanged level, Pickrel Walnut at unchanged basis, Securities Investment higher to lower and Mahoney-Ryan fraction lower to unchanged.

New York Sugar.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—It was a quiet day in the raw sugar market, with no sales confirmed. The undertone however, was steady with local refiners willing to pay the old prive level of 2 1-16c for Cubas, cost and freight, and perhaps willing to pay even 1-32c more in desirable positions, but holders, influenced by a renewed interest from United Kingdom buyers, were offering nothing below 2⅛c. It was rumored that the United Kingdom had bought 6000 tons of Cubas for December-January shipment at 10s 1½d cif U. K., equal to 1.95 for Cuba, but this could not be confirmed, although it was believed that foreign buyers were willing to make purchases at this price. The spot price was unchanged at 3.83 duty paid.

The refined market was unchanged. The trade continue to withdraw against old contracts, but new business is slow in developing. Some think that the trade covered their requirements for the remainder of the month on the recent buying movement and that no real demand will develop much before the latter part of this month or the early part next. Prices were quoted at 5.20 for fine granulated.

Raw sugar futures closed steady.

New York Cottonseed Oil.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The cottonseed oil market was moderately active and firm today, active months closing 7 to 16 points higher. November was nominally 50 points higher at 10.10c bid. Offerings were light and prices responded readily to short covering in December and scattered absorption induced by the renewed firmness of crude oil, compounds and the steadiness of cotton.

Sales, 7900 barrels; prime crude, 8.37½c; prime summer yellow spot, 10.05; Dec. closed, 10.05c; Jan., 10.23c; March, 10.40c; May, 10.55c.

MORE CONCERN OVER ENGLAND'S GOLD FLOW

By Arthur W. Kiddy.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Although there is growing concern here at the extent of the gold drain from England there is no disposition as yet to take an alarmist view. The bank rate is not expected to move unless further developments take place and the loss of gold becomes more serious.

The financial position of the United State has probably never received more close attention than now and it is rapidly assuming all the fascination of a problem.

If votes were taken in England as to the likelihood of a comparatively early break in Wall street, I fancy a majority would indicate by their ballots that a break is on the way, but a small minority believe the speculative group is so rich in resources that prices are likely to go much higher before any change in course.

A new school of thought is emerging in England, and doubtless also in the United States. This school affirms that large judicisious purchase of ordinary common shares is thoroughly consistent with sound investment principles and that, especially in a country like the United States the purchase of common stocks or equities must ultimately give satisfactory results to the holder, even though the actual dividend yield may be nominal.

Appointment of Sir Ernest Harvey, ex-controller of the Bank of England, as a director marks a break in the two and a half century old tradition of the Bank of England that no previous bank official has ever been elected to that position. This appointment, together with recent appointments on the bank court, undoubtedly marks a determination of the directors to insure absolute expert management for the bank.

This, of course, explains also the retention of Montagu Norman as governor for another year, since he is not only an expert banker with a perfect knowledge of international finance, but also a man of means and leisure able to devote his entire time to the bank.

COMPARATIVELY NARROW RANGE TO COTTON MARKET

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The cotton market today continued inactive with comparatively narrow, although irregular fluctuations with interest centered largely in December liquidation and the transferring of accounts both ways into the later months. January advanced to 19.50c but reacted to 19.44c, closing at 19.45c. The general market closed barely steady at 3 points higher to 13 points lower.

The opening was steady at 5 points higher to 1 point lower which was considered a poor response to steadier Liverpool cables anticipated or to reports of heavy rains in the Southwest which were expected to check the movement of the crop. The South sold early and during the day there was more or less selling for local and Southwestern account, while the December longs were selling in the form of liquidation. Spinners were again on the buying side and spot houses bought December in the way of transferring hedges to the later months and this demand absorbed the general liquidation while December longs were the best buyers of the distant positions.

The news of the day was not very inspiring either way and the market was still in a waiting position pending some new constructive developments. The December price advanced early to 19.58c, declined to 19.51c and closed at 19.54c. The distant positions showed the greatest losses, especially October which sold down to 18.80c. Trade accounts indicated less active sales of cloths for the week although it was said that a fair business was still in progress in some quarters. Private cable from Liverpool said that trade calling and continental and bombay buying there had absorbed hedge selling and that there was a fair cloth demand from the continent and South America although yarns wre slow. Cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week was estimated at 202,598 bales against 122,494 last year.

Spot quiet, middling 19.70c.

New Orleans Spot.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 17.—Spot cotton closed steady and unchanged. Sales 5049; low middling, 17.26c; middling, 18.76c; good middling, 19.16c. Receipts, 8137; stock, 293,626.

St. Louis Spot Cotton.

Spot cotton was unchanged in St. Louis today. Quotations: Good ordinary, 13.25c; low middling 16.25c; middling 18.25c; good middling 19.00c; middling fair 19.50c.

BOND PRICES FOLLOW AN IRREGULAR COURSE

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Prices followed an irregular course in the bond market today under the opposing influences of week-end profit-taking and highly selective buying. Total sales $5,202,000, the market again failing to share in the big business of the stock market.

Andes Copper 7s were among the few strong features, touching a new top at 206⅝ and closing around 204, up more than a point net. Kayser & Co. 5½s extended its gains in early trading and established a new high price of 129, but closed unchanged about a point lower.

Public Service of New Jersey 4½s again were active, crossing 168 into new high territory and closing 2 points net up above 167.

Anaconda Copper 7s reached their previous high, but closed nearly 3 points lower. Tennessee Copper 6s sagged about half as much. Oils generally were under pressure. Many industrials closed unchanged, although a few, such as Goodyear Tire 5s, United Drug 5s, Penn Dixie Cement 6s, Loew's 6s, and some sugar issues, finished fractionally higher.

Profit-taking caused recessions also in the railroad group, with such active issues as St. Paul 5s, Erie 4s, Pennsylvania 4s, Southern Pacific Refunding 4s, and Wisconsin Central 4s seeking lower levels. New York Tractions continued to gain.

Montecatini 7s and Pirelli 7s supplied the strength of the foreign list, both reaching new tops. Fiat 7s with warrants sold off about 3 points, while the same issue, ex-warrants, closed fractionally higher. U. S. Government obligation made small gains.

WEEK'S METAL MARKET REVIEW

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—There was a slight slowing down in the steel market during the past week both in the volume of new business received and in the operations of the mills. This was looked upon as seasonal and a reflection of the previous activity, however, and had no apparent influence on values. In fact, prices for the next quarter were strong with producers naming advances of $2 per ton for sheets, as well as smaller advances for bars, shapes and plates. So far business for delivery after the turn of the year had not been large, but steel mills are believed to be in a strong position.

Pig iron was in good demand and prices were firm.

Although buying of copper has been rather moderate, producers are said to continue in a strong position. October statistics showed that although production was at a new high peak, it was exceeded by record shipments, leaving refined stocks at the lowest level in recent years. Some of home consumers are buying filling-in lots but most business is now for January-February shipment, with the price unchanged at 16 cents for electrolytic delivered in the Connecticut Valley.

The market for tin was quiet but the undertone was firm and the market felt the influence of the announcement by a leading manufacturer of tin plate of an advance for next quarter of 10 cents per box.

The market for lead was quiet with some price shading reported by producers.

The demand for zinc was small and prices were unchanged. Ore was steady with reports of further curtailment of production.

Antimony was easy, especially for nearby delivery and sellers were reported as offering more freely.

NEW YORK RUBBER MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Rubber futures opened steady; Dec., 17.50; March, 17.80; May, 18.20.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Rubber futures closed firm; Dec. $17.70; March $18; May $18.30.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Rubber, spot; smoked ribbed, 17¾.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—With the strong support of a phenomenally insatiable public appetite for stocks, the stock market withstood a flood of professional profit taking in remarkable fashion today. The market ended the week of the wildest speculation ever known without stopping for breath, total sales in the two-hour session aggregating 3,168,400 shares, just under the Saturday record of 3,207,000 shares a week ago.

Although the Associated Press average prices of 20 industrials and 20 rails were depressed about a quarter of a point and a number of recent favorites suffered net losses of 2 to 5 points, fully two score issues from all sections of the list again chalked up record high prices for the year or longer, several gains extending to 10 points. Naturally the ticker was of little use, requiring three hours and 28 minutes to record the two hours transactions.

Enormous Profit Taking.

The enormous profit taking was inspired by sober reflection as to the probable technical position of the market, with total sales for the week up to last night approaching 28,000,000 shares. Fear of a fairly thorough "shake out" developed in some professional circles, and a number of commission houses advised their clients to take profits and await a reaction before buying again. Highly optimistic trade and industrial reviews, some indicating that industrial earnings this year will exceed anything in the way of prosperity yet experienced, however, bolstered public confidence, and buying orders poured in from all over the country.

Bankers look for fairly stable credit conditions next week, with the midmonth disbursements returning to the banks. The hope of further improvement through gold imports from England was checked, temporarily at least, by a rise in sterling cables above the gold point.

Montgomery Ward a Climber.

Montgomery Ward was again the high climber of the day, shooting up 10 points to another new peak at 424. The buying was in part inspired by a glowing statement as to the company's prospects by Arthur W. Cutten. The stock has been lifted from the year's low of 117 to the present figure.

International Harvester, Midland Steel Products preferred, and Warren Brothers also gained about 10 points each in less active trading, Harvester recording a new peak at 335. General I Cream a relatively inactive issue, made an extreme gain of 7 points, while American Agricultural Chemical, American Radiator, Florsheim Shoe A, Liquid Carbonic, May Department Stores, National Bellas Hess, and Park and Tilford stepped up 2 to 5 points to new tops.

Radio Goes Through 300.

Radio pushed through the 300 mark, fell back to 293, surged ahead 11 points to a record price of 304, then settled back to 301½, a net gain of 4 points. Kolster Radio was in demand and advanced about 2 points to a new top at 93½. There were several rumors.

General Railway Signal and Westinghouse Air Brake made gains around 4 points. While some of the steels encountered profit taking, Bethlehem mounted to 81,, a new peak, and Sloss Sheffield made an extreme gain of nearly 6 points. U. S. Steel fell back a point.

Rise in Utilities.

North American lead the utilities with a jump of 7 points to a record price at 90, while Consolidated Gas and Brooklyn Edison also broke into new high ground. In the coppers, Anaconda touched a new peak, then eased, and American Smelting equalled its previous high mark, but Cerro de Pasco and Greene Cananea were sent down 2 and 3 points. Miami, Nevada and Federal Mining sold at new high levels. In the oils, Phillips, Shell Union, and Standard of California touched new highs, and Houston climbed 4 points.

Packard Motor rose more than 3 points to a new top, but Chrysler fell back about that amount in realizing, and General Motors, new and old, were again heavy.

A. M. Byers, Chicago Pneumatic Tool, Colorado Fuel & Iron, Curtiss Aero, Pullman, Sears-Roebuck, Western Union and Wright Aero sold down 2 to 5 points.

Foreign exchanges generally were stronger in response to the rally in sterling. The Canadian dollar returned to parity for the first time since late in September.

SHARES SOLD

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Total sales for the week on the New York Stock Exchange were 31,017,300 shares, compared with 21,918,400 last week (5 days). Total sales from Jan. 1 to date were 760,411,100 shares, compared with 495,147,500 a year ago.

WEEK'S STOCK SALES TOTAL 31,017,300

All Trading Records on New York Stock Exchange Broken as Speculation Carries Scores of Issues Up $5 to Nearly $50 a Share.

ST. LOUIS TRADERS HELP TO SWELL WEEK'S STOCK VOLUME TO RECORD SIZE

ST. LOUIS speculators and investors helped to make the record business reported transacted on the New York Stock Exchange the past week, judging from the way they flocked to the brokerage houses and intently watched the movements of prices on the board.

The board rooms of the large house, members of the New York Exchange, were crowded at periods during day, especially around noon time and in closing hour. Increased volume of business was reported. New traders appeared, too, it was said.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17. — All trading records on the New York Stock Exchange were smashed this week in a gigantic outburst of speculation which carried scores of issues $5 to nearly $50 a share above last week's closing quotations. The daily average of sales ran above 5,000,000 shares, with the stock ticker delayed one to two hours in printing the final transactions.

The tremendous demand for stocks overshadowed all other financial developments of the week. In view of the small increase of less than $2,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans, many observers interpreted the rise in prices as due to an enormous investment demand, particularly on the part of traders who had disposed on their stocks before election in the expectation of buying them back on the recation which they thought would follow the first outburst of election enthusiasm, but who apparently returned to the market without waiting for the decline. Other commentators were more skeptical and inclined to await the stock exchange member loan figures before accepting the "purchase for investment theory."

Advance Not Uniform.

While the week's advance was by no means uniform, there were no wide open breaks, and such recessions as occurred were lost sight of in the mad whirl of speculative favorites to new high records. The Bond Market failed to participate extensively in the outburst of bullish enthusiasm. Although most of the small buyers shifted their activities to the stock market, there were some large institutional purchases of high grade bonds. New offerings were approximately $57,000,000 as against $75,000,000 the week before. A big gain in new issues is expected next week when more than $100,000,000 in municipal issues, including one of $55,000,000 by the City of New York, come into the market.

Money Relatively Steady.

Money rates held relatively steady, in view of the turbulent advance in stock prices. Call money ranged between 6 and 6½ per cent, with no important change in rates anticipated until the holiday demands begin to make themselves felt. Gold withdrawals in Great Britain for export to this country have passed the $40,000,000 mark on the current movement.

One of the most interesting developments of the week was the announcement that the volume of dollar acceptances outstanding had established a new high record on Oct. 31, with a total of $1,122,746,889, an increase of $118,580,709 over the end of the preceding month. This reflects the increased use of acceptances in financing the marketing and distribution of seasonal products, and a corresponding reduction in the use of commercial paper.

Estimate Proves Wide.

Price movements bore little relation to the day-to-day news developments, although all sorts of merger, dividend and stock splitup rumors circulated throughout the financial district. The rally received its chief impetus from the surprisingly small increase in Federal Reserve brokers' loans, whereas Wall street had been led to believe that the gain would run $100,000,000 or more.

The rapidity of the advances in such high-priced issues as Radio, Montgomery-Ward, International Harvester, Greene Cananea Copper, Sears-Roebuck, National Bellas Hess, Western Union and Wright Aeronautical clearly indicated the existence of a small floating supply of those stocks.

New high records for the year, or longer, also were established in stocks of which millions of shares are outstanding such as U. S. Steel common, Anaconda Copper, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Sinclair Oil and Packard Motors. Extreme gains in the volatile issues ran from $5 to nearly $25 a share each of full days.

Weekly steel trade reviews reported the usual seasonal slackening in operations, but a further advance in pig iron carried the iron age composite price to the highest level since July, 1927. There was report of a large foreign and domestic deman for copper. There were declarat of a few extra dividends amo oils.

Motor shares generally encountered strong selling resistance.

Ticker Delays.

Ticker delays were so long that professional tr s found it impossible to trade ainst the tape, and some of them actually withdrew from the market for the time being. Their places were taken, however, by a small army of speculators throughout the country.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

By the Associated Press.

New York, Nov. 17.—Total transactions in bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today amounted to $5,202,000; previous day's sales $11,190,000; week ago, $6,2,000; year ago, $7,062,000. Total transactions from Jan. 1 to date were $2,643,404,000, compared with $2,950,362,000 a year ago, and $2,617,773,000 two years ago.

Quotations on all Liberty Bonds are in dollars and thirty-seconds of a dollar; that, is, for instance a sale printed $99—24 means $99 and twenty-four thirty-seconds of a dollar, and not $99.24.

Foreign Exchange

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The Evening Post in weekly copyrighted foreign exchange review, says:

"Nearly all interest in the foreign exchange market during the past week was attached to the trading in sterling. Exchange on London, which has been in steady pressure, partly from offerings of security bills in large amounts, dropped on Wednesday to below $4.84¾ for cables. Gold imports amounting to over $8,000,000 engaged in the middle of the week had an influence in reducing the supply and in the past few days there has been heavy trading on forward contracts for month-end settlements. Yesterday covering of shorts and special banking buying caused strength and the market rallied ⅛ of a point from its low level.

"Continental rates followed sterling all through the week, exchange on Italy and France both advancing in the past few days and a firmer tone developed in Scandinavian exchange. There was a special movement, however, in Dutch exchange, guilders moving up steadily all through the week and selling yesterday at 40.15 for cables. The low record for the year was made on Aug. 14, when guilders sold at 40.06.

"Japanese exchange was under pressure during the first half of the week, falling over 20 points to 46.40 for cables.

"Canadian exchange, after selling at 99.90, became active and strong in yesterday's trading and rallied to 99.97."

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—Foreign exchange quotations were as follows:

M'KECHNIE WILL NOT MANAGE CARDINALS IN 1929, HIS FRIENDS SAY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Nov. 17.—William B. McKechnie of Wilkinsburg is through as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, the club which he led to a National League pennant last summer, according to the Pittsburg Press.

McKechnie has already been informed that he will not manage the Cards next year, although public announcement has not been made by President Sam Breadon of the club, the paper says.

McKechnie paid a visit to St. Louis about 10 days ago at the invitation of President Breadon. It was believed at the time that he had gone there to talk over a new contract.

It now develops, according to the press, that he was called to St. Louis to receive the information that his employers had decided not to retain him as manager of the Cards. It is said that at the conference he was offered a position with the Cardinals as coach and was told that if he did not care to remain in St. Louis he could manage the Rochester club of the International League, one of the Cardinal farms.

McKechnie is going to turn down both of these propositions, according to one of his friends, who said yesterday that Bill had not made up his mind as to his future, the story continues.

It is possible that Billy Southworth, 1928 manager at Rochester, will be selected to lead the Cardinals next year, the press says. The reason given McKechnie by Breadon for not retaining him, it is said, was that Bill was not aggressive enough.

McKechnie lost out as manager once before after leading a team to a championship. He managed the Pirates when they won the league title and the world-championship in 1925.

The next season he was again in command but internal dissention broke out. That was the year that Carey, Adams and Bigbee were fired before the season ended with Fred Clarke, vice president of the club, and Stuffy McInnis, following them into the discard after the campaign was over. McKechnie went along with Clarke and then caught on with the Cardinals as coach under Manager Bob O'Farrell.

The Post-Dispatch was unable to reach Breadon for a statement last night and Branch Rickey, vice president and business manager of the Cardinals, said he was not the person to discuss such a matter.

WEST FRANKFORT PILES UP 98-0 SCORE AGAINST CARBONDALE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill., Nov. 17.

WEST FRANKFORT COMMUNITY HIGH SCHOOL football team won from Carbondale this afternoon in a one-sided contest, 98 to 0.

West Frankfort has a perfect record for the season and is a strong contender for the Little Ten Conference championship. Herrin is the only school able to score against West Frankfort so far.

Dr. Willing Wins Oregon Title

PORTLAND, Nov. 17.—Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland amateur, won the $5000 Oregon open golf championship title here this afternoon with a card of 295 for the 72-hole tournament.

Johnny Farrell, U. S. open champion, was second with 296 and Abe Espinosa, Chicago, third with 298.

Heavy fog in the morning played havoc with scores. Willing, however, overcame this handicap and shot a 76 for the morning round, coming back with a 73 in the afternoon. Farrell closed the morning session with a 78 and then went around in 71, one under par.

Abe Espinosa, Chicago professional, who had led the field the first two days, lost his chance for the title by scoring 78 in the morning round and 74 in the afternoon, with 298 for the 72 holes.

Willing now holds, in addition to his title won today, the Pacific Northwest amateur and the Pacific Northwest open championships.

Tommy Armour, the defending champion, closed the tournament with an even 300. Walter Hagen, British open titleholder, shot 302.

Others scored the following totals:

Billy Burke, New York, 300.
John Golden, Paterson, N. J., 300.
Tommy Armour, Washington, D. C., 300.
Walter Hagen, New York, 302.
Horton Smith, Joplin, Mo., 303.
Mortie Dutra, Tacoma, 303:
John Junior, Portland, 303.
Ed Dudley, Hollywood, 304.

Hoover In Stand as Stanford Wins

CALIFORNIA, Nov. 7.—Parading in gridiron review before its most illustrious alumnis—Herbert Hoover—Stanford crushed a fighting Washington husky eleven today, 12-0 after a fierce battle that saw the Cardinals snatch victory from the air when line plays failed.

From an inconspicuous seat in the Stanford rooting section, and unnoticed by most of the 20,000 spectators, the President-elect viewed as nerve-tingling a game as this huge stadium has rocked to in many seasons.

A Cardinal triumph was written into the records of 1928, but only after a bitter struggle filled with gripping movements of uncertainty in the first half.

For two periods, the greatly favored Stanford squad was played off its feet by a Washington band of stalwarts who came down from the timber country, already three times beaten in coast conference clashes and conceded nothing in the way of a chance with the warriors that tour the gridiron under the Cardinal and white colors.

Cuban Flyweight Wins.

By the Associated Press.

KEN STRONG LEADS ATTACK, SCORES THREE TOUCHDOWNS

By Brian Bell,
Associated Press Sports Writer.

YANKEE STADIUM, N. Y., Nov. 17.—Ken Strong, a rugged football player if there is one available in the country, today showed the University of Missouri why he is the leading scorer of football. New York University, the team for which Strong puts forth his best efforts, defeated the striped Tigers from the West, 27 to 6, and most of the glory that goes with that feat must be given to the Hard Rock who roams more or less at will for the Violets.

Strong scored, threw three of his teammates four touchdowns and kicked all the points after touchdown. He had a kicking percentage of 1000 for one of his understudies missed the one that did not ring through.

Although Missouri scored first, the New Yorkers came back with one in the first period and two in the second to lead by 20 to 6 at the intermission.

Tigers' Comeback.

The Tigers showed a complete reversal of form after the rest interval and dominated the play throughout the third period. They threatened to score twice and the period ended with the ball on N. Y. U.'s one-yard line. The home team took the ball on a touchback to start the four quarter and after plunging from the 20-yard line to the 24-yard marker told Strong to go ahead. He did, stepping off 76 yards for his third touchdown and then kicked the goal. He was scored an assist on the only touchdown he did not make for he passed to Nemecek to break the scoring ice when the Violet had to come from behind.

Although defeated by a decisive margin as scores go in football between two first grade opponents the Missouri outfit got some credit from the game. The Tigers won one period beyond dispute and gave the big Violet crew some anxious minutes with one of the finest passing attacks uncovered at Yankee Stadium during either the football or baseball season. Waldorf threw long passes and short ones to Mehrle, a quick stepping back with big hands and now and then varied his offensive with a toss to the huge Captain Brown, who was about the best give and take player on the field after tribute is paid to Strong. One of the combinations of the Waldorf to Mehrle team was good for the first touchdown

IOWA City, Ia., Nov. 17.—A courageous Wisconsin eleven is within grasp of its first Western conference gridiron championship in 16 years.

In a cold downpour of rain, mingled with flurries of snow, the Badgers, tied but still undefeated, conquered the hitherto unbeaten Iowa team, 13 to 0, today in the slush, water and mire of a gridiron that resembled a puddle of mud.

A cheering, pulse throbbing crowd of 30,000 sat through the rain to see these two undefeated teams fight it out in a struggle for what virtually amounted to championship honors. The Badgers, now leading the race, must conquer their traditional enemy, Minnesota, in the final game of the season a week hence to stablish themselves as the unchallenged 1928 champions of the Big Ten.

The game was a cagey struggle from start to finish, with both teams punting almost continuously in the hope that a break would come, as a consistent running or forward passing attack was almost impossible because of wretched conditions. For two periods the teams battled on even terms with the Hawkeyes putting up an heroic defense especially when they resisted the battering Badgers a yard from the goal at the start of the second period.

The expected break, coming in the third period, and a costly Iowa fumble, occurring in the fourth, gave Wisconsin its two touchdowns.

Wisconsin's first touchdown came with dramatic suddeness soon after the start of the third period, when Lusby galloped away on a 63-yard run, after grabbing a punt booted by Mayes McClain, the giant

Notre Dame, Unbeaten at Home In 23 Years, Loses to Carnegie

By the Associated Press.

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 17.—The unwritten law of Notre Dame's gridiron tradition—that the Ramblers could not be beaten on their home field—was broken for the first time in 23 years today by a mighty horde from the smoky environs of Pittsburg, Carnegie Tech.

The Spartan eleven crushed Knute Rockne's fighting Notre Dame team 27 to 7 before 30,000 fans, the largest crowd ever to pack Carter Field. The overwhelming triumph kept the Easterners in the exclusive circle of the nation's undefeated football machines.

Notre Dame seemed far from the team that upset the Army last week, but even if it had been as powerful as a week ago, it is doubtful whether it could have stemmed the tide which has swept over every Carnegie Tech foe this season.

With Captain Howie Harpster throwing passes, carrying the ball and backing up his line with alertness and tenacity, with Letzelter smashing the line for long gains, and with Rosensweig, Carnegie's great end, swooping by opposition on fake plays and smashing the line with ease, Carnegie appeared invincible.

Notre Dame Entirely Smothered.

Carnegie, outweighing Notre Dame by more than 10 pounds to the man, scored the first touchdown within three minutes after the game started and at the half the invaders had piled up a 20 to 0 lead.

In the third quarter Notre Dame sneaked over its only touchdown. The rest of the time it was all Carnegie Tech.

Although greeted by a steady drizzle, a field sodden with heavy rains, Carnegie scored its first touchdown quickly with a surprise play, Harpster passing to Rosensweig, who raced 70 yards to the Rockne 10-yard line, from where Letzeler took it over on the next

Yale Unable to Stop Princeton's Passing, Loses to Tigers, 12-2

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 17.—Sixty thousand spectators, a record for Palmer Stadium, saw Princeton, after a wobbly start, sweep into full stride and conquer Yale, 12 to 2, with a versatile attack that had the Blue dazed and battered when this 55-year-old classic came to a conclusion.

Trix Bennett and Eddie Wittmer, played the star roles in this "killing" that kept Princeton's slate clear of everything except a brace of ties.

Wittmer scored the first touchdown, in the second quarter, and Requardt tallied the second touchdown in the third quarter. But Bennett contributed largely to both. Each score was the result of a well sustained march, one of 60 yards and the other of 47 yards, and in each it was the flashy running of Bennett or his accurate passes that swept the charge into Blue teritory.

The two sensational drives clinched the game after Yale had gained the upper hand in the opening period. In that quarter the Elis were only able to score a safety, when Captain Max Eddy tackled Requardt behind the Tiger goal line, but the blue Brigade was twice in position to score touchdowns.

The first Yale charge, after reaching Princeton's six-yard mark, was broken up by Miles' interception of a forward pass, followed soon after by the safety. Again the Elis struck, "Butch" Loud slasing his way to the Tiger three-yard line, but there the Bengal defense stiffened and took the ball on downs.

It was Yale's last real chance to score, for Princeton took command, fought the Elis to a standstill and dominated the game from then until the last few moments, when a final Elis thrust fell short.

The figures of this thrilling game show how clearly Princeton's aerial attack turned the tide, the Tigers outrushed the Bulldogs, 204 yards to 165, but at the passing game they completed 11 out of 18 tosses for gains of 108 yards as compared with the Eli record of two passes completed out of 11 tried for a net gain of only 25 yards. All told, the Tigers registered 21 first downs to nine for Yale.

VISITORS' TOUCHDOWN FOLLOWS TWO BREAKS; WHITTLER GOES OVER

By Jack Alexander.

Failure to kick goal after touchdown sent Washington University down to a 7 to 6 defeat before Grinnell yesterday at Francis Field in the homecoming game, on a muddy field.

The defeat left the Bears still clutching for their second victory of the season, their triumph over Rolla being their only one to date, as against five defeats and a tie.

The Bears scored their touchdown in the second quarter and, although Ax missed the kick for the extra point, the game seemed well in hand until the fourth period, when Capt. Fail Grinnell end, closed in on Rawdon and knocked his punt toward the Washington goal. Rawdon recovered the ball after it had traveled 35 yards, but since he had kicked on the last down, possession of the ball was given to Grinnell on the 17-yard line.

Score on Lateral Pass.

Rawdon's interference with the receiver of a forward pass made it good for eight yards, another short pass was completed and a small los swas offset by a triple lateral pass on which Rose scored a touchdown. Ruff kicked the extra point from placement, the point that proved the deciding one. The rest of the final period was crowded with dangerous situations with both sides tossing passes and having many of them intercepted. On one of these McIntyre of Grinnell returned 45 yards.

The Washington touchdown in the second quarter came as a surprise since Grinnell had rushed the Bears off their feet in the previous period. Taking the ball on Grinnell's 39-yard line, Whittler cracked center fox six yards and Dick Rawdon cut through tackle for a surprising gain of 25 yards. Inside the 10-yard mark, three plunges put the ball over, Whittler carrying it the last two yards. Ax was sent in for Duncan to kick the additional point but missed it.

Bickel Runs 45 Yards.

Bickel did most of the Washington heavy work in the first half. Receiving the opening kickoff, he made a beautiful runback of 45 yards down the north side of the field but was forced to punt when line plays failed. After an exchange of punts, Grinnell started an offensive which took the ball to the Bears' 32-yard line, a gain of 35 yards, but was stopped.

After kicks had been interchanged again, Grinnell started off on the other foot and got as far as the 12-yard line but Paris halted this by tossing Rose for a loss as the quarter ended. Paris, incidentally, played the finest game of any lineman on the field. Here is one man St. Lopis U. will have to watch on Thanksgiving Day.

Bears Make 44-Yard Drive.

Drake and Jablonsky smeared another play for a 12-yard loss as the second quarter started and Washington took the ball on downs. Then followed the events leading up to the Washington touchdown.

Washington threatened strenuously in the third period but on fourth down, with six yards to go for a touchdown, chose to try a place kick. Whittler missed it. The advance of 44 yards leading up to the kick was the best sustained drive of the game and was featured by gains by Duncan and Whittler.

ROUGH RIDERS' VICTORY GIVES TEAM CHANCE TO TIE SOLDAN FOR THE HIGH SCHOOL TITLE

By Harold Tuthill

Roosevelt, by defeating Beaumont, 7 to 0, removed one obstacle that barred its way to repeat as the City High School League football champions. Roosevelt upset the dope yesterday on the Public High School field, as Beaumont was expected to win. In the first game of the doubleheader Cleveland concluded its 1928 season by decisively trouncing Central, 18 to 0. The attendance which was estimated at 3000 was held down by the inclement weather prior to game-time.

Next Saturday Roosevelt meets the leading Soldan 11 in the deciding contest of the season, since Beaumont was eliminated from the race by yesterday's defeat.

The Rough Riders were not calculated to offer such stubborn resistance as they showed yesterday to protect their seven points, the margin of victory over Beaumont. The lone score came as a result of pre-game instructions issued by coaches. The orders were to kick with the wind.

Kicking Paves Way to Score.

Savage, who directed the work of Roosevelt adhered faithfully to his instructions and due to Barnes' long-range kicking Roosevelt was placed in position to score in the third quarter.

Belter recovered one of Barnes' boots on Beaumont's one-foot line, forcing Weidner, the Beaumont punter to kick from behind his goal line, the ball rolling out of bounds on Beaumont's 22-yard mark. Two plunges moved Roosevelt nine yards nearer the goal. Then Barnes slipped through the center of the line for another nine yards to place Roosevelt on Beaumont's four-yard mark. On the next play Savage fumbled the ball, but recovered and ran to the one-foot line before he was stopped. Barnes plunged through the center for the winning touchdown. To help matters, Savage made his place-kick good, so that the score stood Roosevelt, 7; Beaumont, 0.

In the final period Beaumont got as far as Roosevelt's 19-yard line due to a 15-yard penalty imposed upon the Rough Riders and some excellent plunging by Menges and Brown which gave Beaumont first down deep in the winner's territory. Two long passes from Weidner to Menges failed and Beaumont's chances were shattered when Roosevelt carried the ball to midfield as the game ended.

Cleveland displayed a punch yesterday that would have won the championship for the Carondelet school had the potentialities of two new-comers, Birkicht and Jansen been discovered earlier in the season. These two backs were responsible for Cleveland's three scores.

It was Ralph Prinz, one of the many substitutes Cleveland used, who placed the Carondelet eleven in position to score, when he tore off a 28-yard run around right end to place the ball on Central's 22-yard line in the first period. Line plunges carried the ball to Central's two-yard mark, from where Birkicht went over for the first score early in the second quarter.

A 15-yard penalty forced Higgins to punt from behind his own goal line later in the same session, Cleveland receiving the ball on Central's 26-yard line. Bieber tore off 10 yards and then passed to Jensen, who dashed over Central's goal line for the second touchdown.

In the third quarter Cleveland took advantage of an exchange of punts by recovering a boot from Higgins on Central's 20-yard line. Bernhardt tore through the right side of Cleveland's line for a 12-yard gain, from where "Wee" Earl Jansen slipped around right end for the final tally. None of Cianciola's place kicks was counted, although the weighty Cleveland tackle scored one perfect kick, which was disallowed because of a tripping penalty.

Although the South Siders were expected to win from Central, the victory was gotten in such a manner as to make Cleveland look like a championship eleven. Central was out-rushed, out-charged and out-played throughout the encounter.

Central's Late Rally.

Central showed some fight and determination and got within 20 yards of Cleveland's goal, but a pass beyond the final mark doomed Central's hopes for a score. This threat came late in the final period when with the exception of Capt. Gus Cianciola, every Cleveland regular had been replaced by a substitute. Incidentally, the constant shifting of Cleveland's players caused the scorers difficulty in determining which players were in the game.

The standings:

	Won.	Lost	Pct.
Soldan	3	0	1.000
Roosevelt	2	1	.667
Cleveland	2	2	.500
Beaumont	1	2	.333

attack, held Harvard to a scoreless tie here today in a game which was marked by exceptional line plays. During the closing minute of the game, Harvard completed a 35-yard pass, Guarnaccia to Douglas and the Crimson had a first down on the Purple's five-yard line. Three Harvard backs were launched against the purple line, but Cleo O'Donnell's hard fighting forwards yielded only four yards. Dave Guaranaccia, the Crimson's best bet in the absence of Captain French, who was being saved for next week's objective game with Yale, was called on to try for the score.

Guaranaccia tried to soar over Fitzgerald, who relieved Capt. Phelan in the center of the purple line. He cleared the pivot man, but Clancy, Holy Cross fullback was waiting just ahead to shove him back. Holy Cross gained the ball on its half yard mark and Clancy punted well from behind his goal line as the game ended.

Once before, in the very first minute of play, Harvard had a scoring opportunity but failed to cash in on it. The purple attack was very weak. It consisted of a series of two-line plays which generally failed, a forward pass and a wonderful punt by Clancy on the fourth down. Holy Cross tried 18 passes during the game and completed only three of them.

The Harvard scoring efforts were almost as unimpressive. With the Yale game but a week hence, Harvard's attack was a rush, a kick, a rush and a kick until the closing minutes of the game, when Putnam returned to relieve Crawford, his substitute at quarter. Harvard then was able to execute a lateral pass which gained 35 yards and three forward passes which counted for three first downs.

Old Jack Britton, aged 43, won the initial engagement of his come-back program. Jack's youthful opponent low-bridged him by knocking out one of his false teeth. Whereupon Jack backed him against the ropes and held him until the referee returned his tooth to him. Jack wasn't taking any chances on being bitten on the heel by a false tooth.

Regardless of who is ahead in the straw vote for manager of the Cards, Sam Breadon will cast the deciding ballot.

The question of whether the team makes the manager or the manager the team will come up for a decision at Braves Field next summer. Looks like a draw.

If the Braves can make a manager out of Fuchs or Fuchs can make a ball team out of the Braves, in either case it would be a miracle.

And as Boston was hit by a miracle in 1914, she is probably immune for some time to come.

In signing Hornsby the Judge bit off more than he could chew. In spite of which he bites off another big chunk of trouble by taking over the management of the team. A glutton for punishment!

of the game after the same duo had brought the ball to the 20-yard line and Captain Brown had placed it on the 15-yard tape.

39-Yard Pass.

Strong and Nemecek got the touchdown back with a 39-yard pass in the first period and Strong ran 14 yards for the second N. Y. U. counter in the second chukker after the home team was placed in position by a poor Missouri punt.

Strong passed to Follett on Missouri's 32-yard line in the same period and then personally lugged the ball to the 13-yard line. Then he was stopped just a yard from the goal. He needed two plays to make that yard but he made it. He was immediately relieved and did not wait to see Gaudet miss the goal.

The visitors had chances to score in plenty in the second half but could not quite find the combination. Their best chance was lost because the field was not quite big enough, with the ball on the one yard line, on fourth down. Brown caught a pass behind the goal line but outside the end zone.

This paved the way for the touchback that gave N. Y. U. the ball on the 20-yard line and set the stage for Strong's last and longest scoring play.

The Missourians were hard hit by injuries at the outset. Hawkins, a sturdy guard, was carried off the field after the first play and Rosenheim, the quarterback, followed a bit later.

N. Y. U. found itself in conflict with the officials on a number of counts and during the afternoon the Violets were penalized for violations of most of the more familiar rules in the book.

GEORGETOWN ENDS WEST VIRGINIA'S STREAK, BY WINNING 12 TO 0

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—A shifty Georgetown University backfield passed and slipped its way through and around a heavier West Virginia eleven today to win a 12-to-0 decision and halt the Mountaineers' winning streak, which had stretched to seven games.

The accurate tosses of Ralph Duplin, Hilltop quarterback, were directed frequently into waiting hands of Georgetown ends. Both touchdowns, in the third and fourth periods, were gained largely through an aerial pass offensive.

West Virginia threatened on several occasions, missing a touchdown by a scant foot when "Little Sleepy" Glenn, quarterback, was forced out of bounds with this distance to go as the whistle blew ending the first half. He had caught a 30-yard pass on the tips of his fingers and dodged 15 yards when he was run outside the field.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Nov. 17.—Playing in rain ranging from a drizzle to a downpour, Indiana defeated Northwestern 6 to 0 here today. Catterton missed a placement attempt. Holding its six point advantage, Indiana stopped two desperate purple drives in the last quarter.

MISSOURI PACIFIC A. C. TO HOLD AMATEUR FIGHT CARD NOV. 27

The Missouri Pacific Athletic Club, which has held three successful amateur boxing programs during the present season, has announced another program to be held Tuesday, Nov. 27, at the Missouri Pacific arena, 3001 Chouteau avenue. Joe Dumas, matchmaker, and George Puchta, boxing coach, are in charge of the program.

Four special bouts are planned, in which leading local amateur boxers will participate, in addition to several bouts between novices. John Tomazzi, who has been under suspension for the past two months, will fight in the bantamweight class in one of the special bouts, officials announced.

Training quarters, which boxers on the program may use, are available every evening and Sunday mornings at the arena.

ST. LOUIS TO SEE TWO BIG LEAGUE HOCKEY MATCHES

St. Louis fans are to get a chance to see two big league ice hockey matches in February, according to an announcement of the St. Louis Hockey Club which stated yesterday that the Chicago Black Hawks had arranged to play the New York Rangers, world champions at the Winter Garden here on Feb. 3 and the New York Americans on Feb. 10.

The Black Hawks were forced to engage the St. Louis rink because their lease on the Coliseum in Chicago expires Feb. 1 and their new rink will not be completed in time for them to play these two contests. Therefore they asked and received permission of the National League officials to transfer the matches here. Officials of the American Association to which St. Louis belongs also have agreed to the transfer.

Holman Is Released.

It was also announced by the St. Louis club yesterday that Speed Holman, forward, who was signed Thursday had been given his unconditional release to make way for the forward which the Black Hawks owe to St. Louis and who is expected to come here soon. Holman plans to play in New England and Coach Alec Irvin told him his work there would be watched closely so that if he shows the necessary stuff he will be recalled by St. Louis.

Irvin sent his squad through a strenuous hour at the Winter Gardent this morning. He was particularly impressed with the way Substitute Goaltender Billy Vaughn, Defense Shields and Forward Ray Powley performed.

The coach makes no secret of the fact that he has not been pleased with the work of his regular goalie, Iver Anderson, and is making every effort to prep Vaughn to take Anderson's place before the net unless the veteran shows better form.

Another old-timer on the St. Louis squad whose job is being endangered by the work of a younger man is Center Harry Cameron. The way Goyer has been handling the position shows that Cameron will have to be on his game to keep the job.

Two Practices Daily.

Tomorrow the St. Louis squad will start to work twice a day instead of once for much remains to be done now and the time the season opens, on Nov. 27, a week from Tuesday night, when the championship Minneapolis club calls here.

Beginning tomorrow, there will be a practice session in the morning between 9 and 10 o'clock and another in the evening between 6 and 7 o'clock.

play. Harpster kicked the extra point.

Sensing it was up against a passing demon in the Carnegie quarterback, Notre Dame tried to counter with an aerial attack of its own after the second kickoff. But Eyth intercepetd the pass on Notre Dame's 30-yard line, where he was downed. Three smashes by Harpster, Rosensweig and Letzelter pushed the ball to the three-yard line stripe, from where Harpster carried it over on a triple pass play. His try for extra point failed.

Touchdown From a Fumble.

In the second period Rosensweig spun around right end on a lateral pass for the touchdown. Harpster added the extra point.

Harpster fumbled a bad pass in the third period and Moon Mullins, Notre Dame fullback, scooped up the ball and dashed over for the lone Notre Dame touchdown. Cacarriedo place-kicked the extra point.

Near the end of the last period Harpster passed to Letzelter, who sprinted 20 yards for the last score. Notre Dame was trying a futile passing attack as the gun finished the game.

PITTSBURG AND NEBRASKA PLAY SCORELESS TIE

By the Associated Press.

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 17.—The Pittsburg Panthers, crying for blood, sneaked out from the Eastern forests to the Western plains and outplayed Nebraska through 60 minutes of mud wallowing to a scoreless tie today.

While 20,000 Nebraska fans braved a biting wind which set in early in the morning after 36 hours of rain and snow, the Nebraska team strove futilely to pierce the lighter Pitt line or elude its alert ends or able secondary defense. Howell, the fullback; Sloan, versatile halfback; Russell, the plunging quarter, all were held by this scrappy Pitt outfit which played through the entire game without a substitution.

Not one first down did Nebraska earn. Pitt made seven. Only in punting did the Huskers excel and credit for this goes to Sloan and his successor Rowley.

Nebraska's Record Blemished.

Still in the ranks of the undefeated major teams, the tie splashes a huge blot over Nebraska's claims to the national football title. In six previous games this season Nebraska has amassed 133 points to their opponents 18 and numbered among its victims Syracuse and Missouri. Nebraska goes East next week for its supreme test—a game with the Army at West Point.

In the first period Nebraska had two chances to score. Instead, with the game 3 minutes old, Sloan received Edwards' punt and raced down the side of the field for 35 yards. But officials ruled the speedy halfback had stepped outside early in his run and brought the ball back. A few minutes later Pitt tried one of the few passes of the day, Edwards misjudged it and it settled almost into the arms of Blue Howell, who had no one between him and the goal line. Howell fumbled the slippery pig skin, and Nebraska never again had much of an opportunity to pass the last chalk mark.

Pitt Turned Back.

Pitt drove nearly to the Nebraska goal in the second period and only a sturdy line and the plucky punting of Rowley saved the Huskers. Parkinson, Uansa, Williams—all took turns in slipping through tackle or off the end but were stopped 13 yards from their goal. Rowley punted but Nebraska's forwards had held and the ball was brought back almost on the goal line. Again Rowley called for the ball and booted it past mid-field.

The second half was mostly punting. Nebraska reserves failed to give the desired punch in the closing minutes and the game ended where it started—in midfield.

Ames Conquers Kansas Aggies, 7-0.

By the Associated Press.

AMES, Iowa, Nov. 17.—With a sloppy field for a stage and a snow-storm for scenery, Iowa State College's cast of football players enacted the role of mud-horses here today and conquered the Kansas Aggies, 7 to 0, in a big six conference game.

Iowa State played superior football except for a brief relapse in the third period.

Pass Gives Oklahoma Victory Over Kansas, 7-0.

By the Associated Press.

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 17.—A surprise touchdown which followed a 43-yard pass, coming on the first play of the game, gave the Oklahoma Sooners a 7 to 0 victory over Kansas in a big six conference game here today.

The touchdown came in the first minute of play, after Kitchell passed to Mills, the latter running 21 yards to the goal line for the touchdown and provided the only thrill of the dull contest fought on a soggy gridiron under threatening skies before a small crowd.

CLEVELAND INDIANS GIVE $30,000 AND TWO MEN FOR PORTER

BALTIMORE, Nov. 17.—Sale of Dick Porter, Baltimore Oriole outfielder and leading hitter, to the Cleveland American League club was announced today by Charles Knapp, president of the Baltimore club of the International League.

The sale, he said, was for $30,000 cash and two players to be selected later by the Baltimore owners. If before May 15 these players are not wanted they may be returned to the Indians and $5000 will be paid for each player.

The deal was consummated, Knapp said, Nov. 8, when Billy Evans visited Baltimore and the delay in announcing the sale was at Evans' request.

MARQUETTE-CREIGHTON GAME IS POSTPONED

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Nov. 17.—The annual gridiron clash between Marquette and Creighton universities scheduled for today was postponed on account of the soggy condition of the field and a continued downpour. The game will be played here Dec. 8.

Soldan Defeats Webster, 12 to 0; Cook Plays Well

By Henry L. Freund.

Soldan High maintained its record of not being scored against this season by defeating Webster, 12—0 yesterday afternoon. The game was played at the Webster field which was a mass of mud. notwithstanding the wet condition of the ball and insecure footing, the game was free of fumbles. Soldan used its weight advantage in wearing down its opponents.

Webster had the ball in Soldan territory the entire first quarter. Soldan had trouble punting against the strong wind. Webster's line functioned well during the opening period frequently breaking through to throw Cook and Shapiro for losses.

On the first play of the second quarter, Dave Cook broke through the Webster forward line and ran 40 yards, being downed by Max Tyrell, the Webster captain. Tyrell was the only man between Cook and the goal line, but he made a fine tackle to bring his opponent down. Several short runs brought the ball to Webster's 10-yard line. Cook passed to Stone, who was uncovered, and he stepped across the goal line for a touchdown. The point after touchdown was a pass, but the try was grounded.

Soldan began the second half by making a determined attempt push across another score. Cook passed to Bray for a 25-yard gain. Shapiro accounted for several short smashes through the Webster forward wall but Webster stiffened and held Soldan for downs. A number of runs by Cook and several line plunges by Shapiro carried the pigskin to the 5-yard line but Webster again held. A bad pass from center hurried the Webster punt and the result was but a 15-yard kick. Cook then took the ball to the 2-yard line and Shapiro went through inside tackle for the touchdown. A pass was again tried to score the point after touchdown but it was blocked.

Webster threatened to score in the last period due to numerous short runs by Tyrell. Soldan held, however, and then started another drive towards the county team's goal but the game soon ended.

Webster appeared weak against the Soldan aerial attack. Three Soldan passes were attempted in the first half and each was completed. Tyrell and Woods were the Webster offensive stars. Cook and Shapiro were outstanding in the Soldan backfield while Wright, Horowitz and Bray played well in the line.

WISCONSIN PUNTS OUT IOWA, 13-0

for the Hawkeyes.

Lusby, standing on Wisconsin's 37-yard line, fumbled the slippery oval. Most of the punts had been allowed to roll in the mud and water until the ball came to a stop and the spectators gasped when Lusby fumbled. The Wisconsin halfback snatched it up and started off on his long sprint.

Over chalk marks nearly obliterated by mud, Lusby sped on until he reached the 30-yard line when he eluded the last three Iowa tacklers. Ahead was a clear field and he cut loose to slide over the goal line in a splash of water and mud. Lusby and Behr dropped back to place kick, but instead, Behr grabbed the ball and made a dash for the Iowa goal. He was brought down on the three yard line, however.

After that one touchdown Iowa opened up with a furious line smashing attack, in an attempt to even the count. Glassgow and McLain made several substantial gains against the fighting Wisconsin line. The Badgers, however, smothered the Hawkeyes, and the teams started a new punting duel.

STRINGFELLOW, PLAYING FIRST GAME AT FULLBACK, IS STAR; TEAM MAKES 15 FIRST DOWNS

By Gerald Holland

Surprisingly indecisive in actual point margin and fully as dull as expected was St. Louis University's fourth victory of the season, a 12-0 conquest of the Louisville U. Cardinals at Sportsman's Park yesterday afternoon, before a crowd of 1000 persons.

The visitors turned out to be just as impotent on the attack as their record, which now includes six successive defeats in which they have failed to score, had indicated. The Billikens counted up 15 first downs, with Charley Eaton and Jim Stringfellow, the new fullback, making the biggest gains, while the Cardinals were credited with only one and that was accomplished through a penalty against the home team. St. Louis gained 241 yards by rushing and 17 by passing. Louisville advanced only 14 yards throughout the game.

Anderson Uses Most of Squad.

Heartly Anderson, the Billiken coach, used the greater portion of his squad in the game but kept several regulars, who have been ailing, out of action. Among those who remained on the side lines was Joe Lintzenich, who will have lots of work to do on Thanksgiving day. Lintzenich's position at fullback was capably handled by Jim Stringfellow, formerly a lineman with the second team, who started his first game yesterday and rarely failed to contribute yardage when it was badly needed.

The biggest ground-gainer of the afternoon, however, was Charley Eaton, one of the two regulars in the opening lineup. With Stringfellow, he advanced the ball to within striking distance before the Billikens' first touchdown in the opening quarter and scored the second himself in the following period with an 18-yard gain around right end.

Les Hunt, another reserve who started his first game, made a creditable showing at his halfback position, in addition to doing some fine punting, until forced out with a minor injury late in the second quarter.

Both Scores in First Half.

What little action the game provided was concentrated in the first half, in which St. Louis scored both of its touchdowns. The first score was made early in the first quarter after an exchange of punts had given the Billikens the ball on Louisville's 48-yard line. Eaton began the advance with a 14-yard gain around right end and after subsequent good gains by Stringfellow and a pair of five-yard penalties against the visitors, Eaton again skirted the right end from the five-yard line to put the ball within a foot of the line. On the next play, Stringfellow plowed through center for the score. A pass, Hunt to Parilla, for the extra point, was grounded.

An extended exchange of punts completed the first quarter, but after a bit more kicking in the second period, Charley Eaton again broke away around the right side of the line and this time he dashed 37 yards to Louisville's 26-yard mark before he was downed. With Hunt, he made another first down on the 16-yard line, but after a short gain from that point the Billikens were set back 15 yards for roughing. Hunt came back with a 10-yard gain and Eaton followed with his 18-yard end run for the second and final touchdown of the game. Barney Miller tried a place kick for the extra point but it went wide.

More punting followed and the second quarter ended uneventfully.

Offside Costs a Touchdown.

The second half brought nothing of much consequence. A 17-yard pass neatly executed by Joe Maxwell and Ford Brown brightened the third quarter, in which Louisville held the ball only twice and then briefly and without profit.

Kimmell and Eaton contributed handsome yardage several times in the fourth quarter and late in that period, the former intercepted a pass on Louisville's 15-yard line and ran for a touchdown but his team had been offside and the play was recalled.

Country Day Ties For Title, Beating St. L. U. High, 12-6

Country Day School gained a tie for the Preparatory League championship by beating St. Louis U. High, 12 to 6, on the Country Day gridiron yesterday.

The victory gave Country Day a record of three victories and one defeat, as against Western Military's record of two victories, no defeats and two ties. Under the conference scoring system, both schools have six points.

The victors scored early in the first quarter on straight football, Shields and Tupper doing most of the gaining. Another march was stopped at the 12-yard line.

In the second quarter Country Day scored again when Husch circled end and ran 65 yards for a touchdown. Country Day carried the ball again to the four-yard line before the half was over, but was stopped.

Forward passes scored for the junior Billikens in the third quarter, a 25-yard toss, Connors to Hartrich, accounting for the only touchdown.

Principia Downs Western, 6 to 0, For Only Victory

By DAVIDSON OBEAR.

The Principia Junior College team closed its football season by defeating the Western Military Academy eleven, 6 to 0, in a game at Taylor Field yesterday afternoon. Coach Al Marquard's players celebrated Principia "Dads' day" by winning the only victory this season.

Principia scored in the first quarter. Early in the period the Principia backs carried the ball to the opposing six-yard line. Zonge, halfback, went through tackle for the only touchdown. Cory's place kick for the extra point was wide.

The feature of the third quarter was a 55-yard run by Corya, big Principia fullback, who carried the ball to the Western 11-yard line. Three plays put the ball on the one-yard line, but the Western defense prevented another touchdown.

Dean of Cue, at Last Converted To Three-Cushion System Play

WILLIE HOPPE.

Hoppe once laughed at the mathematical systems used by Layton and other angle players and issued a challenge which was not accepted. Since that time he has found "system" is more dependable than intuition.

Hoppe, Master Billiard Player, Adopts "Diamond System" for Angle Play

By J. Roy Stockton.

Willie Hoppe, balkline billiard champion for 17 years and probably the greatest cue artist the game has ever known, played three-cushions by instinct for two years, but he finally has capitulated and now is using the diamond system of mathematical computation.

"You can play good billiards by instinct," Hoppe said recently at Peterson's, where he defeated Champion Johnny Layton in a 600-point exhibition match, "but you can't compete with championship players without nsig the diamond system of calculation. I tried it for two years and it was all right as long as I was getting the breaks. But I found that I was missing too many shots by a fraction of an inch. I could compute by instinct to that extent, but when I was a bit off, I couldn't correct my instinct and finally I took up the diamond system."

An Offset to Safety.

Under the diamond system of play, the diamonds on the side and end rails of the table are numbered and a player can use the position of the object ball or balls to compute with mathematical exactness the exact spot on the table where the cue ball must strike so that it will go around the table and strike the object ball or balls.

"The system is too complicated to be of much use to the average man who plays for pleasure," Hoppe continued. "Despite my long experience and the general knowledge that I had of the game, it took me six months to master the diamond method of play. The average dub player would never stick at the system long enough to make it an asset.

"One of the things that forced me to take up the system was the widespread use of safety play at three cushions. Safety means leaving the object balls close together, making it necessary to play bank shots. I found that I was missing my banks by small margins too frequently and the use of the diamond system enabled me to make a much better average on such shots."

Balkline Hard to Fathom.

Hoppe was asked how he accounted for the fact that for 17 years he reigned as champion without any real opposition and that then half a dozen men appeared almost simultaneously as dangerous challengers. He ventured the opinion that his supremacy spurred the challengers to intensive practice and that the incentive, appearing at about the same time, inspired the half dozen to work hard enough to reach the top. That is the only avenue to billiard success, he pointed out—hard work and steady, intensive practice.

Discussing the decline of interest in balkline, Hoppe said the game was so complicated that it required great skill and arduous practice to master it, but that when it was mastered the performance of a champion looked simple to the public. Spectators, not understanding the fine points of the technique, quickly tired of seeing the masters reel off runs of hundreds.

For the Spectator.

"Spectators can appreciate three-cushions better. They see the ball go around the table and see the ball take the english. It looks more difficult than balk line and is more spectacular. As a matter of fact, balkline is much more difficult. When you master balkline you have a groundwork that makes it comparatively easy to take up and master three-cushions. Good balkline players can compete after a short practice with the good three-cushion players, but the average three-cushion player would have no chance against the average balkline player at balkline.

"Perhaps the balkline game will regain its popularity, but there will have to be a new crop of players before the game can come back. The public is tired of seeing the same old faces over the green cloth."

Hoppe said he never had contemplated a campaign for the pocket billiard championship, the only important cue title he has never held.

"Pocket billiards requires a lever stroke, entirely different from the balkline and three-cushion technique," Hoppe explained. "It would spoil my balkline and three-cushion game and I would not care to risk that."

Called "Best of 'Em All."

Charley Peterson, who was present during the discussion, interrupted to say that he was certain that if Hoppe took up pocket billiards "he could make monkeys of all the other pocket stars."

"Hoppe is the greatest at any game," Pete continued. "Remember his mixed match with Inman? Willie gave the Englishman a tussle at English billiards and then at balkline Inman just held a cue and watched Hoppe. Then somebody suggested that they play snooker, another of Inman's English games. Hoppe consented and though it was new stuff to him, he ran away from the Englishman. Willie can beat 'em all at any game."

Peterson several years ago suggested an all-round billiard championship tournament. Hoppe, asked about the suggestion, said he would welcome the chance to play in such a tournament and thought that it would please the public. The play would include pocket billiards, three-cushions, balkline, cushion caroms and red ball. Hoppe said he thought the balkline players would dominate such a tournament, mentioning Schaefer, Cochran and Hagenlacher as likely to bid for the title.

Returning to the subject of the ending of his reign as undisputed king of the cue, Hoppe said that it was not because he had "gone back."

"I'm playing as well as I ever did," he remarked. "In fact, my average recently has been better than ever, but the other players have improved. And it was a great stimulus to billiards."

Hoppe expects to compete in the world balkline title tournament this year, if one is held. No date has been set for the title play.

Southworth Far Ahead as Voting For Cards' Manager Nears Close

STANDING OF THE BIG FOUR.

NAME.	New Votes.	Previous.	Total.
Billy Southworth	175	406	581
Bill McKechnie	64	161	225
Frank Snyder	30	122	152
Roger Bresnahan	20	56	76

By Herman Wecke

Billy Southworth 581; remaining candidates 560. That is the tabulation in the Post-Dispatch straw vote for the 1929 manager of the Cardinals with but one more day remaining. The man who with his short chop-stroke hit home runs in the pinches in 1926, as a member of the local team and who last season piloted the Rochester Club to the International League pennant has been a distinctinct surprise in the competition.

The Rochester manager of the past season was always popular. Billy never had much to say as a player. He attended the business at hand—that of pounding out base hits and winning ball games. That the popularity he gained then has not left him, is evinced by the present voting. As a result, he is still better than two to one ahead of Bill McKechnie, the man who led the St. Louis Nationals to the 1928 pennant. While Southworth has 581 votes, McKechnie is running a bad second, with 225.

More than 300 letters were received by the Post-Dispatch yesterday. In this list 175 ballots were cast in favor of Southworth, while McKechnie received 64. The other two members of the Big Four, Frank Snyder and Roger Bresnahan, ran well behind the ticket, inasmuch as Snyder received but 30 and Bresnahan only 20 votes. Frank Frisch, present captain, ranked closeto this pair, drawing 13 ballots, and thus bringing his total to 37.

"Hard-Boiled" Type Not Popular.

The balloting in the Post-Dispatch contest, which is in no way official and will have no bearing when Owner Sam Breadon makes his final selection, seems to indicate that the persons who pay at the gate would rather have the soft-spoken type of manager, as exemplified by Southworth and McKechnie, rather than the hard-boiled type, such as Bresnahan and Snyder. The boosters for Bresnahan and Snyder all call attention to the experience of the two men under John McGraw. However, the fans evidently overlook the fact that the leader in the contest, Southworth, also served under the Giants' leader and was sent here in 1926 in exchange for Heine Mueller, the shiek of Dover Place, who, incidentally, has come up with two votes in the competition.

Out-of-town persons continue to take an interest in the contest. One of the ballots received yesterday came all the way from Pea Ridge, Ark., and was in favor of McKechnie. It was sent by Dr. Lee O. Greene, who wrote as follows: "My vote is for McKechnie, as I believe his experience in meeting all teams of the National League last year will give him valued information that others would not have."

From Nokomis, Ill., the home town of none other than "Sunny Jim" Bottomley comes a vote for Billy Southworth from John Morley. Julius Trojanowski of 2618A North Twenty-second street, says in part: "It will take Billy Southworth to beat Hornsby and the Cubs in 1929."

Ida Beal of Harrisburg, Ill., is another who likes Southworth, as does Marion Cross of Fairfield, Ill. Marion writes as follows: "Southworth knows baseball as he showed last season and in a pinch he could get into the game as a player."

Stewart Garner of Laddonia, Mo., is strong for Frank Snyder. "He is a driver and that's what the Cardinals need. In addition he is aggressive and has plenty of ability."

Then Bresnahan is not to be overlooked. Says a Fan: "It is not a question of who the fans like better, but who will make the best manager. No man is better suited for the job than Bresnahan. Here is a man with plenty of knowledge of the game. He has experience as a manager and under McGraw has developed into a very clever coach. Regardless of who will be manager, I hope the coaching of the men on the bases will be improved. It was certainly bad last year."

The blank ballot in the straw vote contest appears in the Post-Dispatch for the last time today Clip it out and mail it to the Sports Editor, Post-Dispatch, with your vote. The final tabulations will be announced Tuesday. Interesting comment from the fans as to the reasons for their selections will be published.

Cornell Loses to Dartmouth, 28-0

By the Associated Press.

ITHICA N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Green ghost of Dartmouth, bare legged, nimble footed Al Marsters, tossed aside his bandages today, hitched up a pair of trousers that skidded constantly on weaving hips and with the hearty co-operation of another wraith "Shep" Wolff, soundly trounced Cornell's staggering eleven for the first time on Schoelkopf Field. The score was 28 to 0.

ST. CHARLES TO PLAY FERGUSON IN FIRST BASKET GAME, DEC. 11

ST. CHARLES, Mo., Nov. 17.—The basketball calendar to be followed by the St. Charles High School cagers this season was completed Friday by school officials with a total of 14 games.

The season, which will open at St. Charles with the Ferguson High team Dec. 11, will end March 1. In that period St. Charles will meet four county league fives besides games with six quintets in practice tilts.

ARMY HAS EASY TIME BEATING CARLETON, 32-7

By the Associated Press.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 17.—The Army's first string football squad ran rough shod over the little Carleton eleven from Northfield, Minn., here today to win by a score of 32 to 7. The visitors often threatened the Army goal, but ran into a stonewall within the 10-yard line on all but one of their scoring opportunities. About 12,000 persons saw the game.

REGAN TO BOX TERRY IN AMATEUR FIGHT

A return match between Elvin Regan, Valley Park flyweight, and Gilbert 'Peewee' Terry of the Flori Olympian A. C., has been scheduled for an amateur boxing tourney at the South Broadway A. C. next Thursday night. Terry shaded Regan to win the judges' decision in an Armory bout several weeks ago.

The flyweight event is the second special attraction closed by Matchmaker Joe Herbst, who announced yesterday that Carl Holst of the People's Motorbus A. C., and Al Bott of the East St. Louis Knights of Columbus, have been paired for an inter-city heavyweight feature.

Preliminary events on Thursday night's card have attracted 12 entries to date. The list includes Jack Emerich, Morgan Lingenfelter and Joe Herbst Jr., flyweights; Vic Marlow, Delbert Moore and Johnny Sarceanu, bantams; Johnny Knox, featherweight; Ambrose Oliver and John Oster, lightweights, and Ralph Hutchinison, welterweight.

Wray's Column

Lucky Dick Ferrell.

DICK FERRELL, the Browns' new catcher, is about $20,000 richer today because of the deal that brought him to the Browns. It isn't often a major league player participates in the amount he is sold for. In fact, several important rows resulted from the endeavor of a player to get a piece of the money paid for him. In all cases failure has resulted.

But Ferrell's case is different. He got ALL the purchase money. That is because he was the sole owner of his own playing rights and peddled himself to the highest bidder—which happened to be Mr. Ball.

Only rarely has a young player such a privilege. Oldsters who have passed the service limit in the leagues and have been given their unconditional releases, like Cobb and Speaker, have peddled themselves to advantage. Young players become "free agents" only through exceptional conditions.

How It Happened.

FERRELL gained his free agency through an attempt to "cover him up." Authority for this statement is found in a bulletin from Judge Landis' office, issued Nov. 10, 1928.

Detroit and the Columbus club were involved and the situation became so complex that Ferrell himself applied to Judge Landis to find whose property he was. He demanded a free agency, as the real ownership of his services was in doubt.

After an investigation the judge found that "nobody has even suggested that this was not a 'cover-up,'" adding the comment:

"It is a well-settled prodecure that the Commissioner on his own motion will order free agency whenever a 'cover-up' is disclosed, whether or not the player applies for it or knows anything about it. This procedure was adopted, and will continue, because the rules provide that 'no such arrangement shall be recognized;' and because it is due all other clubs, whose rights under the selection, waiver and player limits rules are evaded and defeated by 'cover-up' agreements, even if the player, by some process is induced to acquiesce in an arrangement expressly prohibited by those rules. For obvious reasons, neither Detroit, Cincinnati nor Columbus may negotiate for or acquire any interest in Ferrell's services prior to the season of 1930.

"No penalties are imposed, because these transactions all occurred prior to the notice of May 29. 'In re player Thompson,' but all clubs are again notified that 'in all cases hereafter a fine of $500 will be imposed upon each club participating in a consummated cover-up, in addition to free agency of the player concerned, and that where the cover-up is not consummated there will be a fine of $500 upon a club soliciting or attempting to negotiate it. If there be any such cover-up arrangements now in existence and the players concerned are not given unconditional releases absolutely terminating such cover-ups, these penalties will be imposed, regardless of the date of their inception.

"In re Thompson."

THE commissioner's stand in this respect thus helped the Browns get a promising catcher. Previously, however, Landis put a crimp in the local club.

The "in re Thompson," relates to an incident that resulted in the stand taken by Commissioner Landis in penalizing attempts at covering up.

Thompson of Milwaukee, it was alleged by Judge Landis' office, was being covered up by the Browns and passed along to Tulsa, preventing other clubs from getting a fair chance at him.

President Ball of the Browns protested vigorously that the St. Louis connection with the case was pure; but Landis didn't see it that way and an adverse ruling resulted.

That precedent will affect all similar cases in the future. Mr. Ball can't object now. For Landis' declaration of a free agency in Ferrell's case has enabled the Browns to acquire a badly needed catcher.

What to Do?

BOTH local universities are singing the pocketbook blues, this year, due to failure to pack the park at one or more games this year.

Mediocre teams, bad weather, unattractive schedules and admission prices out of proportion to some of the visiting attractions probably explain the situation. A normally lethargic public must also be figured in.

As compared to prices charged for football features at other major universities, the $2 admission here is not an overcharge. Nevertheless there are few of the citizenry not connected with the institutions involved who would pay $2 to see either local eleven play teams that are unknown and unsung—elevens without color of historic interest.

Only One "Big Game."

FOOTBALL sentiment here is more or less artificial. The only game that really pulls the local public regularly is the annual clash of the local universities. That game always has the merit of being hard-fought and is worth the price. It helps to pay the high price of "physical education" at both institutions.

Washington is planning a half million dollar stadium. Until its eleven is able to attract as opponents teams like Missouri, Nebraska, Vanderbilt, Notre Dame or other schools with prestige, and can meet such elevens on something like an even basis, the promoters will have to look to another source than admissions to pay for the concrete.

* * *

The first act necessary will be to fire the student body with real enthusiasm and fighting support. The university enrollment has seldom been back of its athletes, to the degree found elsewhere.

CHICAGO CLOSES BIG TEN SEASON WITHOUT SCORING SINGLE VICTORY

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Chicago ended its football season today without winning a Big Ten Conference game, falling before the onslaughts of the 1927 champions, Illinois, 40 to 0.

It was an ideal setting to end such a disastrous season, rain falling during most of the game on an already soggy gridiron. The Illini, however, were mud-runners, piling up six touchdowns with Frosty Peters, Douglas Mills and Walker leading the barrage. Mills supplied the big thrill of the afternoon when he dashed 75 yards through the entire Chicago team for his touchdown. Peters opened the attack in the first period, dashing almost 50 yards for the first score. He added two other touchdowns and Walker scored two, one after racing 25 yards following a pass of 25 yards from Peters.

Nowack, Illini captain, kicked four out of five tries for points after touchdown. Peters tried the last kick after his third touchtown just before the game ended.

Chicago was overwhelmed throughout. The Stagg-coached team had nothing to offer in the way of an offense and its defense was almost as bad.

Score by periods:

Illinois	7	14	6	13—40

Illinois scoring: Touchdowns—Peters 3, Mills, Walker 2. Point from try after touchdown—Nowack (4) (kick from placement).

DOUGLASS HIGH ELEVEN RUNS OVER SUMNER TEAM TO WIN, 19-7

The Douglass High School eleven of Evansville, Ind., defeated the Sumner High team of St. Louis at the Star's Park yesterday. The score was 19 to 7.

Decker was easily the star for the visiting team. He crossed the goal line in the first period to score a touchdown and again in the last period to clinch the game for the Douglass team, while Jonican's touchdown came in the second quarter. Horn passed to E. Turner for Sumner's only touchdown.

The Evansville eleven have now won six victories in eight games played. Sumner has lost only one game.

CURRENT WINS RICH BREEDERS' FUTURITY BY THREE LENGTHS

WINNER EQUALS THE LEXINGTON TRACK RECORD FOR ONE MILE

By the Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Nov. 17.—R. S. Clark's Current, with Earl Pool up, won the Breeders' Futurity here today. Windy City, from the stable of F. M. Grabner, was second, and Clyde Van Suden, owned by H. P. Gardner, took the show money. The time was 1:08 4-5, which equals the track record for the futurity course. The course is 170 feet short of six furlongs. The race was worth $18,500 to the winner's owner.

After a long delay at the barrier the starter got them lined up to his satisfaction and released the webbing.

Current immediately took the lead and was followed closely by Justinian and Hot Shot. At the half-mile ground Windy City had replaced Justinian in second place and Cylde Van Dusen was moving up rapidly.

At the finish Current was eased up to win by three lengths, while Windy City was two lengths in advance of Clyde Van Dusen. The winner returned $6.20 for $2.

C. Wissinger's Huntsman won the first race, a gallop of a mile and an eighth. Huntsman took the lead at the start and remained in front all during the running. Two lengths back of the winner came Queen Royal, with Xtra a nose back to get the show.

Huntsman Paid $7.50.

Blue Daisy managed to stick it out long enough to win the second race by a nose from Fraxnella and pay $7.86. A head back of the winner came Lucky Xenora. The time for the dash over the Futurity course was 1:10 1-5.

F. Swain's Clover Club won the third race at one mile and a furlong. He got up in the last few jumps to win from Houseboy by a nose. Bedford was third. Clover Club refunded $12.32 for $2.

Stuyvesant Peabody's Mino won the fourth race over the Futurity course. He joined Retort, the early pace maker, on the turn and drew out to win by two lengths. Bather was third. The time 1:08 4-5 equaled the track record.

SOUTHERN METHODIST LOSES TO BAYLOR, 2-0

By the Associated Press.

WACO, Tex., Nov. 17.—Reed of S. M. U. failed to complete a pass while standing back of his own goal line with the count 0—0 in the fourth quarter here today and the Baylor Bears, playing an "inspired" game, won from the Southern Methodists of Dallas, 2 to 0. Three Baylor players rushed Reed to give the Bears a safety. The game ended with the Mustangs threatening Baylor's goal line.

Texas University now leads the Southwest Conference, with the possibility that it will finish ahead for the flag.

DRURY ELEVEN DEFEATS WILLIAM JEWELL, 12-0

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Nov. 17.—The Drury College Panthers battered their way to a 12—0 victory over William Jewell of Liberty here today, before a homecoming crowd of 1500.

The Cardinals were outclassed in every department of the game, the Drury line holding them to 39 yards gained in scrimmage and 4 first downs, while Drury piled up 229 yards in scrimmage for 13 first downs.

Smith, freshman fullback, was the Drury star, scoring both touchdowns and averaging eight yards every time he carried the ball. Talbot's punting also featured for Drury.

HUGHES' FIELD GOAL GIVES MICHIGAN 3-0 VICTORY OVER AGGIES

By the Associated Press.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Nov. 17.—A field goal from the toe of Hughes, Wolverine fullback, in the second period gave Michigan a 3-to-0 victory over Michigan Aggies in a slow and at times uninteresting football game here today. State flashed a forward passing attack in the early stages of the game that bothered Michigan for a time, but lacked the punch to score within the 15-yard stripe. Rain slowed the play during much of the game.

Both teams were guilty of fumbles as the final period opened, but the State team struck its stride and advanced the ball into Michigan's territory, where much of the play of the period took place. State substitutions failed to give the team the necessary punch to put it in the lead and the game ended with the score: Michigan 3; Michigan State 0.

CHANCE PLAY WINS IN COMBAT STAKE AT BOWIE

By the Associated Press.

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 17.—The Arden Farm Stable's Chance Play, under Linus McAtee's perfect ride, scored in a sensational finish in winning the Combat Handicap, a mile and one-sixteenth gallop here this afternoon. He carried 126 pounds, came from a long way back and snatched victory right on the wire. E. B. McLean's Jock was second and Seagram Stable's Gaffsman third.

Jock displaying excellent speed, quickly opened a wide lead and at the far turn had a commanding lead but began tiring in the stretch. Chance Play was reserved until the final furlong, then came with a powerful rush and won by a nose. Jock was second by eight lengths over Gaffsman.

L. Bennett's Strong Tackle turned a form reversal when he won the opening event, a seven furlong sprint for 2-year-olds. Strong Tackle in his last previous out ran over the Pimlico track and was beaten many lengths. Dandy Phil and Cadilla alternated in the lead to the stretch where Strong Tackle came fast, too the lead and won going away by half a length. Dandy Phil took the place by a length from Cadilla.

Sun Friar Makes Good.

F. H. Smith's Sun Friar with Nick Huff in the saddle, sprung a surprise when he led home a good field in the second event, a gallop over the mile and one-sixteenth route. He paid $19.7 to win. Golden Auburn jumped away to the lead with Stretcher second and Sun Friar third. The latter took the lead in the stretch and won by a length and a half. Stretcher took the place by three lengths.

Soul of Honor Pays $62.60.

The Audley Farm's Soul of Honor, carrying 117 pounds, won the third race, a six furlong sprint by a nose with Neddie second and Sun Shadow third. Soul of Honor, an outsider, paid $62.60 for $2 to win.

The start was bad. Sun Shadow was not ready for the break and went in the air. He was away poorly and had no chance with the start. Chatford and Bagpiper cut out the running to the stretch where Soul of Honor took the lead and won by a nose with Neddie a length and a half ahead of Sun Shadow.

The Kershaw Stable's Knapsack, paying $22.30 for a $2 ticket, won the W. H. Burch Memorial sprint handicap, defeating Sandy, Candy Pig and seven other sprinters. Knapsack in his recent effort was an odds-on favorite and failed to show any speed. Gun Royal and Clean Play ran head and head for the first half mile, then Knapsack rushed to the front and won nicely in hand by a length and a half. Sandy took the place by a like distance from Candy Pig.

TIPPETT EXPECTS $18,000 GATE AT SHOW TOMORROW

Matchmaker Jack Tippett and officials of the Fred W. Stockham American Legion Post are confidently anticipating a packed hou. at the New Coliseum tomorrow night when Johnny 'Peewee' Kaiser, local featherweight contender, meets Joey Rivers of Kansas City in a State championship battle featuring a program of six professional boxing bouts.

Interest in the Kaiser-Rivers match has been stimulated to a great extent by Rivers' spectacular knockout victory over Paul Steadman a few weeks ago and by Kaiser's thrilling conquest of Milton Manguna a short time before the Rivers-Steadman bout. The advance sale of ringside reservations up to last night amounted to approximately $5000.

Although the financial terms contained in the articles of agreement for the Kaiser-Rivers fight have not been revealed it is understood each scrapper will receive about $3100 as his share of the purse in the event of a capacity attendance.

With ticket prices ranging from $3 for ringside accommodations down to $1 for general admission a capacity turnout would produce total receipts of approximately $18,000. Deducting 10 per cent for city and State tax assessments and 5 per cent for the American Legion would leave net receipts of about $15,300, of which sum about 40 per cent probably would go to the principals in the main event.

Both Well Conditioned.

Both Kaiser and Rivers appeared to be at the peak of condition yesterday afternoon when they held their penultimate training workouts at the National Gymnasium. Kaiser has been training diligently over a period of two weeks, doing road work every morning for the first 10 days and engaging in brisk sparring workouts every afternoon excepting last Sunday and Wednesday. Rivers trained at a Kansas City gymnasium for 17 days before he reported here Friday night. They will both hold light sparring workouts at the National this afternoon to conclude their preparatory activities.

The weight agreement for the Kaiser-Rivers bout is 126 pounds and indications are that both fighters will be under that mark when they step upon the scales at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon to undergo the customary examination before the State and City boxing commissioners.

Kaiser has furnished observant spectators some idea of the plan of attack he intends to rely upon in the ring by the diligent manner in which he has concentrated upon a slashing infighting offense in sparring bouts with Lou Terry, Joe Ghnouly, Lee Rossi and Lawrence Hawkins.

Rivers' previous local engagements, particularly his bouts with Joe Pagalini, Tommy O'Loughlin and Paul Steadman, have indicated the Kansas City ringster is more susceptible to body blows than to punches directed at his head. He has an artful knack of slipping or evading hooks or crosses aimed at his jaw.

While devoting much of his attention to the perfection of an effective offense for the impending shindig Kaiser has not overlooked the necessity of developing a good defense against Rivers' dynamic right hand wallops. Rivers is a fighter of the Lou Terry-Joe Ghnouly type and Kaiser's workouts with Ghnouly and Terry were designed largely to prepare him for the system of offense his rival probably will employ.

Other Bouts of Promise.

A colorful program has been thrown around the Rivers-Kaiser feature to provide two additional 10-round contests and three prelims of six rounds each. The premier attraction of the supporting card is a junior-lightweight event of 10 rounds between Lou Terry, the larruping local 130-pounder, and Jimmy Hackley of Los Angeles.

Terry has dropped only one decision in a total of 45 battles since his graduation from the local amateur game in which he attracted considerable attention three years ago by chalking up seven successive knockouts. Hackley has fought Tod Morgan twice in titular engagements.

Milton Manguna, the flashy New Orleans featherweight, returns to the scene of his encounter with Kaiser, to engage Dugan Layton of Springfield, Mo., in the other 10-round attraction. Layton is a newcomer to local ring circles and his match with Manguna was arranged as a tryout to determine his qualifications for future local engagements.

The Springfield boxer is reputed to be a comer. He was signed by Matchmaker Tippett on the strength of recommendations from local fans who saw Layton battle Joey Rivers through ten strenuous rounds at Sedalia last summer. In a previous debate with Rivers, the Springfield battler floored his opponent for a count of 'nine.' Layton's record includes decisions over Johnny Harris, Davey Young, Johnny McCoy, Johnny Hughes and a 10-round draw with Frankie Osner.

Ghnouly Versus Russo.

Jimmy Russo, Grand Rapids ring veteran, battles Joe Ghnouly, local bantam candidate and former Western A. A. U. champion, in a 6-round feature of the prelim bill. This will be Ghnouly's fourth professional bout. He outpointed Ray Palmer and Paul Lang and knocked out Frog Vidal in the preceding tryouts. Russo apparently is a rejuvenated fighter and in better shape than he was on any of his previous visits. A feature of his recent comeback campaign was his victory over Jimmy Harvey on Oct. 6, for which Russo received a belt emblematic of the Michigan State bantam championship.

Dave Knost, former National A. A. U. junior heavyweight champion, and Charley Pond, a hefty Texan, with some 30 professional bouts to his credit, are paired to clash in another 6-round contest. The curtain-raiser brings together Tommy Smith, local welterweight, and Clarence "Kid" Shaulters of Scott Field, in a return match. Shaulters outpointed Smith in a stubbornly fought match at the Ainad Temple in East St. Louis last winter.

Harry S. Sharpe and Walter Heisner have been selected by Stockham Post officials to referee the contests. They will officiate alternately.

Final training workouts of the fighters prepping at the National Gymnasium are scheduled to begin at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon.

NEW RECORD SET IN MIDDLE WEST BOWLING TOURNAMENT HERE

FLESH GETS 1981 IN ALL EVENTS AND WITH MEYER LEADS DOUBLES

Mid-West Tenpin Officials Hold Meeting Today

THE annual meeting of the Middle West Bowling Association will be held at the Marquette Hotel, starting at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Kansas City will without a doubt be awarded the next tournament, inasmuch as no other city has come out with a bid. Kansas City held the event several years ago and last season handled the American Bowling Congress tournament.

In addition to the selection of a city for the next tournament, officers for the coming year will be elected. The prize list also will be ratified at the meeting.

One new all-time record was set on the first squad yesterday in the Middle West Tenpin Tournament at Schaefer's Delmar Recreation, when Roy Flesh totaled 1981 for the all-events. He had a score of 624 in the singles. In the team event he shot 625.

Flesh rolled 732 in the doubles, with games of 289, 227 and 216, while his partner, Hi Meyer had 199, 204 and 210.

Other scores rolled in the two-man event on the squad were: Simpson-Grab 1191; Sasseen-Quitmeyer, 1159; Kerr-Lanstelle, 1126; Bond-Shevlin, 1127.

On the second squad Goodman and Moran turned in the best doubles total with 1135 while Wirth and Kenney were second, totaling 1118. In the singles Law shot 608 and Kenney 580.

New Five-Men Leaders.

The Meridian Garage team of Indianapolis shot into the lead in the five-men event last night with a score of 3037.

Louis Alhoff of the Wellston lodge of the Craftsmen League and G. Schauer of the Grotto league bowled 706 to tie for the lead in the singles.

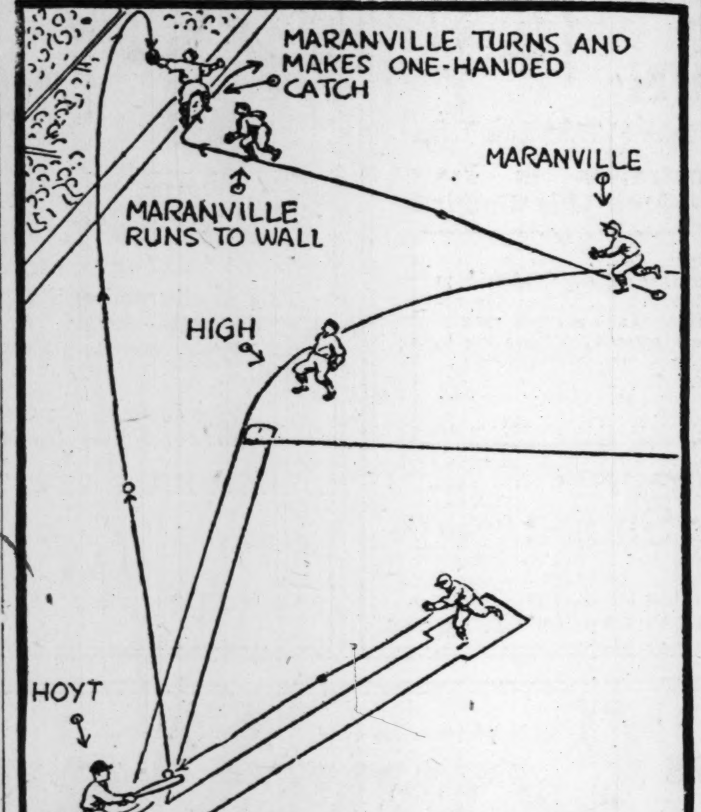
The Meridians bowled games of 981, 1044 and 1612 to get their total with E. Reichert leading the way with 675. He had games of 222, 230 and 223. Jess Pritchert, who captured the all events in 1923 with 1972 was second high with 630; D. James got 617; Joe Fulton 586 and F. Snyder 529.

The Marrott Shoes of Indianapolis hung up the high single game score, 1123, and moved into temporary fifth place with 2918. In their 1123 game, Rossmussen shot 259, L. Weisman 211, C. Cray 194, L. Fox 257 and F. Fox 202.

Alfeldt and Schauer in shooting their big total in the singles each shot over 200 in each game. Schauer got games of 249, 223 and 234 while Alfeldt got games of 237, 246 and 223. In the 21 years of the Middle West there was only one other 700 score shot in the singles. Jess Pritchert of Indianapolis won the event with 726.

The E. A. Schaefer team, bowling on the last squad last night, shot into second place in the team event with a total of 3016. They had games of 993, 987 and 1036. The Kinsey Surveyors shot into fourth place.

Maranville Made Third Outstanding Play of Title Series, McGraw Says



By John J. McGraw,
Manager, New York Giants.
(Copyright, 1928.)

All through the late world series Rabbit Maranville, though older than any other regular on either club, played brilianty and with the snap he showed as a youngster.

An example of this gameness, and one of the greatest individual plays of the series, was in the third inning of the first game. This was a good illustration of co-ordination of muscle and mind which enables born ballplayers to think and act simultaneously.

It so happened that Maranville's great catch of Hoyt's foul fly had no serious effect on the game but that does not mar its brilliance.

Hoyt lifted a high foul that went well back of third and toward the temporary boxes along the foul line. Seeing that it was impossible for Andy High to field the ball, Maranville got away with the crack of the bat and headed straight for the boxes. It looked impossibe for him to catch the ball and avoid crashing into the wooden barrier. While still running and looking upward he seemed to sense the danger, but that didn't stop the Rabbit. Once he had the ball gauged he suddenly swerved and without lessening his speed followed the line of the wall. A two handed catch would have been impossible, so he shot out one hand just as he turned and snatched the ball right off the wall, holding it aloft as he kept on his course.

The skill of this play was that the Rabbit made the catch and avoided a collision by one of those lightning like calculations that are possible only to instinctive ballplayers.

That play gave the whole team fresh courage for a few minutes. It made fans understand quite clearly why McKechnie had used the aging Maranville as his regular shortstop instead of a younger man.

FINANS' SMOOTH PLAY MAY DEFEAT KOLSTER ELEVEN

Not content with having upset the strong America team last Sunday in the biggest surprise of the Municipal Soccer League season, the management of the Schulze team has added strength to the forward line by signing Henry Fernandez, one of the stars of the East St. Louis Spanish-American Club, which defeated the St. Louis Olympic team in a practice game last spring. Fernandez will probably be used at center forward in today's game against the Russell team at Fairground Park, acording to Business Manager Gene Bender. On the strength of their victory over the Angelicas, the Schulze team is expected to topple the Russells over, but this can scarcely be regarded as a certainty.

There was an unusual number of interesting games booked today. At Sherman Park the Finans, because of their superior team play, should come off winners over always a possibility that the Kolthe all-star Kolsters, but there is sters will strike a more effective combination than they showed last Sunday, when they were beaten by the Squadrons. Never was it more clearly proved that a soccer club cannot win without teamwork than when the Kolsters succumbed last week.

At Carondelet Park the South Side Club, one of the strongest all-star aggregations in the Municipal League, will face strong opposition in La Sociedad Espanola, which in English is The Spanish Society. If the Spanish club can steady its game down a bit it may steal the group title. It is by far the fastest club in the Muny League.

At Forest Park, keen rivalry has been aroused between two young teams, the Cook A. C. and the Academy A. C. They meet today.

The schedule follows:

Fairground Park No. 2—Russells vs. Schulzes; Shreves vs. Angelicas. Referee—Chas. de Witt.

Fairground Park No. 3 and No. 4—At Fairground No. 3, A. C. Bauer vs. Palermos; Pals vs. Salisburys. Referee—J. J. Kelly. At Fairground No. 4, Hartmans vs. Benj. Pettys. Referee—W. Brady.

Sherman Park—Finans vs. Kolsters; Y. M. H. A. vs. Squadrons. Referee—Oliver Miller.

Carondelet Park No. 1—South Side vs. La Sociedad Espanola; German Sport Club No. 1 vs. St. Thomas. Referee—J. H. Cradock.

Carondelet Park No. 2—Trumbulls vs. Benton Parks; German Sport Club No. 2 vs. Garretts. Referee—L. Robbins.

Forest Park—Union Electric vs. Missouri Pacific; Cook A. C. vs. Academy A. C. Referee—Thos. Lyster.

Concordia Park Juniors—Uncles Place Jrs. vs. Lee-Schermen; Koch Bros. vs. S. S. Mary and Joseph. Referee—R. Wall.

INDUSTRIAL BASKET LEAGUE HAS OPENINGS FOR SEVERAL QUINTETS

The entry list in the Y. M. C. A. Industrial Basbetball League will close Monday, Nov. 26, and the schedule will open Friday, Dec. 7.

Teams already entered represent the Ralston Purinas, Wabash Club, Western Electric, International Shoe, M. K. T. R. R., and Laclede Christy.

There is room for several more teams in this league, which is affiliated with the Municipal Basketball League, and plays its games at the 138th Infantry Armory at Grand and Market. Teams entered must represent plants who are members of the City-Wide Industrial Athletic Association. Applications for membership may be obtained by applying at Room 420, 1528 Locust street. All players must be bonafide employes of the plant they represent at least 60 days before the opening of the league.

Tennessee Beats Vanderbilt, 6-0

By the Associated Press.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 17.—Youth served itself today when the Tennessee Vols conquered an inferiority complex and defeated Vanderbilt, 6 to 0, to remain in the running for Southern Conference laurels. It was the first time Tennessee won from the Commodores since 1916 and the third time since 1892.

After a heart-breaking fumble by Witt in the second quarter with the Vandy goal posts looming just ahead, the quarterback and captain recovered the ball himself, scattered his men and hurled a 16-yard pass over the goal line to Hugg. It was the fourth down and Vandy realized a pass was coming, but could not cover Hugg.

Score by periods:

Tennessee	0	6	0	0—6
Vanderbilt	0	0	0	0—0

Summary: Tennessee scoring, touchdown, Hugg.

Daviscourt and Shikat to Meet On the Mat Here

Dick Shikat, German heavyweight wrestler, and Dick Daviscourt, the California headlock artist, will meet in a one-fall affair scheduled as the main event of a professional wrestling show to be held at the New Coliseum on Monday night November 26, it was announced last night.

Shikat has participated in three local engagements this season, defeating Herman Gotch of Omaha, Neb., John Evko, the Jugo-Slav heavyweight, and Allen Eustace of Winfield, Kan. Daviscourt's local encounters this season netted him victories over Leon Labriola, an Italian matman, and Roy Steele of Seattle.

An endeavor will be made to sign Ed 'Strangler' Lewis to meet the winner of the Daviscourt-Shikat bout.

Detroit Crushes Fordham, 19 to 0

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—The University of Detroit dazzled Fordham with its bag of football tricks at the Polo Grounds today and won its fourteenth consecutive game by a score of 19 to 0.

All of the points were made in the second and third periods, and all of them by Connell, who tonight had 105 points to support his claim to the scoring leadership of Middle Western teams. He made two touchdowns in the second period, both after five-yard sprints around Fordham's right end, and the other in the third quarter with a 20-yard run after he had taken a pass from Brazil. His first and third place kicks for goal after touchdown were blocked.

After the first period, during which the Detroiters seemed to have stage fright within the hollow shadows of the Polo Grounds, the superiority of the unbeaten invaders was evident, despite the plucky defense displayed by Fordham.

Detroit	0	13	6	0—19

Detroit scoring: Touchdowns—Connell (3).

Points from try after touchdown: Connell (one kick from placement out of three attempts).

"HONEYBOY" FINNEGAN BEATS ROUTIS IN NEW BOSTON ARENA

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Nov. 17.—Dick "Honeyboy" Finnegan of Boston won a well earned decision over Andre Routis of France, featherweight champion of the world, in 10 rounds at the opening of the new Boston Madison Square Garden here tonight. Both men were over weight, so the Frenchman's title was not involved.

Gaston Charles of France scored a technical knockout over Red Chapman of Chelsea in the fifth round of their 10-round semifinial. The Frenchman cut Chapman's lip so deeply that his handlers refused to permit him to continue.

A crowd of 15,000, including Tex Rickard and a group of his Madison Square Garden associates, attended the opening event of the sport arena, which has a seating capacity of 17,500, for boxing shows.

MADISONS LIKELY TO SLOW DOWN IN THE MUD TODAY

Mud, which is almost sure to prevail at Sportsman's Park this afternoon when the teams of the St. Louis Soccer League take the field, may finally accomplish the downfall of the Madison club which has gone through five league games without defeat. The Tablers and the Wellstons have each had two chances to stop the Madisons and both have failed. The Millers have had but one game with the league leaders and today they get their second chance. Thus far the games have been played on dry, fast turf, a condition which enabled the young Madison forwards to make greatest use of their speed. Because of their comparative lack of weight, it is believed the Madisons will be at a disadvantage in the mud.

The Wellstons and Tablers will meet in the first game which is scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

Georgia Tech Downs Alabama

By the Associated Press.

ATLANTA, Ga., Nov. 17.—Held to a tie for the first three periods, Georgia Tech put on a crushing rally that routed a great university of Alabama team here this afternoon 33 to 13, in one of the most spectacularly fought games seen here this season.

Score by periods:

Alabama	0	13	0	0—13
Georgia Tech	7	6	0	20—33

Scoring: Georgia Tech—Touchdowns, Mizell, Thomason, 2; Randolph, Dunlay. Points, after touchdown—Thomason, 3. Alabama—Touchdowns, Holm, 2. Point after touchdown, Skidmore.

Officials: Referee—Birch, Chicago. Umpire—Hutchins, Purdue. Head linesman, Perry, Sewanee. Field judge, Powell, Wisconsin.

KILLED WHEN HE DRIVES AUTO IN FRONT OF TRAIN

Locomotive Engineer in Car Evidently Blinded by Fog at Mitchell Crossing.

Arthur Pindell, 42 years old, of Granite City, a locomotive engineer for the Illinois Terminal Co., a belt line operating out of Alton, was killed yesterday when a coupe in which he was driving to work was demolished by a Wabash passenger train at Mitchell, between Granite City and Alton.

The accident occurred at 7 a. m. Pindell was taken in an ambulance to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Granite City, where he died at 8:10 o'clock without regaining consciousness. He suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries.

There are three sets of tracks at the Mitchell crossing, with enough space between them for automobiles to stop, as is the practice. A train was passing on the second set and Pindell started over the first tracks on which another train, the Wabash Midnight Limited from Chicago, was approaching. His automobile was carried down the tracks for 100 feet.

Fog is thought to have prevented Pindell from seeing the Wabash train. Harry Stigall, the engineer, reported his headlights were burning and his whistle sounding. Virgil Phillips, crossing watchman, said he flagged Pindell outside the network of tracks, but Pindell then attempted to cross the first set of tracks.

Pindell resided with his wife and three children at 2222 State street, Granite City. He had just acquired a new house in Alton and had planned to move there today to avoid the drive from Granite City.

CHARLES L. WOOD OF ROLLA HEADS MISSOURI EDITORS

Association Urges Officers to Take Steps to Obtain Change in Libel Laws.

Charles L. Wood of Rolla was elected president of the Missouri Press Association at the close of its sixty-second annual convention in Hotel Statler yesterday. Other officers: E. E. Swain, Kirksville, vice president; Mrs. Jessie Childers Williams, Troy, recording secretary, and Miss Pearl Peters, Monett, treasurer.

The association voted to give $1000 toward a $5000 fund being raised by Dean Walter Williams of the University of Missouri School of Journalism for the journalism department of Yenshing University, Pekin, China. A resolution was adopted urging association officers to watch all legislation affecting newspapers and to take steps to bring about reforms in the libel laws of Missouri, to make them conform with the "more liberal laws of other States."

PRIZE CALF BRINGS $1.85 A POUND AT STOCKYARDS

Black Lindy, an Angus calf which won the grand championship in the Producers' Baby Beef Club Show, Thursday, broke all price records for steers at the National Stockyards Friday when auctioned for $1.85 a pound, or $2046.10. The purchaser was E. P. Voegeli, steward for the Mayfair Hotel. The previous price record at the stockyards was 71 cents a pound.

The calf, which weighed 1106 pounds, was raised and exhibited by a 19-year-old boy, Raymond Mobley, of Mount Sterling, Ill.

Bidding also was lively for other prize winners at the show. Fearnaught's Type, a Shorthorn calf exhibited by Rothwell Moore of Bowling Green, Mo., brought $370, the American Packing Co. bidding 30 cents a pound. The remainder of the 257 calves entered in the show by boys and girls representing 18 counties in Missouri and Illinois brought prices ranging from 16 to 20 cents a pound.

NIEDRINGHAUS SPENT $650

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 17.—Congressman Henry F. Niedringhaus of St. Louis, Republican, who was re-elected in the Tenth Congressional District on Nov. 6, filed an expense account today with the Secretary of State, showing expenditure of $650 in his campaign. Of this amount $300 was an assessment by the Republican City Committee of St. Louis ,and $150 was an assessment by the Republican County Committee of St. Louis County.

James F. Green of St. Louis, Democrat, one of the nine successful candidates for Circuit Judge in St. Louis, reported expenditure of $998 of which $259.50 was expended in his primary campaign for the nomination. Of the $738 50 spent in the election campaign, $400 was contributed to the Democratic City Committee and the remainder was for advertising, printing and miscellaneous expenses.

Three New Italian Cardinals.

ROME, Nov. 17.—La Tribuna says that three new Italian Cardinals are to be created at the forthcoming consistory during December. The paper names Mgr. Pacelli, Nuncio at Berlin, and Mgr. Serafini, Secretary of the Congregation of the Council, and Mgr. Lavitrano, Archbishop of Palermo. This would give 34 seats to Italian Cardinals with 33 non-Italians, restoring, as the newspaper points out, the "traditional equilibrium" in the Sacred College.

Butterfly Ball at Country Club for Miss Jane Butler

Debutante Is Honored by Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Bixby, With Spring Setting in Pastel Colors.

THOUSANDS of butterflies, beautiful in their delicate colorings, set amid masses of spring blossoms, created a novel note in the debut party of Miss Jane Butler, attractive daughter of Mrs. Henry S. Butler, given by her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Foster Bixby, Friday night at the St. Louis Country Club.

The host and hostess, with the debutante and Mrs. Butler, received their guests, in accordance with long established custom, in the lounge of the club, through the doorway of which could be seen the butterfly fairyland. About them the room fairly bloomed with dozens of baskets of flowers sent to the debutante. Miss Butler wore a bouffant gown of filmy white tulle fashioned over white satin, and carried an armful of Killarney roses. Mrs. Bixby was gowned in golden and brown metallic cloth, shot with gold threads, and wore a corsage of orchids. Mrs. Butler appeared in a gown of black chiffon velvet with traceries of rhinestones, and a graceful scarf of the velvet about her shoulders.

Through the ballrooms and dining rooms was developed a rose-tinted picture of a May day. The walls, festooned with greenery, were aglow with softly shaded lights and covered with thousands of gilded and pastel shaded butterflies poised on the leaves. In the arched doorways, larger ones, each of brilliant hue, some red, others purple, spread their gauzy wings as if in flight. Overhead the chandeliers were encircled with fringed bands of silver and pink tissue and overhung with leafy branches covered with butterflies. The dining tables were made more attractive with low branched silver candelabra which held yellow candles arranged with dozens of small butterflies perched at intervals and others almost concealing the silver. Alternating with candelabra were vases of

Weddings and Engagements

ANNOUNCEMENT was made yesterday of the engagement of Miss Evelyn Laura Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Mansell Hart of 3438 Russell boulevard, and Loren Willing Wood of 329 Belt avenue. The news was told at a bridge luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Hart of the Town Club. The table was decorated in gold and bronze chrysanthemums and yellow roses and was lighted by yellow candles in crystal holders.

The wedding will take place Thursday afternoon, Jan. 3, at 4 o'clock, at Grace Methodist Episcopal Church, the Rev. R. H. Schuette to officiate. Miss Hart will be attended by Miss Marion Edmonston as maid of honor and Miss Marcella Gladden Gorin and Miss Dorothy Marie Garesche as bridesmaids. Harry Barnes Johnson will serve as best man for Mr. Wood and William Worthington and John Emmett Rohan will be the ushers. The ceremony will be followed by a small reception in the Tower of the Congress Hotel and a dinner for the members of the bridal party.

The prospective bride attended Washington University and is a member of Pi Beta Phi Sorority. Mr. Wood also attended Washington University and is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon Fraternity.

Those present at the announcement party were Mr. Wood's mother, Mrs. Henry Carey Korndoerfer, Mrs. Walter Sutherland, Mrs. Marion Weir, Mrs. Albert H. Walker, Mrs. Clarence Oertle, Miss Marian Edmonston, Miss Marcella Gladden Gorin, Miss Dorothy Marie Garesche, Miss Helen von Arx, Miss Loretta Hogan, Miss Mary Kitts and Miss Mary Dowling.

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of the marriage Thursday evening, Nov. 8, of Miss Mary Baird Creveling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James G. Creveling of "Hillhurst," Nashville, Tenn., to Francis Russell Campbell, son of Mr. L. R. Campbell. Dr. James I. Vance, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, officiated at the ceremony. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Marie Adele Creveling of Webster Groves, as maid of honor, and had as her bridesmaids Miss Stella Mai Hawkinson, Miss Eleanor Kirkman, Miss Julia Fay Norwood, Miss Harriet Ingram and Miss Bessie Brown. The flower girls were Jean Campbell, a niece of the groom, and Nancy Perry. The groom had as his best man his brother, Matt Campbell of Miami, Fla. The groomsmen were Gordon Creveling of Macozart, Sonora, Mexico; Donald Creveling of Pachuca, Hidalgo, Mexico; Andrew Ewing, Miller Manier and John Bell Keeble Jr. Following the ceremony a reception was held with Mr. and Mrs. Campbell receiving, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Creveling and Mrs. William Campbell. Diplomatic Corps Reception Brilliant

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—At the White House Thursday evening the President and Mrs. Coolidge gave their annual reception in honor of the diplomatic corps. It is only for this reception and that of New Year's day that the Ambassadors, Ministers and other men of the corps wear their court uniforms and all of their decorations.

This was the second of the series of the state entertainments held annually by the President. A new Ambassador from Japan and his wife were among the attractive figures, but it was not the first time that Mr. Debuchi has attended a White House reception, for as a lesser diplomat he was here some years ago. The Ambassador of Germany made his debut here at a diplomatic reception.

Fifty-five countries were represented and the blaze of gold and brilliant uniforms combined with the glittering toilets of the be-jeweled women to make the simple but stately drawing room suite of the White House look like fairy land. It was in marked contrast with the dinner which the President and Mrs. Coolige gave last week for the members of the Cabinet, an event always more like a family party.

Mrs. Coolidge introduced a fashion new to Washington in the huge peacock feather fan she carried the wide spread of the richly carved sticks showing hundreds of the richly colored eyes of the plumage. It was this same fan that lent charm to her simpler gown worn at the Cabinet dinner a week ago.

Mme. Sze, wife of the Minister of China unfurled a peacock feather fan that was quite as large and as handsome as that carried by Mrs. Coolidge. There were other huge fans of flat feathers which marked the passing of the long, sweeping plumes of the ostrich so much in vogue in past seasons.

Miss Elsie Alexander, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. Alexander, of Cleveland, O., and great-great-granddaughter of James Hoban, architect of the White House, was among those attending the reception. This debutante was brought to Washington for her coming out because of a family tradition.

When she called at the White House some days ago, Mrs. Coolidge gave her a nail from the original roof of the mansion as a souvenir.

Miss Alexander was the center of much attention. She wore white, her befrilled tulle skirt having every ruffle edged with silver embroidery while a long tightly fitted bodice of white velvet formed the upper part of the gown.

Many sections of the country where represented in the debutantes presented this week. Miss Peggy Tyner, daughter of Mrs. Elonzo Tyner of Chicago and Washington having the largest coming out. Mrs. Tyner gave a ball at the Mayflower Hotel. The bud and her mother were accompanied from the White House reception Thursday night—the date of the Tyner ball—by several hundred diplomats, officials and resident society folk. The Belgian Ambassador and Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, and the Turkish and Brazilian Ambassadors, also were there.

The first debutante of the season was Miss Mignon Sherley, daughter of former Representative Swager Sherley, and Mrs. Sherley of Louisville, Ky. Miss Sherley's uncle, Douglas Sherley, was for many years a social leader in Louisville, and the debut brought out the Southern contingent of Washington society. Another Southern belle had her coming out tea dance Monday when Mrs. Chester A. Snow presented her niece, Miss Nancy Beale, granddaughter of the late Thetus Sims of Tennessee, for many years a member of the House.

While Miss Marian Jardine, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture, and Mrs. Jardine, is the only cabinet debutante this season, Miss Laura Frances Ottis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis J. Ottis of St. Paul, is here with her uncle and aunt, the Secretary of State and Mrs. Frank B. Kellogg, who gave an elaborate dinner dance in her honor tonight. Mr. and Mrs. Ottis arrived in Washington with their daughter earlier in the week. Mrs. Kellogg gave a tea for her sister.

Next Thursday the President and Mrs. Coolidge will give their dinner for the diplomatic corps, the following Thursday, Thanksgiving day, being held open for a family dinner.

Two young guests at the White House, the Misses Prescott of Boston, are granddaughters of Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Stearns of Boston. They attended the reception Thursday night and are remaining over for the Kellogg dinner dance tonight.

Fry Memorial Anniversary.

The Fortieth Anniversary of the Dr. Fry Memorial Methodist Church, 2501 Clifton avenue, will be celebrated today. A homecoming celebration and a musical program, in which a choir of 25 years ago will participate, has been arranged. The Rev. Rowland Hill is pastor of the church.

Activities of the St. Louis Women's Clubs

THE fourth annual luncheon of the Scottish Rite Woman's Club was held Tuesday in the Palm room of Hotel Chase for about 400 of the members and a number of guests.

The speaker's table was beautifully decorated in an arrangement of yellow chrysanthemums combined with purple to emphasize the colors of the club. The places were marked by tiny hand-made umbrellas, and flower candy cups in the colors of purple and gold were used. At the places of each past president a tall golden candle burned and dolls dressed in yellow frocks were favors. The smaller luncheon tables were adorned in yellow poms. Mrs. Orie Leon Herlinger, the president, presided and Miss Naomi E. Kennedy served as chairman of the hospitality and luncheon committees.

After the introduction of the members of the executive board and invocation by Dr. Ivan Lee Holt, talks were given by Mayor Victor Miller, Walter J. C. Neun, Forrest C. Donnell and Dr. J. J. Kessler. Bridge was played after the luncheon.

The Dramatic Art Section of Scottish Rite Woman's Club, Mrs. Eugene R. Brown chairman, will meet Tuesday at 1 p. m. in the lounge of Scottish Rite Cathedral, 3637 Lindell boulevard. Following the business session, Mrs. W. R. Harris will direct the group in dramatic art.

The Music Section will not meet until Friday morning, Nov. 30, the chairman, Miss Dorothy Rapp, announces. Rehearsal of "The Messiah," which will be given in conjunction with the Schubert Club of East St. Louis, will be started at this meeting.

The Tuesday Literary Club will hold its semimonthly meeting Tuesday in the Little Theater of the Artists' Guild at 2:30 p. m. the president, Mrs. Arthur Branch, presiding. The program will be devoted to French Drama. Mrs. Donald MacDonald will give the literary setting of three dramatists of the Seventeenth Century, Racine, dramatic poet of France; Corneille and Moliere. The dramatic part of the program will be a reading by Mrs. Fanetta Sargent Haskell of Moliere's "Les Femmes Sarantes."

The Eighth District Board of the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs will meet Wednesday at 10:30 a. m. at the Town Club. Mrs. L. E. Britt will present plans for the establishment of the new Junior Club Department of which she is chairman.

Mrs. Charles Ellis, American Citizenship chairman, will hold the only committee meeting this week. Thursday, at 10:30 a. m. at the Town Club, Mrs. H. W. Whelpley will speak on "The Citizenship of the Indian." The meeting is open to all.

Tomorrow at 2:30 p. m. the Child Study Group of the College Club will meet to discuss "The Modern Parent and the Home," with Mrs. Milton Lauenstein as leader.

Tuesday afternoon Dr. Karl Morgan Block will speak on "Education for Citizenship." At 3 o'clock preceding Dr. Block's address tea will be served with Dr. Grace S. Mountjoy and Mrs. Chester W. Kotsrean acting as hostesses, assisted by Dr. Kate C. Spain, Mrs. Alfred Mansfield, Miss Lottie M. Huff and Mrs. Max S. Muench. The universities in charge are Drury and George Peabody College for Teachers. The program has been arranged by the Education Committee.

Wednesday, at 3:45 p. m., the subject for discussion by the Music Study Group will be "Musical Forms," with illustrations. Miss Gladys Morey will act as leader.

Thursday, at 3:15 p. m., the International Relations Study Group will meet under the leadership of Mrs. Charles Martin.

Friday, at 3:30 p. m., the fiction and drama study group, in charge of Mrs. F. Ray Liemkuehler will discuss Knut Hamsun's "Women at the Pump" and Bedel's "Jerome." Mrs. Pierce J. Reilly will lead the discussion.

Tuesday, at 10:30 a. m., the regular monthly meeting of the board of managers will be held at the club.

That Shakspeare's plays are simple enough to be grasped by children was asserted by Agnes Ruth Hoffinger in her lecture "Life Lessons in Cymbeline," given before St. Louis Tercentenary Shakspeare Society, Monday, at Vandervoort Music Hall. "Life lessons in Winter's Tale," the closing lecture in this series of five, will be given by Miss Hoffinger tomorrow at 2 p. m.

The first evening meeting of the society was held at the Forest Park Hotel, Thursday, Nov. 1, at 7 o'clock. The president, Mrs. Harry E. Wagoner, presided.

The following members of the Round Table and officers of the society, gave brief discussions on the appeal of Shakspeare to business men: Dr. Alexander N. DeMenil, Father Albert Muntsch, S. J.; Richard Spamer, Casper Yost, Miss Agnes Ruth Hoffinger, Mrs. O. S. Ledman, Mrs. William Watt Spear, Mrs. William Harvey England and Mrs. J. Leyden White. These meetings will be held the first Thursday of every month. Mr. Spamer was appointed chairman of a committee to arrange programs for the evening meetings. Father Muntsch also will serve on this committee.

The St. Louis Dante Club held its monthly luncheon meeting at Forest Park Hotel Wednesday. The president, Mrs. Edward T. Card, presided. Following a short business session, Mrs. Charles F. Richardson of the program committee spoke on Dante and the Divine Comedy. Roll call was responded to with quotations from "La Vita Nuova."

Cantos one and two of the Paradiso were read by the members. Mrs. Harry E. Wagoner read the notes and members discussed the text. Mrs. Eugene Marsh, president of the St. Louis branch of American Pen Women, was a guest and read an original poem. Mrs. B. M. Godfrey also was a guest. Mrs. William Watt Spear, chairman of literature, reported on the meeting of her committee. Members were requested to take books for children to the Baptist Sanitarium. Mrs. Olive Crede, chairman of applied education, reported on a talk given by John Rush Powell on the "Cultural Value of the High School."

The members of the Ever Ready Club were entertained Monday at the home of Miss Louise Arp, 3439 Crittenden avenue. The occasion was the first anniversary of the club and a large birthday cake formed the centerpiece for the luncheon table. The club will give its Christmas party Dec. 10 in Nugent's auditorium.

The Minerva Literary Club, with Mrs. E. M. Folsom as hostess, met Friday at the Brownsome Hotel. Mrs. George Zeller was the speaker of the day and her subject was, "My Visit to Honolulu." Miss Mary Alice Hardin of the Morse School of Expression gave a number of readings. Mrs. B. B. McLaughlin of Jacksonville, Fla., and England; Mrs. Louise Gallaher, Mrs. A. Ruhlman and Mrs. Brown of the Brownsome Hotel were guests. Roll call was responded to with current events.

The Kirkwood Study Hour Club met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. A. M. Russell, Kirkwood, the president, Mrs. R. F. Ralph, presiding. After a short business session, Mrs. G. W. Baumhoff gave a talk on Chaucer, with readings from his various works. The next meeting will be held Nov. 27 at the Old Folks Home in Kirkwood.

The Ensee Study Circle met Monday with Mrs. H. C. Stevens, 207 Roberta street, Ferguson. A program followed the luncheon. The club will meet Nov. 26 at the Town Club with Mrs. H. E. Miller, as hostess.

The Cultus Club, following its program for the current year, "The Development of the English Novel," had as the subject for the November meeting "Industrial and Political Influences on the Novel of the Time." Mrs. Haidee Kouri discussed "The Industrial Revolution," and Mrs. J. F. Herdliska gave a resume of "The Political Situation in England." Reports were given on the Reciprocity Meetings of the Monday Club of Webster, by Mrs. G. O. Durham, and the St. Louis Women's Auxiliary R. A. M. by Mrs. Paul R. Fletcher.

A Reciprocity Meeting will be given by the Club Thursday at 2 p. m., at the George Carpenter Branch Library, 3309 South Grand boulevard.

The Monroe Parent-Teacher Association met Oct. 24. Reports of the convention of the Missouri branch of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, held at Trenton, were given by the delegates, Mrs. F. Suche and Mrs. George Koestner. The next meeting will be held Wednesday, at 2:30 p. m.

Reports of the state conference held in St. Louis were given by the delegates, Mrs. Howard Bailey, Mrs. James H. McCabe, Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw and Mrs. George N. Martin. The regent, Mrs. Joseph S. Calfee, has returned from Washington where she attended the exercises of laying the cornerstone of Constitution Hall. While in Washington Mrs. Calfee also attended a meeting of the committee for Founders Memorial and as chairman for Missouri pledged $500 to the fund from Missouri. During the recent conference a trip to Scott Field was sponsored by the St. Louis Chapter when 100 women were entertained at tea at the Officers' Club by Mrs. John Paegelow.

A loving cup was exhibited which was won by St. Louis chapter at the state conference for the best Smithsonian report.

More than 100 women attended the jubilee luncheon of the Hoover-for-President Club given in the Chrystal ballroom of the Hotel Chase Tuesday afternoon. The meeting took the form of a thanksgiving jubilee where everybody had the opportunity of giving a testimony in regard to the many activities of the club in the campaign.

Mrs. John C. Pritchard, State chairman, presided. The club will meet March 4 with the Men's Branch at the Engineers Club, to celebrate the inauguration of Mr. Hoover.

Mrs. Philip N. Moore, honorary State chairman, and Mrs. Joseph B. Kenney, State publicity chairman of the club, formerly State director of Near East Relief, were speakers at the luncheon.

Chapter EB of P. E. O., met at the home of Mrs. C. A. Neavles of 332 Newport avenue, Webster Groves, Nov. 9. After the luncheon the business meeting was held, and a constitutional drill was conducted by Mrs. E. C. Adams.

The next meeting will be held Friday at the home of Mrs. H. B. Ressler, 200 Jefferson road, Webster Groves.

The Colonial Daughters of the Seventeenth Century met Tuesday at the Forest Park Hotel. Miss Antionette P. Taylor, president, and Mrs. Frederick C. Harrington were the hostesses. Mrs. Lon Sanders read a paper on the origin, requirements and purposes of the society. Mrs. W. L. Kline reported on the fund for the sun dial. This fund was augmented by the sale of a floral study in oil painted by Miss Taylor. Mrs. Harrington and Mrs. Lorraine Jones gave a number of readings.

Members of the L. L. Club were entertained Friday at the home of Mrs. F. A. Borgsteadt, 742 Yale avenue. Mrs. L. H. Bowerman, president conducted the meeting. Mrs. J. B. Sproul reviewed, "The Swan Song" by Galsworthy. Mrs. Louis Keller reviewed "The Turn of the Century" by Mark Sullivan.

SILKS DESIGNED BY RENOWNED ARTISTS

These Stehli prints of surpassing chic are designed by eight noted French artists who are equally celebrated in the world of fashion and the realm of art. The intriguing designs are on superb Silk Crepe in 40-inch width; they are priced, yard, $4.50. (Second Floor.)

DRESSES FROM SIX PARIS COUTURIERS

The Costume Salon presents authentic copies of the original frocks designed in these lovely new Stehli silks, designed by French dressmakers. See these charming creations by Vionnet, Molyneux, Regny, Jenny, Bernard and Renee. $49.50 and $59.50. (Third Floor.)

When such masters of line and color and continental chic as the great French artists—Benito, Lepape, Brissaud, Boutet de Monvel—focus their genius on silk design, fabrics of surpassing chic are the result. And, furthermore, eight brilliant Paris couturiers, including Jane Regny, Molyneux and Jenny have designed dresses especially for these Silks. For the past week these Silks and originals have been on exhibition at the Franco-American Art Galleries in New York, under the auspices of the French consul. And now, for the first time in St. Louis, they are presented exclusively in our Silk Salon on the Second Floor. Copies of the original dresses made of the very same Silks may be purchased on our Third Floor.

Vogue patterns that duplicate the French dresses may be purchased in our pattern department, so that you may easily fashion these dresses yourself or have your dressmaker make them.

An Old Recipe to Darken Hair

By JANICE RANDALL

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients, for only 75 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.

PRINCE RETURNING TO U. S. AFTER LATVIAN ARMY SERVICE

Paul Lievien of Russia, Who Was in Bank Here, Will Reside in Philadelphia.

Paul Anatalovitch Lievien, a former Russian Prince, who, in 1926, left the First National Bank in St. Louis, where he worked in the traveling department, to serve his statutory enlistment in the Latvian army, has completed his service and is returning to the United States, according to a letter from Riga to his friend, Joseph Renard, St. Louis attorney.

Lievien wrote that he expected to depart in December from Latvia, where his mother, the former Princess Elizabeth, and his sister and brother have taken up their residence. He intends, however, to reside in Philadelphia.

WORK ON GOLD STAR COURT

Move Set Afoot to Complete Markings Here.

Completion of the Gold Star Tree Court of Honor on Kingshighway boulevard was urged by Mrs. Frank de Garmo, national president of the National Society of 1917 World War Registrars, at a meeting of the local chapter last Wednesday evening in the Town Club.

Mrs. de Garmo gave a report of the work being done all over the country in marking Gold Star highways and courts of honor. Each member present pledged herself to secure at least one new marker for the court of honor. At present there are about 1200 markers in the court and approximately 600 more are needed.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH TO BE REDEDICATED TODAY

Building Repaired at Cost of $100,000, Following the Tornado.

Holy Trinity Catholic Church, Fourteenth and Mallinckrodt streets, which has been reconstructed at a cost of $200,000 after having been struck by the tornada last year, will be rededicated by Archbishop Glennon at 10 o'clock this morning.

One end of the church, which was built in 1898, was torn away by the tornado and the interior, including the altars, wrecked. Services were held in the parochial school hall during the period that the church was being rebuilt.

A special musical program has been arranged for the mass, which will follow the dedication. Archbishop Glennon will preach.

Noted British Skipper Dies.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Nov. 17.—Capt. Charles Appleton Smith, one of Great Britain's best-known seamen, died today. He was known to thousands on both sides of the Atlantic as the man who first commanded the Berengaria when, as the Imperator, she was taken from the Germans. He retired from the Cunard service five years ago after nearly 30 years with that company His war service included the feat of taking 6000 troops and a crew of 1000 aboard the Aquitania in 1915 from Liverpool to Gallipoli.

With St. Louisans On the Continent

PARIS, Nov. 3.—Mr. and Mrs. F. A Luyties of St Louis crossed to Europe on the Majestic on its last trip.

Mrs. Loomis Johnson, formerly of St. Louis, who has been spending the summer and early autumn in Normandy, intends to leave Paris for New York next week.

Mrs. Louis Lombard, formerly of St. Louis, now residing in Castle de Trevano, Lugano, Switzerland, with her two daughters, Miss Lois and Miss Zuleika Lombard, will pass the winter season in New York.

Canon and Mrs. Killian A. Stimpson, formerly of St. Louis, with their two daughters, Miss Martha Ellen and Miss Frences, and Mrs. William E. Stimpson, returned to Europe on the Augustus last week after spending the summer in St. Louis. Canon Stimpson is in charge of the American Church in Florence, Italy.

The Irish-American coterie in Dublin has been much engaged in entertaining during the early autumn. The United States Minister and Mrs. Frederick Sterling, formerly of St. Louis, have been particularly prominent since the visit of Princess Mary and Viscount Lascelles on their way to their own Irish seat in County Galloway. The royal entertaining took place at the Vice-regal Lodge in Phoenix Park after which the White House in Washington is said to have been modelled. Near this stands the American Legation, the present home of Mr. and Mrs. Sterling, who were recent visitors at Kikenny Castle, where they were entertained by the Earl and Countess of Ossory.

Mrs. George T. Marye, formerly of St. Louis, wife of the former United States Ambassador to Russia, was a hostess at the Ritz dinner-dance in Paris last week.

Miss Clara P. Gerhard of St. Louis has been staying at the Hotel Saint-James et d'Albany in Paris.

Gen. and Mme. Georges Dumont gave a luncheon last week at their home in Neuilly, France, in honor of Col. Casanave, the new attache to the French Embassy in Washington, and Mme. Casanave. Among the guests was Mrs. J. Miller of St. Louis.

Headaches

"FOR a number of years, I suffered with constipation. I would have severe headaches. I would get up mornings feeling so tired. No matter how much I would sit around, I never felt rested. Those headaches would unfit me for my work; I'd do my work, but certainly didn't feel like it.

"I read about Black-Draught in the newspaper, and decided to try it, as I felt unusually bad. So that night I took a big dose, and it seemed, in a few hours, that I felt better. I took three or four doses in the next few days, and I felt much relieved. I did not have that 'tired feeling,' and my headache was all gone.

"When I feel a headache coming on, a dose of Black-Draught nearly always stops it. Black-Draught does not leave any ill effects, and I never have found anything that I can recommend as highly for constipation and headache."

ACTRESS TELLS SECRET

Joicey Williams, the well-known American actress, recently made the following statement about gray hair, and how to darken it, with a home-made mixture:

"Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will gradually darken gray, streaked or faded hair, and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and ¼ ounce of glycerine. These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off."

AGNES TRANEY

New Hair Mode from Broadway

"Everyone admires my hair, now that I'm doing it the new way that nearly every really smart girl I know is using," says Miss Agnes Traney, popular dancer, now appearing in the Broadway hit, "Rio Rita." "My hair doesn't need shampooing more than once a month, now. My scalp feels better than it ever has felt. I have gotten rid of all my dandruff. My hair is much easier to arrange, and it stays that way. All I do to keep it like this is put a few dashes of Danderine on my brush every time I use it. It's wonderful how Danderine adds to the beauty of your hair, makes it look so silky and lustrous."

Danderine is not oily. It removes the oily film from each strand of hair and restores the natural color and luster. It dissolves dandruff, cleanses and invigorates the scalp. It is delightfully fragranced. The big bottles are just 35c at all drug stores. Beautiful, smooth, gleaming hair and a healthy scalp for a few cents.

VARICOSE VEINS

The Sisters of Loretto have about completed their plans for a bazar to be held at the Loretto Academy, 3407 Lafayette avenue, Nov. 26 and 27. Both evenings, beginning at 6 o'clock, a turkey dinner will be served.

The Ladies' Society of the United Hebrew Temple, Skinker road, will give an Exposition Orientale Nov. 25.

A card party will be given for the benefit of Christian Brothers College Athletic Association Saturday at 8 p. m. at the college, Clayton road and University lane.

Arrangements are complete for the "World Tour of Foreign Shops" which the women members of St. John's Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will conduct Tuesday in the new educational building of the church. The proceeds will be used to help finance the missionary and social service work of the Women's Society. Mrs. Clinton H. Fisk and Mrs. James B. Hill are joint chairmen of the Arrangements Committee. The tour will include visits to the shops of England, Ireland, Scotland, Germany, Holland, Spain, France, Italy, China and Japan where articles typical of those countries will be sold.

Typical American articles will be sold at a "See America First" shop and luncheon and a turkey supper may be enjoyed at the "Ritz Carleton Cafe." Mrs. W. T. Stephenson will direct the French, Italian and Spanish shop, assisted by Mrs. Shapleigh Boyd, Mrs. James Calfee, Mrs. E. J. H. Bennett, Mrs. George Dobler, Mrs. Felix Anderson, Mrs. Phyllis Hale, Mrs. Emmett Myers, Mrs. A. L. Mitchell, Mrs. Harry Wallace, Mrs. Harvey Avis, Mrs. W. H. White, Mrs. B. F. Shore, Mrs. C. P. O'Fallon and Miss Eleanor Hough and Miss Margaret Kennedy.

Mrs. W. S. Rouse and Mrs. Harris McGavock are chairmen of the booth which will represent Germany and Holland. The assisting committee at this booth includes Mrs. W. A. May, Mrs. George Anderson, Mrs. H. P. Hanley, Mrs. George Dilts, Mrs. A. G. Reynolds, Mrs. J. U. Menteer, Mrs. I. P. Morton, Mrs. Thomas Harkness, Mrs. H. D. Herring, Mrs. H. R. Barton, Mrs. W. B. Blewett Mrs. J. G. Calhoun, Mrs. D. D. Taylor, Mrs. Grant Wyatt and Mrs. R. D. Garland.

The Oriental shop where the wares of China and Japan will be offered will be directed by a committee consisting of Mrs. James W. Lee, Mrs. J. C. McChesney, Mrs. Thomas G. Ratcliffe, Mrs. Thomas H. Wagner, Mrs. R. S. Hoxie, Mrs. J. A. Hooke, and Mrs. M. P. Burroughs.

The Christmas sale, which the Fontbonne College Mothers' Club will hold Dec. 1 on the campus of Fontbonne College, Wydown and Big Bend boulevards, will include a fancy work booth under the direction of Mrs. G. W. Houghton, Mrs. J. J. Reynolds, Mrs. W. H. Murphy, Mrs. L. C. Blakesly, Mrs. E. S. Hartrick and Mrs. G. T. Higgins. Plans also provide for a corner to be reserved for the display of aprons with Mrs. M. Hartman, Mrs. O. Baer, Mrs. J. Moran, Mrs. P. Riley, Mrs. C. Daly and Mrs. J. Bender in charge.

Preparations are being made by the Woman's Association of the Second Presbyterian Church for the annual Christmas bazaar which is to be held Friday, Dec. 7. The affair will be a memorial to the late Miss Frankie Cooke, who died Oct. 30, and who for 12 years had taken an active part in the bazaar. The luncheon will be in charge of Mrs. Carroll Hill and will be served in the church dining room from 12 to 2 o'clock. A delicatessen table, presided over by Mrs. Alex Robertson and Miss Kate Roth, will be a feature.

ALINE BARON

Missouri Girl is a Winner

Every mother realizes how important it is to teach children good habits of conduct, but many of them fail to realize the importance of teaching their children good bowel habits until the poisons from decaying waste held too long in the system have begun to affect the child's health.

Watch your child, and at the first sign of constipation give her a little California Fig Syrup. Children love its rich, fruity taste, and it quickly drives away those distressing ailments such as headaches, bad breath, coated tongue, biliousness, feverishness, fretfulness, etc. It gives them a hearty appetite, regulates their stomach and bowels and gives tone and strength to these organs so they continue to act normally of their own accord. For over fifty years leading physicians have prescribed it for half-sick, bilious, constipated children. More than 4 million bottles used a year shows how mothers depend on it.

Mrs. E. Baron, 148 Washington St., St. Louis, says: "My daughter, Aline, is a prize winner for health now, but we had a lot of trouble with her before we found her trouble was constipation and began giving her California Fig Syrup. It fixed her up quick, gave her a good appetite, made her sleep fine and she's been gaining in weight right along since the first few days of taking it."

To avoid inferior imitations of California Fig Syrup, always look for the word "California" on the carton.

WOMEN'S CLUBS WORK FOR KELLOGG TREATY

Missouri Campaign, Started Yesterday, to End With Luncheon, Dec. 1.

A campaign by a group of 10 national women's organizations to arouse public sentiment in favor of ratification by the Senate of the recent Kellogg-Briand multilateral treaty to renounce war as an instrument of national policy was begun in Missouri yesterday and will culminate with a luncheon under auspices of the local units of the women's groups at Hotel Statler Dec. 1.

The national campaign is being conducted by the conference of the Cause and Cure of War, under the leadership of Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt. The aim is to have resolutions adopted in every State, urging the Senate to approve the treaty. At a meeting of the Missouri branches of the constituent organizations, Mrs. Eugene T. Senseney, a woman leader of St. Louis, was made campaign chairman for the State, with Mrs. Louis T. Maguire in charge of the speakers' bureau explaining the treaty to various St. Louis societies.

Yesterday's preliminary meeting was a luncheon at Hotel Chase, which was addressed by Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War; Dr. Stephen P. Duggan, head of the Institute of International Education, New York; Mme. Suzanne Ginberg of Paris, Dr. Percival Chubb, the Rev. Dr. Dwight Bradley, the Rev. Dr. W. C. Timmons and Dr. George Stephens of Washington University.

Speakers at Luncheon.

The luncheon Dec. 1 will be addressed by Mrs. James W. Morrisson of Chicago, a noted woman leader, who represented the League of Women Voters at the signing of the treaty, and by Dean William Scarlett of Christ Church Cathedral. Rabbi Samuel Thurman will be in charge of the resolution to be presented then.

Mrs. Catt telegraphed local leaders last week: "We must present the resolutions to the Senate in December and have applied for a hearing at that time. Do press for as many resolutions in your State as possible and do not forget to send deputations to interview your Senators while still in the State as to their stand upon the treaty. All is moving well and we must stand fast and give proof that public opinion demands ratification."

Local Leagues to Meet.

Mrs. Senseney has asked local Leagues of Women Voters throughout Missouri to assume the initiative in calling together local representatives of the other nine participating organizations. For this purpose the Kansas City League of Women Voters will have a meeting Nov. 27, to be addressed by Mrs. Senseney, who also will speak before the St. Joseph league's meeting the preceding evening. Plans for gatherings elsewhere in Missouri are under way.

The participating organizations and their St. Louis representatives in charge of arrangements for the Dec. 1 luncheon are:

Women's Missionary Federation, which combines the Council of Women for Home Missions and the Federation of Women's Boards of Foreign Missions, Mrs. Edward Bretch; Council of Jewish Women, Mrs. Milton Landau; American Association of University Women, Mrs. William J. Dick; General Federation of Women's Clubs, Miss Alves Long; Y. W. C. A., Miss Grace Shannon; W. C. T. U., Mrs. Wilbur Shankland; women's labor groups, Miss May Shannon of Bindery Women's Union; National Federation of Business and Professional women, Mrs. George F. Bergfeld; League of Women Voters, Mrs. Louis T. Maguire.

HENRY GUINZBURG, FORMER ST. LOUISAN, DIES AT 72

Was Well Known Here Though He Moved to New York 30 Years Ago.

Word of the death at New York Friday of Henry A. Guinzburg, formerly of St. Louis, was received by friends here, who recall him as a political and civic leader among persons of his race in St. Louis prior to his moving to New York 30 years ago.

Mr. Guinzberg was a Colonel on the staff of Gov. Stone of Missouri. A Democrat, he was an unsuccessful candidate for Sheriff of St. Louis in the early 90's. He was president of the organization from which the present Columbian Club developed. He conducted a railroad ticket brokerage business from offices in the old Southern Hotel.

Mr. Guinzburg moved to New York with his family in 1898 to accept an executive position with the I. B. Kleinert Rubber Co. For the last 8 years he was treasurer of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies. He was 72 years old at the time of his death, which was caused by heart disease. Surviving are his widow, a son, Harold, and a daughter, Mrs. James Marshall, all of New York. Funeral services will be held at New York today.

Mrs. Rae Fraley Dies in Chicago.

Mrs. Rae Fraley, wife of Jacob Fraley, a clothing merchant formerly of St. Louis, died at her home in Chicago yesterday of cancer. She was 58 years old. Fraley conducted a clothing jobbing business at 1015 Washington avenue, when he moved to Chicago with his wife. Funeral arrangements have not been completed. The body may be brought here for burial. In addition to her husband Mrs. Fraley is survived by three married daughters.

Fixing of Values Is Legislative Function, Not One of Judiciary, Says Expert in O'Fallon Suit

Donald Richberg, in Brief for Presentation to Supreme Court, Assails "Reproduction New" Theory as Carriers' Demand for Monopoly, Submitted in Disguise.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Building,
WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.

THE tremendously important subject of public utilities valuation is thoroughly canvassed in a brief which Donald D. Richberg of Chicago, general counsel of the National Conference on Valuation of American railroads, will seek to lay before the United States Supreme Court in the pending St. Louis & O'Fallon case.

Richberg is scheduled to appear before the Court Monday with a request that he be allowed to intervene in this suit as a "friend of the Court." The case is here on appeal by the railroad from the decision of a special three-judge Federal court in Missouri, which upheld the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission without, however, passing upon its method of valuation. Inasmuch as the suit raises the fundamental question of how public utility property shall be valued for rate-making purposes, it has been aptly described as "the greatest lawsuit in the world."

The significant character of the suit was recognized last spring by the Senate, when it voted, 46 to 31, regardless of party lines, to ask the Supreme Court to allow Richberg to intervene. Senator Norris, who is the head of the National Conference on Valuation, was the author of the resolution. No word has come from the Court as to how it views the Senate's request.

For 'Prudent Investment'; Against 'Reproduction New'.

Richberg became familiar with the St. Louis & O'Fallon case through his work as counsel before the Interstate Commerce Commission, against an array of railroad attorneys who sought to commit that body to the "reproduction new" theory of valuation. He is recognized as one of the country's two or three leading exponents of the contrary, or "prudent investment," theory, which was sustained in part by the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

In a closely reasoned and heavily documented brief—a veritable text-book on the knotty valuation problem—Richberg contends that the fixing of value is a legislative and not a judicial function. The distinction is highly important. His argument is bottomed on the thought that there can be no adequate rate regulation without the power also to regulate values.

"The valuation issue," he says, "cannot be isolated from the issue of rate regulation. If a public utility property cannot be valued in such a manner as to insure reasonable rates, then the conceded power of rate regulation is destroyed.

"The power to require reasonable rates comprehends the power to prevent unreasonable profits. To diminish profits, that might be made, is to diminish values, that might be obtained. Therefore, the process of rate regulation requires that the owners of a public utility property shall be deprived of a part of its potential value."

Where Legislative Field of Rate Regulation Lies.

He proceeds thence to his second point: "Between the maximum property valuation which would be the basis for and the result of the highest feasible rates and the minimum property valuation which would be the basis for and the result of the lowest feasible rates, lies the legislative field of rate regulation. The valuation of a public utility property within this field, as a basis for rate-making, is an exercise of the legislative power of rate regulation, within the range of legislative discretion—and is not subject to judicial review."

His point three is as follows: "In order to justify judicial invasion of the field of legislative discretion, the carriers are seeking to isolate the valuation issue from the issue of rate regulation. They are asking the courts to give utility properties a fixed value by compelling the use of a judicial formula of valuation. All property values are the joint product of economic and political forces. They depend upon rights conferred and protected by laws. If judicial action established a public utility property value which cannot be changed by legislative action, the legislative power of rate regulation is destroyed."

The problem can be clarified, Richberg points out, by an understanding of what constitutes "property" and what constitutes "value."

"The greatest confusion," he says, "is brought into any determination of the value of property rights by the common assumption that what is being valued is a physical object, when in fact things do not have pecuniary values in themselves; and pecuniary values are found only in rights of persons to use things, which rights are conferred and protected by law. These rights are the substance of an owner's 'property.'"

'Bundle of Conferred Rights' His Definition of Property.

When we speak of "property," says the author, we are speaking in fact of a "bundle of rights" conferred by law.

"Lawyers of romantic inclination," he continues, "have sometimes asserted that the right of property is of divine origin. But the more realistic jurists now present a uniform front on the subject, and agree that this 'bundle of rights' called 'property' is created by the State."

Richberg supports his thesis with a mass of illustrative instances in which Legislatures have diminished this "bundle of rights."

The purpose of his review is "to demonstrate that an absolute right of property, and an absolute value of property, independent of, and not to be modified by, legislative action, cannot be established by a judicial formula of valuation, without the destruction of an essential legislative power which always has been preserved and upheld, in accordance with constitutional limitations."

Coming then to the question of value, he sums up his argument in this way:

"The 'value' of property is the 'power to command a price' for things possessed, which depends upon the power which the owner can exercise over his possessions—that is, upon the 'property' which has been conferred upon him by law.

"The 'property' of a public utility owner is not an absolute dominion but one qualified by the public service obligations which he has assumed. Among these obligations is the duty to charge only 'reasonable rates' for the use of the things which he has devoted to public service.

Value of Utility Depends on Price It Can Command.

"Thus the 'value' of his 'property' is dependent upon the inescapable fact that his property (his 'bundle of rights' conferred by law) includes only a limited 'power to command a price.' He can only command a price which the legislative power establishes as 'reasonable.' The power to establish 'reasonable rates' necessarily includes the power to establish a 'reasonable value' for the property used."

The brief contains a trenchant attack on the "reproduction new" theory of valuation.

It shows how this theory works one way when prices fall and another why when prices rise.

"It will be noted," Richberg remarks, "that today sellers of transportation are seeking to have prices based upon reproduction cost, although 30 years ago they were seeking to have prices based on original cost. Their claims are not grounded upon faith in a particular economic theory or reverence for abiding principles of justice, but upon a recognition of immediate self-interest. It may be urged that the buyers of transportation service also have shifted ground in the last 30 years on the basis of immediate self interest. But the establishment of a policy of government should not be based upon the immediate interests of either sellers or buyers."

Says Price Carriers Seek Is Monopoly in Disguise.

After dealing exhaustively with the claims set up by the carriers, Richberg says:

"Government regulation was established for the purpose of deciding the age-old issue between the seller and the buyer upon the ethical standard of a price that is 'fair' to both. Yet the carriers are demanding that government regulation, established primarily for the purpose of protecting the buyer against the oppressions of a government-created monopoly, should now be utilized to insure so far as possible to the seller the highest possible selling price which he can exact from the buyer.

"The price sought is higher than any which can be maintained in a competitive market—and therefore is a 'monopoly price.' This op-

Why the Navy Wants More Cruisers

Washington and Geneva Disarmament Conferences Having Failed to Limit Them, We Are Below Britain's Strength in That Class of Ship—Also Weaker in Capital Vessels and Aircraft Carriers.

By CHARLES G. ROSS,
Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S Armistice day declaration for a larger American navy has directed general attention toward the bill now pending in Congress for the building of 15 new 10,000-ton cruisers and one new airplane carrier. The bill has been passed by the House, by a vote of 287 to 58, and an effort will be made to put it through the Senate during the short session beginning in December. Action on it was prevented in the Senate last spring by the filibuster against the Boulder Dam bill. The measure at that time appeared to have enough support to insure its passage if it could have been brought to a vote.

The 16 ship bill was carved out of the 74-ship program presented at the beginning of the present Congress by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur, with the approval of President Coolidge. The total estimated cost of this proposed construction, which included three fleet submarines left over from the 1916 program, was $740,000,000. The program was the largest of the kind ever laid before Congress in time of peace, and was exceeded in number of vessels only by the program adopted by Congress in August, 1916, seven months before the United States entered the World War.

Denies Naval Competition.

In an address in January, 1928, President Coolidge said that the program contemplated no "competitive construction" with other Nations, but was designed merely "to replace obsolete naval vessels and moderately increase our naval strength."

The plan called for the laying down of all the vessels within five years and their completion within eight years. It embraced the following: Five aircraft carriers of $19,000,000 each, total $95,000,000; 25 cruisers at $17,000,000, total $425,000,000; nine destroyer leaders at $5,000,000, total $45,000,000, and 35 submarines at $5,000,000, total $175,000,000. Grand total, $740,000,000.

In discussing the proposal before the House Naval Affairs Committee, Secretary Wilbur, like President Coolidge, disclaimed any thought of competitive building. Wilbur said the additions were necessary in order to give the country a "first-class navy," capable of protecting the rights of American citizens under international law and safeguarding our ocean commerce.

Notwithstanding the appeal of the Secretary and the reassuring words of the President, there arose throughout the country a wave of vigorous opposition. Not only peace societies but a large section of the press, including some important newspapers that had rarely differed with the administration, vigorously attacked the program.

Program Is Slashed.

Responding to what seemed to be the majority sentiment of the country, the Naval Affairs Committee slashed the recommendation to 15 cruisers and one airplane carrier, to be laid down in three groups during the fiscal years 1929, 1930 and 1931, at a total estimated cost of $274,000,000. This modified program was approved by the House by a vote of approximately 5 to 1.

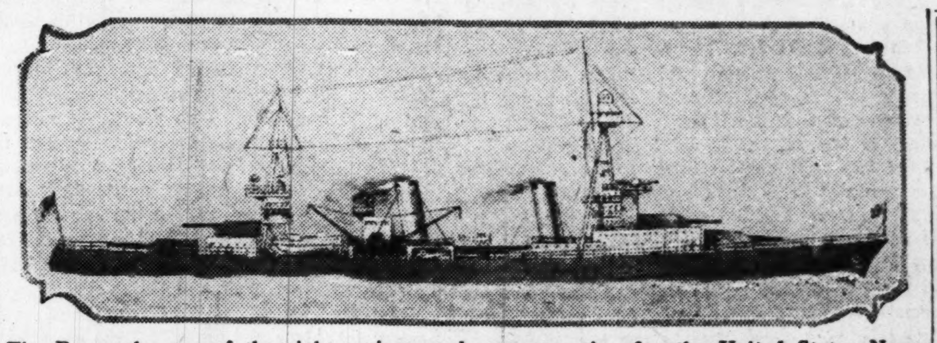
In reporting upon the bill, the Committee told the House that even with the addition of the 15 cruisers, the United States would have only 33 modern ships of that class, or 10 fewer than the number declared by the Navy General Board to be an "essential minimum." The Committee calculated that the ratio of tonnage strength, taking account of modern cruisers built, building and appropriated for, was as follows:

United States 1 pt. 9, Japan 2 pt. 7, British Empire 5.

Would Round Out Navy.

With the completion of the proposed 15 cruisers, and assuming no increase on the part of either of the other Nations, this ratio would be changed to United States 3.8, Japan 2.7, British Empire 5.

In recommending the building of one airplane carrier, at a cost of $19,000,000, the Committee made the point that the United States is now 56,300 tons under the limit of 135,000 permitted by the Washington limitation treaty. Of vessels of this type the United States has only the Langley, an experimental ship, 12,700 tons, and the recently commissioned Saratoga and Lexington, 33,000 tons each. The latter two may be said to constitute the whole effective strength of the United States in aircraft carriers. The British Empire has in this class, built, building and appropriated for, a tonnage of 107,550.



The Pensacola, one of the eight cruisers under construction for the United States Navy.

"The foregoing program," said the Naval Affairs Committee, "is intended to so round out our naval forces as to make them reasonably competent to support our policies and safeguard our interests throughout the world. Its purpose is to insure that these policies and interests will be respected and peace maintained. It is in no sense a competitive program, since the essence of competition is the effort to excel or outdistance another. The program when completed will still leave our navy in a secondary position."

To explain the situation in which the United States now finds itself it is necessary to go back for a moment to the epochal Washington arms limitation conference of 1921-22. Charles E. Hughes, then the Secretary of State, proposed that the United States give up its large 1916 program, Japan its "eight-eight" program and Great Britain its 1920 program, to the end that the British and American war fleets might be pegged at approximate equality, with the Japanese fleet 60 per cent as strong. This became known as the 5-5-3 ratio.

After a month's negotiation, an agreement on these lines was reached as to battleships and airplane carriers. The three Powers agreed to scrap 70 capital ships, built or building, with a total displacement of 1,644,839 tons. The United States, by scrapping 32 ships (of which, however, it was permitted to convert two ships into airplane carriers), made by far the largest sacrifice.

It was further agreed in the treaty growing out of the conference that no new capital ships should be laid down till 1931, when replacement of existing ships might be begun. This replacement, it was provided, should be made on a basis that would give the United States and Great Britain 15 battleships each, with a tonnage of 525,000; Japan, nine, with a tonnage of 315,000, and France and Italy five each, with a tonnage of 175,000. The size of capital ships built in replacement of older vessels was limited to 35,000 tons, in comparison with the 42,000-ton ships under construction in 1921, and the caliber of their guns was fixed at a maximum of 16 inches.

Limit on Plane Carriers.

Aircraft carriers were limited to 27,000 tons each and their guns to eight-inch caliber. Of this type, Great Britain and the United States were permitted to build 135,000 tons each, Japan 81,000 and France and Italy 60,000 tons each.

Though the Washington Conference stopped competition in the building of capital ships, it failed to bring about any agreement as to auxiliary vessels. The American delegates would have made the 5-5-3 ratio apply to cruisers, destroyers, submarines and other craft, but they ran into insuperable difficulties. A British proposal that submarine warfare be declared illegal was blocked by the French, who contended that they were entitled to at least 90,000 tons for the defense of the French colonies and as compensation for their inferiority in capital ships. Italy wanted a large submarine tonnage on similar grounds.

Great Britain declined to make an agreement permitting the tonnage desired by France, on the ground that such a large tonnage would be a constant menace to England. When it was found impossible to agree as to submarines, Great Britain refused to assent to cruiser limitation, her delegates arguing that she was entitled to superiority in this type of vessel because of the great length of her trade routes.

The conference treaty did, however, limit the size of cruisers to 10,000 tons and their guns to eight-inch caliber.

In this situation, competition began among other Nations than the United States in the construction of cruisers. Already below par in respect to this type, because for a long time it had concentrated on heavy capital ships, the United States slipped into a position of decided cruiser inferiority to both Great Britain and Japan.

Bigger Cruisers Built.

There was an immediate tendency among the Nations to build up to the full limit of the individual cruiser strength—10,000 tons—permitted by the treaty. This was a larger ship than any of its type built for any of the navies of the world prior to the Washington conference. The average pre-conference cruiser was 6000 tons and could fire a broadside of 600 pounds. The 10,000-ton "treaty type" cruiser, as it has come to be called, is armed with eight-inch guns—the maximum allowed—and can fire a broadside of 2246 pounds. So marked is the difference that the British admiralty has abandoned the use of the term "light cruiser" in describing the treaty vessel, though the term is still used by the United States. The new cruisers cost about $17,000,000, or as much as a battleship cost before the war.

Japan was the first to develop the "treaty type" cruiser, and she was closely followed by France. During 1922-23 Japan began building six cruisers of this type, 15 destroyers and 11 submarines, and France laid down three cruisers, 18 destroyers and 11 submarines. The British later adopted the Birkenhead program of 16 ships, four to be laid down the first year and three in each of the following four years. Nine of these vessels were to be cruisers of 10,000 tons and seven cruisers of 8000 tons.

As a result of the building in other countries, a strong demand began to be voiced in Congress for a cruiser program to balance the American fleet. This bore fruit in 1924 in the authorization of eight 10,000-ton cruisers, to be laid down over a three-year period. The schedule provided that the last three should be started in the fiscal year 1927. When, however, the President brought in his budget for that year, he made no estimate of an appropriation for beginning work on these three ships. This omission he explained by saying that it would be "unfortunate" for the United States to begin work on these ships just at the time when it was negotiating with foreign Powers to bring about another disarmament conference.

Substitute Bill Offered.

As a substitute for the appropriation, the administration offered a bill authorizing 10 cruisers, but without making any appropriation for them. Manifestly, this bill was intended to strengthen the hand of the United States in the forthcoming conference. Congress saw the contest as between three real ships and ten paper ships. Unless money were voted for the three ships so that construction might begin during the fiscal year 1927, the authorization would lapse. The administration bill was not considered in either House, but by large majorities an appropriation was voted for beginning work on the three authorized vessels. Some of the President's best political friends were against him in this contest.

In February, 1927, President Coolidge invited Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan to join with the United States in another conference looking to an agreement to limit the classes of warships not covered by the Washington Treaty. France and Italy declined the invitation; Great Britain and Japan accepted. The conference began at Geneva, June 20, 1927, and continued till Aug. 4, when its failure was announced.

The American Government proposed as a basis for discussion the extension of the 5-5-3 ratio to auxiliary ships. Immediately, difficulties began to be encountered. Mr. Bridgeman, the First Lord of the British Admiralty, in his opening statement avoided any reference to the ratio but stressed the special needs of England, whose position, he said, was "totally different from that of any other country in the world." His statement was interpreted in American circles to mean that the British Empire was not disposed to grant equality to the United States in cruisers. This view of the matter brought forth denials from the British delegation, but doubt as to the actual attitude of the British Government toward the question of parity continued to cloud the proceedings.

Suggested Auxiliary Limit.

There was division from the start as to the amount of auxiliary tonnage that each Nation should have. The United States suggested for itself and Great Britain a total of 640,000 each, with 300,000 allotted for cruisers. It proposed that within this limit each Nation be permitted to build as many cruisers as it desired, with an individual tonnage not to exceed 10,000 tons and guns of any caliber up to eight inches. This plan would have required the scrapping of some British cruisers and would have left the United States about 14 cruisers short of the permitted quota.

Great Britain, placing its needs at 70 cruisers, opposed any scrapping. It proposed that the tonnage represented by this number of cruisers be divided into two classes: 10,000-ton, 8-inch gun ships and 7500-ton, 6-inch gun ships.

Great Britain, it was explained, needed a large number of small cruisers to guard her long sea lanes. If Great Britain, under the American plan of a general tonnage limitation, built enough small cruisers to satisfy this need, then it would be left inferior to the United States in the matter of 10,000-ton ships, which the United States would build in order to meet its special requirements.

For the United States, it was argued that acceptance of the British scheme would have meant the building, after it had attained its permitted maximum of 10,000-ton ships, of a large number of small cruisers unsuited to its requirements.

Larger Cruisers Needed.

The special need of the United States for large cruisers arises from the fact, as President Coolidge pointed out in his Armistice day speech, that the American navy has only five overseas fueling stations, as compared with the British navy's 20. The United States requires cruisers of the maximum size in order to give the maximum cruising radius. For this reason, and also because the United States has comparatively few merchant ships capable of mounting 5 or 6-inch guns, this country, according to the President, is "entitled to a larger number of warships than a nation having these advantages"—

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.

APPENDED are the latest statistics of the intelligence section of the American Navy on the relative strength of the three leading navies of the world:

Capital Ships—(this class comes under the Washington limitation treaty):*
United States, 18, tonnage 525,850.
British Empire, 20, tonnage 556,350.
Japan, 10, tonnage 301,320.

Aircraft Carriers—(also under the treaty):*
United States, 3, tonnage 78,700.
British Empire, 6, tonnage 107,550.
Japan, 3, tonnage 63,300.

The following classes are not affected by the treaty:

Cruisers—(within effective age of 20 years, built, building and appropriated for):*
United States, 18, tonnage 155,000.
British Empire, 65, tonnage 402,390.
Japan, 33, 213,955.

In addition, the United States has 22 cruisers varying in age from 20 to 34 years, and Japan has 9 varying in age from 24 to 29 years.

Destroyer Leaders—(built, building and appropriated for):*
United States, none.
British Empire, 19, tonnage 33,300.
Japan, 24, tonnage 40,800.

Destroyers—(built, building and appropriated for):*
United States, 276, tonnage 329,153.
British Empire, 163, tonnage 192,030.
Japan, 83, tonnage 90,310.

Submarines—(built, building and appropriated for):*
United States, 124, tonnage 93,192.
British Empire, 75, tonnage 76,625.
Japan, 81, tonnage 81,756.

Ten of the American submarines and six of the Japanese in this table are listed as past the effective age.

Of the 18 American cruisers listed, 10 are built and 8 are building under the 1924 program.

These eight are the Pensacola, Salt Lake City, Northampton (just named for the President's home town), Chester, Chicago, Houston, Augusta and one as yet unnamed. They are in varying stages of completion, from 10 per cent for the Chicago to 67 per cent for the Salt Lake City.

The Farmers' Plight.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHY do farmers cry for farm relief and do not vote for it? Why does a Progressive Senator tell us, "No man who has such perverted views of decency ought to be entrusted with unlimited power," etc., and then request the farmer to place his cause in the hands of that power—a power that for seven and one-half years manifested neither interest nor concern? Can such a Progressive, having just returned from the public forum, with the public's full knowledge of pronounced misrepresentation on the issues of immigration, tariff, power, etc., be trusted to pilot farm relief through an extra session of Congress, with its inherited vetoes?

Why expect farm relief from Senators possessed with the foregoing record, schooled in the sleeping policies of the past seven and one-half years? Farm mortgages, interest, taxes, depreciation, etc., grow into the billions, with no hope of value recovery within the lifetime of the average farmer of the present day. Only those of us who walk the well-beaten path between farmhouse and barn (daily) and see (in one body) 2000 acres of idle, abandoned land, once high-priced, but now without any definite, fixed value; or, like the writer's neighbor, possessed of a farm with a $16,000 mortgage upon it, overflowed both in 1927 and 1928, sustaining three consecutive crop losses with the result that interest and taxes remain unpaid and local banks refuse further loans—only those whose experiences such as here given, and their numbers are defined by more than six figures, carry the mental anxiety and know the real meaning of the last seven and one-half years of administration neglect imposed upon every farmer in the country.

A FARMER.

The Game Is Over.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

THE writer wishes to congratulate the Post-Dispatch and New York World for so graciously saluting President-elect Hoover, after backing Alfred E. Smith, but I do not think it was wholly sportsmanlike of Mr. Michelson to blame the defeat so strongly to religion, as he did on the radio last Tuesday.

We consider Messrs. Michelson, Ross, Anderson and Brandt the four gallant horsemen of your staff, and we doubt very much if Mr. Michelson was right as to religion playing the upper hand in the campaign just closed. The writer thought a great deal of Mr. Smith as Governor of New York, but just a trifle more of Mr. Hoover.

However, the game is over and "the best man won." The writer is happy to know that he can always get the best in journalism in your two splendid papers.

Judge McGehee's Statement.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHEN Judge McGehee of Little Rock warned Smith, the atheist, against "further ridicule of the deity or the established church of this country," he knew what he was talking about.

True we do not find any authority in our Constitution or laws for an established church in this country, but unconstitutional blue laws and unauthorized church rule are as firmly established and as reprehensible as if they were fully guaranteed by the Constitution.

What is "the established church of this country?" As it is not sectarian, but multi-sectarian, it might be called the United Saints of America. It comprises the Lord's Day Alliance, the National Reform Association, the Anti-Saloon League, the Ku Klux Klan and other liberty-destroying elements which are bending every effort to bring the entire country under the tyranny of the blue laws of witchcraft days.

Is it any wonder Lincoln said (referring to the Know-Nothings): "When they come into power I would prefer emigrating to some country where despotism is taken pure without the base alloy of hypocrisy."

"Sovereignty of The People."

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

GOV. SMITH accepts the dictum of the majority and retires to private life. This news item recalls to mind a poem titled, "Sovereignty of the People," by one Tomasso Campanella (1593), translated by J. A. Symonds (1877). It reads:

The people is a beast of muddy brain
That knows not its own force, and therefore stands
Loaded with wood and stone; the powerless hands
Of a mere child guide it with bits and reins.
One kick would be enough to break the chain;
But the beast fears, and what the child demands
It does; nor its own terror understands,
Confused and stupified by bugbears vain.
Most wonderful! With its own hand it ties
And gags itself, gives itself death and war
For pence doled out by kings from its own store.
Its own are all things between earth and heaven;
But this it knows not, and if one arise
To tell the truth, it kills him unforgiven.

ABOU BEN ADHEM.

MR. COOLIDGE STANDS PAT.

Help yourself, Mr. Farmer, is the substance of Mr. Coolidge's speech before the National Grange convention in Washington. Incidentally he suggests that the Government may give the farmer first aid in the way of a co-operative farm board maintained at Government expense to guide him in his voluntary effort to establish co-operative marketing.

This is the summing up by Mr. Coolidge of the debate on farm relief which was one of the leading features of the presidential campaign. We may assume that Mr. Coolidge is in practical accord with Mr. Hoover, who will have the job of carrying out the suggestion of creating the advisory farm board.

Mr. Coolidge recites a long list of measures adopted by the Government since the Civil War to promote the interests of agriculture. He calls it "an impressive list," including research work, seed supply, advice as to best methods of agriculture, farm loans, and the varied helpful activities of the Department of Agriculture. He cites the tariffs on farm products as among the important measures. It is true that agriculture has had the aid of the Government and that millions have been spent in maintaining bureaus of research and advice with regard to the best methods of production. The farmer has had the benefit of cheap loans. He has had tariff protection. All of these things have been helpful, but have not been effectual to relieve his distress. How bad his condition would be if the Government had done nothing we can only conjecture. But all that has been done still leaves him in distress. As a whole the farming industry is in a state of grave depression, causing widespread disaster not only to the very large percentage of farmers but to the allied industries.

What has been done, therefore, is not nearly so vitally interesting as what is to be done. The farmer is still confronted with low prices, prices below the cost of production. That is the vital thing to be dealt with, and the only solution Mr. Coolidge can find for this problem is the organizing of voluntary associations for the marketing of farm products. The whole trouble, he says, lies in the inability of the farmer to market his products advantageously, at the right time and in the right markets. He thinks this obstacle to farm prosperity can be overcome by intelligent co-operative marketing. The whole question resolves itself, therefore, into the control of the exportable surplus.

Mr. Coolidge is against any plan for the Government to supply the organization and machinery to control the exportable surplus. The farmers themselves must do that through voluntary co-operation. The Government will do no more than supply at its own expense an advisory board to start the farmers in the right direction.

There is much truth in what Mr. Coolidge says about the farmers working out their own salvation by their own efforts. They cannot be helped unless they do help themselves. But whether in such a widespread, varied industry, the farmers can do it all by voluntary co-operation is a question. So far they have not been able to do it.

Mr. Hoover's idea, as expressed in his speeches, coincides with that of Mr. Coolidge. If nothing is done in the short session, and, considering Mr. Coolidge's attitude, this is likely to happen, we shall have to await Mr. Hoover's recommendations of practical plans to carry his ideas of farm co-operation and Government aid into effect before definite judgment can be pronounced upon their effectiveness for farm relief.

There is only one point upon which all agree, namely, that present conditions spell disaster, and that something must be done to lift agriculture out of its depression and put it on a fair equality with other interests. The continued prosperity of the country depends upon that.

Mr. Hoover, of course, will have to deal with Congress. The representatives of the agricultural districts and their sympathizers will have something to say with regard to the measures that are to be taken for farm relief. Mr. Hoover may convince them that his plan is sufficient, and he may not. If no agreement can be reached, farm relief will be in another deadlock, and the farmer will have to help himself as best he can.

ST. LOUIS SPEECH.

A group of Columbia University professors and graduates have designated the speech of a St. Louisan, W. Y. McBurney, as most representative of American English. Mr. McBurney, it seems, speaks good average English. He pronounces r's and final g's, has no distinctive inflection, uses no broad a's. His speech is tainted neither by a Chicagoese nasal twang nor by a Louisiana drawl. It is not as ugly as the flat speech of the Western plains, or as pleasing as the soft cadences of Virginia. It holds itself free equally from the wisecracking patter of New York City and the bucolic argot of Iowa cornfields. On the other hand, St. Louis speech has the defects of its qualities, that is, it lacks flavor, raciness and charm. It is pure and clear, but it is also colorless.

The steamer Mauretania was boarded on her last trip by a wave which members of the crew try to describe as being "as high as the funnels." Only Gov. Smith could tell exactly what it was like.

THE VALUATION PROBLEM.

Common sense begins to rise above the welter of theories in which the subject of valuation of public utilities has been immersed for years.

First, there was the valuable opinion of Federal Judge Faris of St. Louis in the St. Louis & O'Fallon Railroad case, in which he gave a formula for valuation fair both to the utilities and the people—a formula which the United States Supreme Court might well adopt and thus put finality to the question.

Now comes Donald Richberg, speaking for the people and saying to the Supreme Court in the selfsame case that the value of a utility for rate-making is not what it cost nor what would be required to reproduce it, but the sum required to achieve fair regulation. That sum, he says, may even be lower than the sum actually invested.

So saying, he reminds us of the fundamentals of regulation. The fixing of rates for utilities is an exercise of the police power of the state. The police power is invoked to see that the public interest is protected and served.

Courts may declare till they get blue in the face that, under the law, railroads are entitled to charge rates that will yield them a fair return upon the sum required to rebuild them at present high prices. Practically, the railroads would never think of fixing rates on that basis. The traffic would not support such high schedules.

Street car companies may be entitled to earn, by court decision, upon the sums required to reproduce them, but no street car company would think of charging 15 cents a ride if that rate were required to produce the fair earning to which the courts have said they are entitled.

Richberg rightly says that, after all, the end sought in valuation is the mutual interest of the public and the investor.

MR. HOOVER AND THE RIVERS.

In his St. Louis speech Mr. Hoover envisioned 12,000 miles of completed inland waterways connecting 20 states with the Gulf of Mexico and the North Atlantic. He showed how vital this development would be to the Midwest, and he announced that among the first tasks to which he would give leadership would be the project of completing this great program.

What this will mean to industry and commerce in the Midwest, and to St. Louis in particular, may not generally be realized. Records are now available for the amount of traffic that passed through the Panama Canal during the fiscal year ending June 30 last. A total of 6959 vessels, or 19 a day, passed through the canal, and carried a cargo tonnage totaling 29,630,709 tons, of which American vessels carried 14,248,735 tons.

Compare that business with the cargo tonnage handled in 1926 on the Ohio and the Monongahela rivers. The Ohio alone carried 19,754,978 tons, while the Monongahela carried 26,374,682 tons. Those two rivers, then, carried half as much freight again as the Panama Canal last year handled for all nations. Traffic in the Canal now utilizes from 45 to 50 per cent of its capacity. This year's revenue gain of $2,500,000 in net operations over last year's total of $18,132,000, together with previous increases, has brought forth the problem of increasing the Panama Canal's capacity. When the middle and northwestern states can find shipping facilities by waterways we may be sure that huge cargoes from there will find their way westward via the Canal.

Big industries in the East have been awake for some time to the saving in freight costs by water transportation, and have been shipping millions of tons of coal on barges yearly. With the improvement in navigability of the Mississippi River we may expect enormous shipments of heavy freight in its channel and economies resulting thereform. Added incentive will be given industries to locate along waterways in the Midwest. Freight rates from factory to farm and from farm to market will be lowered. And with increasing population the railroads will have capacity business in handling fast-moving freight and in hauling to and from waterways.

Henry Ford has foreseen the possibilities in river navigation and has established a plant on the Mississippi between St. Paul and Minneapolis costing millions of dollars. Farmers in the Northwest were disappointed last summer when there were not enough barges to carry their products. With regular service by Government barges now maintained to St. Paul and Minneapolis there is no reason to believe that the traffic will not increase greatly.

Revival of river transportation is no longer a dream. We are in the midst of the reality. We may expect further impetus to river traffic when Mr. Hoover takes the helm to engineer the projects authorized by Congress.

OH, TEMPORA!

"Big Ben," the big, top-heavy post clock that formerly stood on the corner of Ninth and Olive, has been removed to a spot in front of the Frisco Building, and that gives us an opening in which to declare ourselves on the subject of public time tellers. Chiefly, our complaint is concerned with the fact that post clocks are almost invariably wrong.

Now, if any clock in the world should be infallibly, unflinchingly right, it is the public clock, and especially the one whose bloated head rests atop a pole in the busy downtown district. Thousands of persons depend upon such agencies for setting their watches. Others do not even own timepieces and, heaven help them, have to depend upon public clocks to keep their appointments. Our point is that a company which sets out to install a public clock outside its premises on a public sidewalk where it will attract the eye of passersby, thus making it serve as a free advertising medium, owes to the public the duty of keeping the timepiece accurate. And rack our brain as we will, we cannot find any other duty that transcends this one. But do they do it? Without specifying locations, we know of one clock purporting to inform St. Louisans as to the time of day here which differs on all four dials by several hours. As an exhibit showing the difference in time at Greenwich, Lisbon, Rio de Janeiro and Sydney it may be valuable, but its worth to the people who depend on it is below nil.

A FRENCH MURDER CASE.

The French press is indignant over the indulgence of a jury in the trial of Count Pierre de Rayssac, scion of an old and noble family in Languedoc. De Rayssac drowned his 2-year-old illegitimate child because he was too proud to own it and too avaricious to provide for it. Although the facts were well-established and the circumstances of the crime atrocious, the jury rendered a verdict which made it impossible for the Judge to assess a heavier penalty than 10 years in prison.

Analysis of the trial shows the verdict to be largely the result of De Rayssac's brilliant defense. His counsel was Maitre de Moro Giafferi, referred to by the Manchester Guardian as "that glory of the Paris bar." Apparently, the glory of the Paris bar cares not where he sheds his luster, for in this case his brilliant oratory and distorted sentimentality induced a simple-minded jury to inflict nominal punishment for a monstrous deed.

The jury could not resist Giafferi's eloquent description of the noble record of uncounted generations of De Rayssacs, their beneficence toward the peasants, their bravery in war, their strong men, their lovely women, and the unsullied 'scutcheon before which the family is wont to do reverence. Contrasted with all the pageantry of the De Rayssacs was the drab figure of a servant girl and her unimportant child.

Always in cases of this kind upon the jury is placed the whole blame. Fresh impetus is given the movement for abolition of the jury system. Rarely is any responsibility laid upon the legal profession, whose ethics permit its members to go to any length to pervert justice. In this case, it would seem, some one should start a movement to abolish "that glory of the Paris bar," Maitre de Moro Giafferi.

GOING TO TRY TO CARRY SOUTH AMERICA.

Mr. Coolidge and Europe

PLAIN TRUTH.

From the Baltimore Evening Sun.

IT will hardly escape any intelligent Briton that President Coolidge's Armistice day address meant something. It included, of course, the usual prattle about the towering idealism and the profound pacifism of the United States, which all orators include in their Armistice day addresses; but it wasn't all prattle. The call for a giant navy was deadly serious. In that passage the President meant what he said and not a word less than he said; and in it he is supported by a large and influential part of the American public.

A QUESTION OF EMPHASIS.

From the Courier Journal.

WHILE President Coolidge was advocating greater cruiser strength before an audience at the Washington Auditorium, Secretary Kellogg was telling the World Alliance for International Friendship, gathered at the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, that "machinery of arbitration for the maintenance of peace cannot function effectively unless there is back of it a popular will for peace."

If the Kellogg-Briand treaties are relegated and the naval program rushed through, or the debate on the treaties exposes the latent spirit that Europe suspects, the understanding President Coolidge invokes and the conciliation Secretary Kellogg designates as fundamental will not be promoted thereby. America is going to set the example for the world by the manner in which it places the emphasis as between preparation for peace and preparation for war.

MR. COOLIDGE'S INSISTENCE.

From the Springfield (Mass.) Republican.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S insistence on more cruisers for the navy, in his Armistice day speech, may revive the international debate over the limitation of navies that wrecked the Geneva three-power conference of 1927. His address discloses no softening of administration views relative to increased naval armament on account of the treaty renouncing war as an instrument of national policy, and this will be deplored by leaders of the peace movement.

NOT TO BE REGRETTED.

From the Milwaukee Journal.

THE ungracious tone of President Coolidge's address is to be regretted. But it is not to be regretted that he has spoken this message to Europe. It would be less than honest to let other nations think we shall ever consent to be less than the equal of any nation. It will be a reproach to the generation which fought the war if limitation of armament is not carried further. But it is vain to ask that America make all the sacrifices. Not to lure any nation into charity, but to discover a ground of mutual advantage is the task of statesmen.

COOLIDGE AND KELLOGG ON PEACE.

From the Brooklyn Eagle.

THE millions who heard both President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg speak at yesterday's celebrations of Armistice day must have been taken aback at the difference in tone of the two addresses. For within a few hours after Mr. Kellogg stressed American leadership in the cause of peace, President Coolidge emphasized cruiser construction. In Europe today Secretary Kellogg's friendly comment on world co-operation is ignored, but President Coolidge's challenging comment is evoking spirited replies from France and England.

TELLING THE WORLD.

From the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

GREAT merit lies in President Coolidge's Armistice day speech. The President has had a large part in shaping America's foreign policy, and now he tells the world just what it is. For the nations of Europe this is a considerable gain. For many years they have shrewdly surmised that our executive and his chief advisers have not regarded all their acts with whole-hearted approval. Now they know.

UNDERSTANDING—AND DEBTS.

From the New York Times.

MR. COOLIDGE did not close without pleading for better understanding. This should be mutual. We do not enter into the thoughts and aspirations of Europeans as we should. But, on the other hand, they have not that superior knowledge of us which entitles them to point out our deficiencies and give us moral lectures. "If they would give a little more attention to our history and judge us a little more closely by our own record, and especially find out in what directions we believe our real interests lie, much which they now appear to find obscure would be quite apparent." Yet he cannot refrain from another warning note. Before we can be expected to make additional efforts to aid in the further progress of Europe we must have "a more complete reciprocity in good-will," together with the "final liquidation of the balance of our foreign debts." From a less inoffensive President than Mr. Coolidge all this would be taken in Europe as a solemn if not disturbing notification.

STRAIGHTFORWARD TALK.

From the Evening Public Ledger.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S Armistice day address is likely to profoundly affect the history of the world for the next few years. He did not argue with Europe about what the United States should do, but told it what the United States will do and will not do. While admitting that it is difficult for us to understand the mutual distrust that exists among the European nations, he regretted that "they appear to think that we are going to do exactly what they would do if they had our chance."

This pronouncement looking toward the future ought to clear the air and prepare the way for a better understanding between Europe and America. It has the great merit of frankness and directness. It lets the world know exactly to what we object and to what we are willing to consent.

COMMANDS EARNEST ATTENTION.

From the Washington Post.

MR. COOLIDGE'S address commands the earnest attention of both Americans and Europeans. He speaks for America. After him will come a President who shares these identical views and purposes. There will be no change of American policy. This country wants peace. It recognizes the right of every nation to provide for its defenses. It asks for limitation of armaments beyond the necessities of defense. It asks for payment of debts due. It asks the nations to renounce war. Until it gets some satisfaction on these matters it is useless for Europe to ask the United States for money, or to expect that the United States will not take steps to protect its rights, whatever other nations may do in the way of increasing their military and naval strength.

SUGGESTIONS FOR A POEM.

A contemporary points out that no great poetry ever has been written to the month of November.

There are verses penned to our final end to the nameless sleep we dread,
Of a lady's hand in the manner grand have some gracious things been said,
All the poet's art to the human heart as a theme of song is brought,
They have verse applied to the one who died, to the girl they vainly sought;
Of our days when young have the poets sung, of our days as we get old,
They will pen a line to a mood divine, to a spirit brave and bold,
They have praised the skies, and a woman's eyes, they have hymned the hopes we dream,
But there's no good verse to a month we curse, if a poet wants a theme.

We have hymned the things that the poet sings, and the song at last must tire,
For we cannot hope with old bards to cope, and we dare not steal their fire;
Though our singing bore, we but sing once more what was once and better sung,
Would the gods might give that a poet live in a day the world was young;
There is naught to say in an older day to a world that's grown effete,
Though we strum the lyre, yet we lack the fire, and at best we but repeat;
Now the lines are hard for the hoping bard in a world where verses teem
But there's no good verse to a month we curse if a poet wants a theme.

We always are a little doubtful about a man's authority around the house when we are forced to ask for the ash tray.

* * *

What would happen, we sometimes wonder, were the answer to the question, "Were you busy?" to be "Yes!"

* * *

So far as we are concerned, the greatest mystery about jazz is the fact that the stuff is written deliberately.

* * *

We do not know, but maybe it is a reflection on the radio program when people go out in the evening.

* * *

There is another difficult age, too, in which the young hopeful does not believe the first call for dinner was official until after he has heard the third call.

* * *

Still, in these modern days, having had varied experience might merely mean that the applicant for the job had spent some time clerking in a drug store.

* * *

We are a little surprised when we run across statistics which prove that clothes cost even less in the old days.

One drawback is that the ornate motion picture house, which was supposed to be such a stimulus to architecture, has so far stimulated only ornate motion picture house architecture.

* * *

Human nature being unchanging, probably they talked about the same subjects in the old days, but not so exclusively.

* * *

Not that it is a commentary, but when one of the hopes issues a challenge to any "worthy" opponent, nothing is what always seems to happen.

the advantages of many fueling stations and a large fleet of merchant ships.

The President's view is strictly in line with the established policy of the General Board of the Navy. As formulated in 1922 and recently restated in an official announcement of the Navy Department, this policy is "to build no small cruisers, as they are of little value in the protection of our transoceanic trade and outlying possessions, due to their limited cruising radius and our lack of naval bases overseas."

Compromise Plans Fail.

Numerous attempts were made at the Geneva conference to effect a compromise between the could figure out their proposal," but none of them succeeded.

As stated by the President in his recent candid speech, the difference between the two nations came down to this: The United States proposed that cruiser tonnage be limited to 250,000 to 300,000, while the Great Britain, "as near as we could giure out their proposal," asked for from 425,000 to 600,000 tons.

"As it appeared to us," he continued, "that to agree to so large a tonnage constituted not a limitation but an extension of war fleets, no agreement was made."

In his annual message at the opening of the present Congress, soon after the failure at Geneva, the President said:

"We know now that no agreement can be reached which will be inconsistent with a considerable building program on our part. We have a considerable cruiser tonnage, but a part of it is obsolete. Every one knew that had a three-Power agreement been reached, it would have left us with the necessity of continuing our building program. The failure to agree should not cause us to build either more or less than we otherwise should. We should enter on no competition. We should refrain from no needful program."

Since the Geneva conference, as the President now tells us, no progress toward armament limitation seems to have been made "and the movements have bee discouraging."

Says U. S. Needs Cruisers.

Such are the circumstances in which the President—no doubt with the full approval of the President-elect—declares that the United States needs more cruisers.

The pending 16-ship bill represents a compromise between the "Big Navy" and the "Little Navy" elements in the House. To what extent it will be opposed in the Senate, where it has not yet been debated, remains to be seen. The point is certain to be brought against it that Congress should not authorize money for warships until it has taken care of the farmer. The argument will also be made that any expenditure for armament is provocative of competitive building.

Opponents of the bill will declare it an incongruous proceeding for the administration to sponsor at one and the same time a measure for more warships and a treaty outlawing war. To this the answer will be the same as that of the President in his recent speech—the argument that adequate preparation for war, as well as treaties, makes for world peace.

If any determined effort is made to defeat the bill, the strategy of its opponents will be to hold back its consideration, if possible, till after the ratification of the treaty, on the theory that public sentiment in that even would be less likely to favor a preparedness measure.

Says Fixing of Utility Values Is Not Judicial Function

"There should be no misunderstanding of the true nature of the contentions of the carriers in this and similar proceedings. They are seeking to obtain the right to charge 'all the triffic will bear.' This theory of rate-making has been advanced persistently by the carriers and other public utilities ever since Government regulation began.

"The carriers generally admit that at the moment the traffic will not bear the rates to which they claim they are entitled, as a matter of law, to charge. The carriers are asserting a legal right to charge rates vastly in excess of what the traffic will bear. Thereby, they are laying the foundation for indefinite claims for increases in the event that the traffic will stand the strain."

Richberg points out that in the St. Louis & O'Fallon case, the Commission not only allowed the carriers a structural reproduction cost as of 1914, regardless of original cost, but also allowed them the value of their land on the date of valuation. Hence, he declared, its decision was not only not oppressive, but was actually "liberal in the extreme."

Duplication Not Probable.

Addressing himself to the fallacies in the reproduction cost theory, Richberg declares it inconceivable that if a comprehensive transportation system were now being planned, the properties of the railroads as they stand today would be duplicated.

"It is," he continues, "impossible to sustain the contention that the cost of duplicating the present properties of the railroads furnishes a measure of the cost of duplicating the service and therefore furnishes a measure of the reasonable worth of the service to the users, according to any economic theory."

In a summary of the "unsound" arguments of the carriers, Richberg says:

"Their contentions are based on (1) a false economic concept of 'value,' which the court is asked to adopt against the protests of all authoritative economists; and (2) a false juristic concept of 'property,' which the court is asked to adopt in repudiation of its own opinions and the consensus of legal commentators."

Dealing specifically with the case at bar, Richberg says that the Commission exercised with painstaking care the power conferred upon it by the interstate commerce act.

"In its formulation of a 'reasonable judgment' regarding the value of property for rate-making purposes," he continues, "it is the legislative power of rate regulation that has been exercised—well within the range of legislative discretion, in conformity with the laws and the Constitution of the United States."

Therefore, he holds, the decree of the statutory court sustaining the order of the Interstate Commerce Commission should be affirmed.

To Discuss Electrical Code.

Essential preparations for standardizing the electrical code of a city will be discussed by H. B. Kirkland, an executive of the Society for Electrical Development of New York, at Tuesday's meeting of the Electrical Board of Trade at Hotel Statler.

"La Belle Normandie"

A vivid reminder of the Normandy villages is this "City of Beauty Service" which opens for business on Monday. Surrounded by the proverbial wall showing marked signs of antiquity. Within this wall are tiny streets built up with miniature huts, one for each hair dresser. Manicuring tables line the wall—a small green fountain for each table. The main room where appointments are made is richly decorated in walnut, and wrought iron fixtures. A large wall fountain of green carries out the color scheme of the smaller manicuring fountains—here also are comfortable and richly upholstered chairs.

Now—the biggest surprise of all, the children's barber shop—Here—seated on vicious looking animals, the children have their hair cut while watching a most amusing show of Tony Sarg's marionettes. The room has been designed and decorated by Tony Sarg and his associates. Once inside this unique village, you will surrender completely to its charms.

It Would Indeed Be Strange

. . . if you would not want to hurry to the breakfast table, knowing that a freshly made waffle awaits you. A nickel waffle set comprising electric waffle iron at $15, batter pitcher, $8.75; sugar shaker, $2.50 and oblong tray, $9.25; syrup pitcher, $5.00. Electrical Section, Seventh Floor.

The Light That Will Not Fail

Just the thing for that odd corner you have had such trouble arranging—Torcheres—tall, graceful pieces of Italian marble and alabaster carved as only the Italians can carve this material. Also an enticing collection of lighted figures, dainty, so lovely, $27.50 to $175—Lamp Department, Seventh Floor.

The Bad Wolf Scared Peter Rabbit

. . . to such a degree that he turned to wood, and in order not to keep him out of the nursery he was made into a book shelf to hold baby's nursery rhymes. Cunning are these wee shelves in green, blue or ivory, $5.95. Infants' Section, Fifth Floor.

For the Gift Pen or Pencil

. . . the new black and pearl effect is the smartest thing. Of unbreakable material with bright gold fittings. Models from Sheaffer, Parker, Wahl and Conklin—Pens, $8 to $10; pencils, $4 and $5. Stationery Department, Main Floor.

When Tigers Glare

. . . prepare to run—but this time towards the Bag Section where two replica jade monsters glare fiercely at one another on the frame of a black suede tailored pouch Bag. This copy of an import is really stunning—also in brown suede with replica carnelian beasts, moire lined, mirror and two French pockets, $20. Third Floor, Shoe Section.

Twinkling Felt Eyes

. . . and charming felt smiles. The adorable "Lenci" dolls. They seem so vitally alive with their natural looking wigs and fresh faces. A large assortment of boy and girl dolls dressed in bright felts, from the sport costumes to the party outfits, $8.95 to $24.95. Doll Department, Basement Gallery.

I've Never Seen a Purple Cow

. . . but I have seen a gold mirror—and it is exceedingly lovely. A gold mirror plateau, perfume tray. The mirror has a deep beveled edge and fits into a fine bronze frame with graceful handles. In oval or round shapes, three sizes. $15, $18.50, $27.50. Perfume Section, Main Floor.

When Pouring

. . . whether it is water or "autre choses"—a pitcher with a tune lends a mysterious air. Silver plated in modernistic shapes with bright colored handles—it plays one tune—"How Dry I Am" or a German drinking song. Most novel, $15.75. Silverware Section, Main Floor.

A Different Cuff Treatment

. . . makes these very new French kid gloves a sure success. In tan with darker cuff uniquely trimmed, fantasy embroidered backs to carry out the color scheme of the cuff. The chic thing! $4.95. Glove Section, Main Floor.

Giddap Josephine!

Let us trot down to the Shoe Department and see the new English riding boots in tan and black calf. They are quite correct. Also a special boot for the extra-sized calf, $18.50 and $22.50. You will also find such necessary accessories as boot trees, and jacks and spurs. Women's Shoe Section, Third Floor.

Good Candy Is Hard to Find

It's so easy to poison yourself!

Practically everyone unknowingly harbors some form of acid poisoning. Over-eating—hurried eating—excessive smoking—these are a few of the easily formed habits that cause it. Milnesia (Milk of Magnesia) Wafers counteract acid poisoning.

HOW can you tell when you have acid poisoning? By these danger signals—sick headache—constipation—indigestion—heartburn—nausea—"sour stomach"—skin eruptions—all signs you are heading for some preventable troubles.

Alkali kills acid poisoning! When you feel loggy and not up to snuff—chew a couple of Milnesia Wafers. They give you milk of magnesia, with its precious alkali, in a pleasant, palatable form.

And chewing these tasty Milnesia Wafers gently cleanses your system of acid poisoning from gums and mouth to intestines. That's a very valuable feature, for the gums and teeth often suffer from acid condition without your knowledge.

THE NEW WAY

THE OLD WAY OF TAKING MILK OF MAGNESIA

Each Milnesia Wafer equals two teaspoons of milk of magnesia. They are easily broken into halves or quarters for children's doses. And children soon get to look forward to this pleasant tasting way of taking their milk of magnesia.

Milnesia Wafers Are Good For Everyone

Your physician or dentist will tell you that the whole family is better off for chewing several candy-like Milnesia Wafers whenever an acid condition is indicated. It's good health insurance to take them every day. Fill out the coupon and send to us with ten cents for a week's supply of Milnesia Wafers.

At your druggist's—20¢, 35¢ & 60¢

READ THIS GUARANTEE

"This is to certify that I have analyzed representative samples of MILNESIA WAFERS and found them to contain in each wafer magnesium corresponding to the quantity of magnesium hydroxide contained in two teaspoons of U. S. P. (U. S. Pharmacopeia) Milk of Magnesia."

CHARLES H. GARRISON HEADS MARY INSTITUTE

Head Master of Staten Island Academy to Take Post Next Fall.

Announcement was made by Washington University yesterday of the appointment of Charles H. Garrison as principal of Mary Institute, the university's prepatory school for girls, effective next September, when the school will occupy its new home at Warson and Ladue roads.

Garrison, who is 47 years old, is completing his term as head master of Staten Island Academy, New Brighton, N. Y. He was educated at Centenary Collegiate Institute, Hackettstown, N. J., Wesleyan University, Middleton, Conn., and the New York Law School. His first position as a teacher was in the Nathan Hale School, New York, while he was studying law. Afterwards, he was, successively, head of the English department, assistant head master and acting head master of Montclair Academy, Montclair, N. J. He went to Staten Island Academy in 1925.

He is married and has two children. He succeeds Henry F. Twitchell as principal of Mary Institute. Twitchell's resignation took effect last June. During the present school year, Miss Barbara Cousland, assistant principal, is in charge.

Construction of the new $300,000 home of the institute in the county will begin this winter. Mrs. Newton R. Wilson, as has been told, gave the university the building adn the 20-acre site. This year's enrollment of the institute, which continues at present at Lake avenue and Watermen boulevard, is larger than last year's.

UNORDERED GOODS NEED NOT BE PAID FOR, BUREAU SAYS

Better Business Group Points Out This Applies If Merchandise Is Unused.

With the approach of the holiday season, bringing with it a flood of neckties, toilet articles, perfume, cigars, greeting cards and other unordered merchandise, the Better Business Bureau has advised the public that payment need not be made for unordered goods.

"Unordered merchandise should not be used or appropriated for use by the recipient unless he wishes to incur liability to pay for them" the bureau states. "If he does use them the recipient cannot legally avoid paying for them by saying that they came into his hands without his solicitation or specific order.

"On the other hand, the recipient is under no liability to return the goods or to notify the sender that they have been received even though an addressed and stamped envelope or carton is enclosed in the original parcel for that purpose. He is under no obligation to accord the goods any particular degree of care or to notify the sender that he holds them subject to the sender's disposition.

"If a qualified agent calls for the goods within a reasonable time, the recipient has the right to demand the payment of storage charges before turning the goods over to the agent."

SAYS 35 PER CENT OF BUILDING TRADES WORKERS UNEMPLOYED

Secretary Disputes U. S. Bureau's Statement That Virtually All Have Jobs.

A published statement issued by the Federal Department of Labor that virtually all resident building mechanics in St. Louis have jobs was declared erroneous by Maurice Cassidy, secretary of the St. Louis Building Trades Council, who said that about 35 per cent of the 18,000 workmen in the council were unemployed.

"Any one connected with the construction business knows that there is very little painting or iron work done during the winter months and that there is a general slowing up of work," he said.

"About 200 calls a day are received at my office from men looking for work. About 35 per cent of the membership of the Building Trades Council are unemployed, and the number will increase during the winter."

Cassidy said the unions having large numbers of men idle at this time were the painters, electricians, plasterers, iron workers and building laborers.

To Merchant Marine Conference.

A delegation of St. Louisans headed by Dr. W. F. Gephart, chairman of the Foreign Trade Bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, will attend the eighth annual Middle West and Foreign Trade and Merchant Marine Conference to be held at the Palmer House in Chicago tomorrow and Tuesday. The party will include representative St. Louis business men and members of the Foreign Trade Bureau. Problems relating to foreign trade and the merchant marine will be discussed.

SUNDAY STUDENTS' SERVICES

First of Series Today; Dr. W. F. Bovard to Speak.

The first of a series of monthly services for Washington University students will be held in Graham Memorial Chapel under the auspices of the student religious organizations of the university at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. Dr. William F. Bovard of Chicago, secretary of the educational board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, will deliver an address on "Personalizing Truth." The meeting will follow a musical program under the direction of Charles Galloway.

The meetings are nonsectarian, with representatives of the major religious groups serving on the committee. These organizations include the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and Menorah Society. Churches near the campus, including the United Hebrew Temple, are co-operating with the student committee.

VANDALS PUSH GUARD OFF CAR

Escape After Creating Havoc in Lafayette Park.

When he caught four young men breaking branches from trees and turning over benches in Lafayette Park Friday night, Noah H. Brown, a park guard, rounded them up and started to the Soulard Street Police Station with them in their own automobile, Brown riding on the running board.

Before they had proceeded a block, one of the men gave the guard a push and he fell to the street. When he got up the machine was speeding away. He fired two shots in the air and then fired two at the car, but the fugitives escaped.

U.S. 36 Across Missouri Now All-Weather Motor Road

Traverses State From St. Joseph to Hannibal and is Fourth East-to-West Highway to Be Completed.

Missouri has just completed its fourth high-class, east-west highway all across the State—U. S. No. 36, from St. Joseph to Hannibal—making possible all-weather motor travel across this rich agricultural district, in a part of the commonwealth which so far has received few good roads of any length.

The other cross-state routes, of course, are Nos. 40 and 50 to Kansas City and No. 66 to Joplin. No. 36, strictly speaking, is not completed, for there remains 77.1 miles of gravel on it, which will be paved with concrete as soon as possible, thanks to the new $75,000,000 bond issue. However, this gravel, though not of the finest type, is an excellent, high-speed surface. There is 113.3 miles of pavement, virtually all concrete, the total distance from the junction with U. S. No. 71 in St. Joseph to the intersection of U. S. No. 61 in Hannibal being 190.4 miles.

From the Missouri River in the western city to the Mississippi in the eastern city it is several miles farther. Missouri, it must be remembered, is not quite as wide in the northern portion as between St. Louis and Kansas City.

Perhaps the best indication of the character of No. 36 may be had in the fact that the chronicler drove its length from St. Joseph to Hannibal last Sunday in four rours and five minutes, but no more rapid than the speed of numerous other motorists. It was safe, (with a car in good condition), because it allowed time to slow down whenever traffic or highway conditions demanded.

The first stretch of concrete, including miles of newly opened pavement in Caldwell and Livingston counties, runs from St. Joseph to the junction of U. S. No. 65, immediately south of Chillicothe. Then there is gravel through Laclede, Gen. Pershing's birthplace, to Brookfield. At present a short detour over bumpy streets is in use in Brookfield where a slab is being laid into town from the east. That work connects on the outskirts of town with a short, old stretch of pavement extending to the junction of Missouri No. 5 (south). From that intersection to Shelbina, through Macon, there is gravel, but from Shelbina to Hannibal there is concrete. The last few miles of pavement into the latter town are quite new and glistening.

This new highway, together with its connections, ought to make Northern Missouri less of a closed book to the average St. Louisan. It's an easy two-day run of 623 miles, even for a medium fast driver, to make the circuit by way of Kansas City, St. Joseph and Hannibal, and while the country along the southern leg, No. 40, is familiar to many, that traversed by No. 36 has a different aspect.

It is a common belief in St. Louis that Northern Missouri is entirely flat—a typical part of the nation's prairie granary. That may be true in spots, but along No. 36 the countryside is undulating and occasionally has steep hills. Nevertheless, this highway probably is the straightest one in the State, straighter even than No. 40. It has, literally, a minimum of curves and a maximum of unswerving lines. In spite of that fact, it is not monotonous driving, like the typical Illinois highway, because of the rolling land. The eye-relieving curves are vertical rather than horizontal, as it were.

Chillicothe, Brookfield, Macon, Shelbina and Monroe City are the largest towns on the route, yet the highway avoids their busy sections generally, and Brookfield is the only one whose main streets are traversed. The State Highway Department map shows only 16 other, lesser settlements along the way, and aside from these there are practically no crossroad hamlets. The trip, in fact, offers a pleasant surprise—there is a dearth of barbecue and hot dog stands and of filling stations.

Not a grade crossing endangers the course, save a couple of narrow-gauge industrial lines, little used. There are a number of grotesque but life-saving humps, where the highway soars up from level ground to cross railroad tracks, and in other places there are so-called subways. Where these underpasses occur on the graveled section of the highway, the dips proper are paved with concrete already.

Wooded areas abound, either patches liberally scattered about the landscape or real thickets. These are in the last shades of autumn color, with many trees showing an unusual buff tone. The

Engineers Destroy Bridge To Test Their Theories

Building of Dam, Necessitating Submergence of Structure, Gives First Chance to Prove Accepted Principles on a Large Scale.

Before the recent tests of a concrete arch bridge over the Yadkin River in North Carolina, engineers designing such structures were compelled to rely on theory alone for their assumptions as to the stresses produced by the expected loads. No full-sized bridge of the arch type had ever been tested to determine its maximum strength, either in this country or, so far as is known, anywhere in the world.

The theory—intelligible only to those versed in higher mathematics—was known to be safe. That was demonstrated by the fact that bridges built in accordance with it have not failed. But whether it was too safe, whether the bridges were stronger and more expensive than necessary—that question had never been answered.

To answer it engineers have long looked forward to the opportunity that would give them a real life-sized bridge to test to destruction; and the opportunity came in 1927, when it was learned that a dam, then building on the Yadkin River, would eventually submerge the existing arch bridge on the road between Albemarle and Mount Gilead, N. C., and necessitate its abandonment and the construction of a new bridge 30 feet higher.

The existing bridge, a beautiful modern structure, was completed in 1922 by the North Carolina Highway Department with the assistance of the Federal Government. Here was the long awaited opportunity and the engineers were not slow in taking advantage of it. At the suggestion of the North Carolina department and the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture, an advisory committee was formed of members of technical societies and schools to propose plans and methods of procedure. The tests were made by five engineers, three from the Bureau of Public Roads and two from the State Highway Department.

The bridge was about a quarter of a mile long, of 17 spans, three of which were 146 feet in length, the others being concrete girder approach spans. Under the arch of one of the 146 foot spans, a scaffolding was erected upon which the engineers, with their instruments, took their measurements. Onto the floor of the bridge were rolled two huge water tanks, each about the size of a small two-story house or semibungalow, and weighing 23½ tons. Water was pumped into them until the maximum weight of each was reached, 160 tons, the engineers taking measurements under the span of the effect on concrete of the weights. Then the tanks were emptied, shifted to other positions on the floor of the bridge and subjected to the same procedure. Thus the actual stresses in different parts of the span were measured.

Although the bridge did not collapse under even the heaviest load, it did develop some serious cracks which would have made it dangerous for traffic.

The Division of Tests and Research of the Bureau of Public Roads is compiling the test data and a technical report on the findings to aid in the future development of reinforced concrete arch bridges.

Fifty Mountain Trail in Glacier To Be Repaired

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

GLACIER PARK, Mont., Nov. 17.—The trail from Fifty Mountain Camp to Waterton Lake, in Glacier National Park, a distance of 12 miles, is to be reconstructed in 1929, according to decision of Supt. J. R. Eakin.

It will connect at Fifty Mountain Camp on the slope of Mount Kipp with a new high line trail, now being built from Fifty Mountain Camp to Granite Park. Granite Park is now connected with Logan Pass by the Garden Wall trail. When this portion from Fifty Mountain to Waterton Lake is remodeled there will be a continuous wide trail with little climb, from Logan Pass to Waterton Lake, a distance of more than 30 miles. Every mile of the trail presents a magnificent view of the Rocky Mountains.

St. Louisans Honored By Traffic Body

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 17.—L. D. Stephens, president Uniform Traffic Control Co.; Reyburn P. Hoffman, city traffic engineer, both of St. Louis, have been named honorary vice presidents of the National Highway Traffic Association, it was announced here by Arthur H. Blanchard, president of the association.

The National Highway Traffic Association was formed in 1918 to promote efficiency and regulation of highway traffic and transport.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The American Automotive Club of Paris has voted to change its name to the American Automotive Club of Europe, because of the expansion of its activities. The headquarters will remain in this city.

At the fall election, Sidney H. Diman, European manager of the Graham-Paige Motors Corporation, was elected president.

Campaign for Curbing Grade Crossing Crashes

Railroad Commission Tells Association What Is Being Done to Eliminate Dangers.

By the Associated Press.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 17.—Wisconsin will spend even more than the $400,000 which the railroads will provide to eliminate grade crossings next year, A. R. McDonald, member of that State's railroad commission told the National Association of Railroad and Utilities Commissioners here. As chairman he gave the report of the committee on grade crossings.

The committee report showed that there are about 235,000 crossings of railroad and automobile traffic ways on the same grade, on which, in 1927, there were 5595 accidents wiht 2371 persons killed and 6613 injured.

McDonald urged the commissioners' association to take a leading part in:

Eliminating the grade crossings as fast as possible.

Diverting traffic where possible by means of highway relocations.

Preventing the opening of new grade crossings where possible.

Protecting grade crossings as rapidly as circumstances permit.

Assisting in safety work in the schools.

A determined effort should be made to reduce the number of crossings at which there is no form of warning, he said, either an automatic signal, flagman or gates should be installed at each one. He said that Wisconsin had adopted as standard the wig-wag form of signal where signals were used and cited findings of the safety factor as reasons for this step.

Wisconsin has also adopted the Federal road markers for railroad crossing warnings, said the Badger commissioner, and many of the State's counties are accepting the same signs for use on county roads.

S. A. E. to Hold Aero Meeting In Chicago

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—The aeronautical section of the Society of Automotive Engineers, in co-operation with the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce of the United States will hold a two-day session here on Dec. 5 and 6, during the week of the International Aircraft Exposition, it was announced today. Plans have already been made for another meeting of the kind to be held in New York early in January.

The meeting here in December is to be divided into five technical sessions, the first devoted to aircraft power plants, the second to commercial operation, the third to design and construction, and the last two to aeronautical standardization.

It is believed that standardization of material specifications, parts dimensions and mountings for instruments and other equipment will prove of as great value in the aeronautic field as it has in the motor vehicle field. Earnest efforts are therefore being made to develop standards in the aeronautic field as rapidly as possible before manufacturers get into mass production.

One of the addresses at the meeting to which a great deal of interest is attached is to be given by L. M. Woolson of the Packard Motor Car Co., who will deal with the latest development in Diesel engines for aircraft.

Because fog is the greatest hazard in flying, the address by Lieut. A. F. Hegenberger of the United States Air Service, on "Fog Flying Possibilities," is expected to attract much attention.

Another paper of timely interest because of the recent trans-Atlantic flight of the Graf Zeppelin, will be Dr. Karl Arnstein's paper on "Developments in Lighter-Than-Air Craft." Dr. Arnstein is connocted with the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corp., which has been awarded the navy contract for the construction of two Zeppelins that are to be much larger than the Graf Zeppelin.

Further addresses will deal with nonradial air-cooled engines, airplane propellers and gearing, maintenance of air-cooled engines, fire prevention, airplane shock absorbers and the care of passengers on air transport planes.

The fact that airplane manufacture is now getting into the stage of large production is reflected by the scheduling of an address by L. S. Milburn of the Glenn L. Martin Co., on the "Relation of Production Cost to Quantity Produced."

Route Through Texas Is Hard-Surfaced

By the Associated Press.

WACO, Tex., Nov. 17.—Belief that within another year a hard-surfaced highway from Texarkana to San Diego, Cal., will be available for traffic was expressed in a recent report of Fred B. Robinson of Waco, traveling director of the Bankhead Highway Association.

The report prepared stated that the Bankhead highway is paved practically the entire distance across Texas, Hopkins County, the only unpaved strip, recently having finished its stretch of the road. Texas counties are co-operating to maintain the highway, which is in good condition and under constant improvement, the report stated.

Cody Gateway To Yellowstone Is Resurfaced

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Automobilists who may be planning a vacation motor tour to the West next year will be interested in knowing that the Cody Road, or eastern approach to Yellowstone National Park, has been resurfaced.

That announcement was made by the Touring Bureau of the Chicago Motor Club, which received a large number of complaints about the road the past summer. The club took the matter up with park officers, who began the repair work but were held up by adverse weather conditions. In the meanwhile, tourists were forced to use the bad seven-mile strip, however, as there was no existing detour route.

Chevrolet Quits Output Of Four-Cylinder Line; Offers '6' at Same Price

New Model Tested at Milford Proving Ground Near Detroit Reveals Marvelous Flexibility and Hill-Climbing Capability for Its Valve-In-Head Motor—Stock Job Driven 77 M. P. H., Then It Easily Climbs 11 Per Cent Grade Eighth-Mile Long.

By ROBERT H. HALL,
Automobile Editor.

The most startling announcement the automobile world has received since the Model A Ford was placed on the market last year was made before a group of 100 automobile editors assembled at General Motors proving ground at Milford, Mich., the past week when R. H. Grant, vice president of the Chevrolet Motor Car Co., revealed that the company has definitely deserted the four-cylinder car field and within 30 days will have on display throughout the country a six-cylinder car which already has been placed into production.

Chevrolet, as is generally known, is one of the largest manufacturers in the four-cylinder car field, its production in both 1927 and 1928 exceeding a million units. That it should desert this field has taken the industry somewhat aback. But that it should enter the six-cylinder field and offer a line of cars with a price range of $525 to $725—virtually the same as that of the old four-cylinder line—has set the automotive world humming with gossip.

Tests made at the Milford proving ground the past week reveal that the car has both high speed and power. The writer, accompanied by Sales Manager Klingler of the Chevrolet staff, put a coach model of the new line through its paces on the proving ground race track. It developed a speed of 77 miles per hour and at the punishing gait the engine purred along smoothly and without vibration.

Later, on an 11 per cent concrete grade an eighth-mile long, the car started at its base at a speed of 25 miles per hour and gained the top without a falter, its speedometer registering 38 miles per hour. Such performance for a six-cylinder car is remarkable, but imagine the writer's surprise when mechanics at the proving ground told him that the test car had already been driven about 10,000 miles without being overhauled.

Seven models of passenger cars and three commercial types make up the line. Included in the passenger car line are five closed and two open models. The commercial car line embraces a new and larger utility truck of one and one-half ton capacity, a new light delivery chassis and the sedan delivery.

Despite the score of advanced features, prices remain virtually the same, chiefly as a result of the influence of tremendous volume production. The passenger car range is from $525 to $725, factory list. The prices, according to models, are as follows: Roadster, $525;

TO MELT SNOW FROM ROADS WITH STEAM

California-Nevada Officials to Test Plan This Winter.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 17.—Steam-heated highways may greet the traveler in the West if plans made by California and Nevada highway officials are carried out.

Plans have been practically completed to experiment next winter in heating a four-mile stretch of the Victory Highway with steam pipes to determine whether it is practical to attempt to keep Sierra passes open during the winters by this method.

Highway Commissioner J. C. Durham of Washoe County, Nevada, says that a 200-horsepower boiler has been purchased and will be installed near the Southern Pacific Railway tracks. It will be fired with fuel oil obtained from tank cars on a siding.

Three lines of two-inch pipe provided with steam traps at 500-foot intervals will be placed below the surface of the highway for four miles.

They will be buried in silicon, a heat insulator, six inches below the ground, with the insulation forcing the heat to the surface and preventing its dissipation through the ground.

Steam will be kept in the pipes during cold weather, and the boiler maintained at top pressure during a snowstorm.

It is proposed to have the road warm when a storm is approaching in the hope that the snow will melt as soon as it falls.

If the plan is feasible, it is said that California and Nevada will provide funds for heating 16 miles of the highway. It is claimed by Nevada road engineers that only that strip of the route through the Sierras prevents maintenance of an open road throughout the winter.

Motorists "Tag" Themselves."

A clever scheme has been worked in Pittsburg, Pa., successfully, to fool traffic police. Motorists who had received "tags" for parking violations saved them and stuck them on their cars when they parked to make the patrolmen think they already had been tagged.

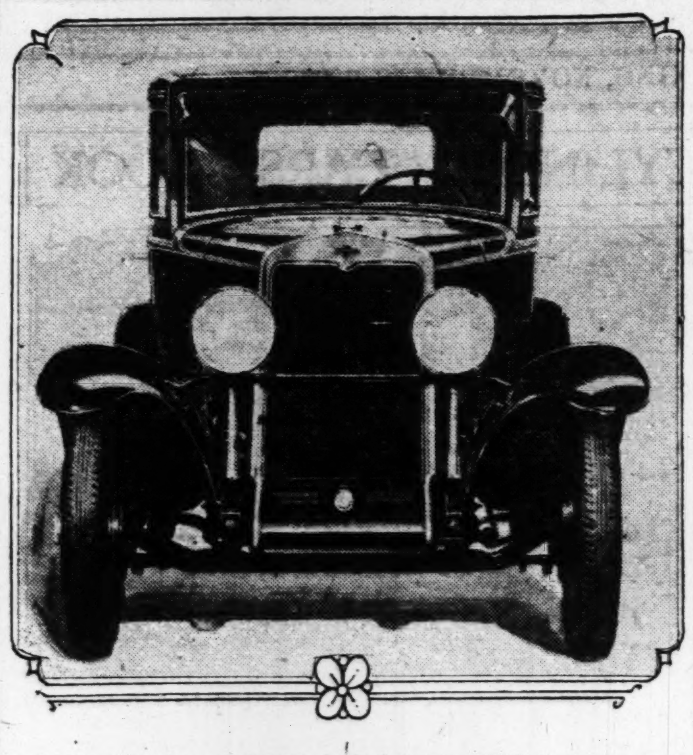
HEAD-ON VIEW OF NEW CAR



phaeton, $525; coach, $595; coupe, $595; sedan, $675; sport cabriolet, $695; convertible landau, $725. The commercial car prices are: Light delivery chassis, $400; one and one-half ton utility truck chassis, $545; one and one-half ton utility truck chassis with cab, $650, and the sedan delivery, $595, factory list.

Advance showings of the new Chevrolet line will be held in cities strategetically located throughout the country, beginning Nov. 24 and continuing until Dec. 22. First deliveries to purchasers will start Jan. 1. No deliveries will be made prior to that time, officials stated.

First showing in St. Louis will be at the Arcadia Ballroom, Dec. 8 to 14.

Advance orders will be taken immediately following the announcement with deliveries starting Jan. 1, officials stated. They also pointed out that to insure delivery early next year it would be advisable to place orders as soon as possible.

The new car bears no resemblance to its predecesser. In body design it is comparable to nothing General Motors now has to offer. Although the wheelbase remains 107 inches the body is longer than the four-cylinder model body. The radiator is narrow, high and almost flat at the top, and the hood sweeps away from the base of the windshield on a level line. Hood louvres are vertical. There are 15, grouped closely together near the end of the hood closest to the body. All metal fitments are chromium plated, replacing the nickel plate formerly used.

In its new offering Chevrolet his retained the highly successful valve-in-head principle. The motor is of the high compression type with a non-detonating head and develops 32 per cent more power than its predecessor. The piston displacement is 194 cubic inches.

Thousands of miles of testing under every road and weather conditions at the General Motors proving ground have shown that the new Chevrolet engine will operate with an economy averaging better than 20 miles per gallon of gasoline. This is virtually the same fuel economy enjoyed by the owners of the previous four-cylinder model. The motor develops 46 horsepower at low engine speed. The speed has been stepped up to satisfy maximum requirements and in acceleration the new motor is vastly superior to any previous Chevrolet model. This remarkable acceleration is due partly to the use of a new accelerating pump. When the accelerator is suddenly depressed this pump forces a small quantity of gasoline into the manifold of the carburetor, giving the car the instant power and get-away so necessary in modern traffic. On actual dynamometer tests the new engine develops 46 horsepower at low engine speed. At all ordinary speeds it develops from three to four times the amount of power required to drive the car.

Tortional vibration is imperceptible at any speed through the use of a heavy 46-pound crankshaft, perfectly balanced statically and dynamically. A further contribution to the exceptional quietness of the motor is the automatic lubrication of the entire rocker arm mechanism and of all valve operating parts, which in addition are completely inclosed.

Another advanced feature is the fuel pump, which insures a positive and uniform supply of gasoline to the carburetor under all driving conditions, regardness of engine speed, load or road grade. A gasoline filter, built in as part of the fuel pump, insures only clean gasoline reaching the carburetor and engine. The carburetor is further protected by a new type AC air cleaner which prevents grit and dust from entering.

There is a combustion splash and wick flow method of lubrication with the oil supplied through an oil filter at the bottom of the crankcase by means of a newly designed vane type pump. There is an oil pressure gauge incorporated in the new instrument panel.

The clutch is of the single plate dry disc type and requires no lubrication.

The new rear axle is similar in design to that used on the most expensive cars. It is of the semi-floating type with a strong, one-piece, banjo-type pressed steel housing. Six heavy duty New Departure annular ball-bearings and extra heavy cut spiral bevel gears make for smooth driving operation.

The steering gear is semi-reversible of the ball-bearing full worm and gear type. The new shaft is solid, replacing the tubular type formerly used. It is mounted in a bracket securely riveted to the frame. The beautiful 17-inch black finish steering wheel has a rubber covered spider.

Dependable non-locking four wheel brakes with rear service brakes in two self-aligning segments contribute to the quiet, safe operating features of the car.

The service brakes on the 11-inch drums on the rear wheels are of the external contracting type and those on the front of the internal expanding style. The emergency brake lever is conveniently located on the driver's right and operates a braking system independent of the service brakes.

Long chrome vanadium shock absorber steel springs of the semi-illiptic type are one of the factors accounting for the easy riding qualities of the new car. The springs are set parallel to the frame, assuring safety as well as comfort at all speeds. The front springs are each 36 inches in length and the rear springs 54 inches. The wheelbase is 107 inches.

Interior appointments are the richest and most luxurious ever offered by Chevrolet. The seats are wider and more restful. The driver's seat in all closed models is easily adjustable, forward or back, a feature recently introduced on a few of the high-priced cars. The redesigned dash carries an attractive grouping of all control instruments indirectly lighted including the new motor temperature indicator.

NEW JERSEY FIRM OWNS 900 BUSSES

Subsidiary of Public Service Corp. Hauls 300,000,000 Persons Yearly.

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 17.—In 1928 the Public Service Co-ordinated Transport, a subsidiary of the Public Service Corp. of New Jersey, will operate its motorcoaches a total of 55,000,000 miles and carry more than 300,000,000 passengers, according to a statement made by A. T. Warner, general manager in charge of traffic, in an address delivered at the recent national transportation meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers here. These figures compare with 15,000,000 coach-miles and 76,000,000 passengers in 1924, the first full year of the company's motorcoach operation.

Much of this tremendous increase has resulted from the purchase of additional competing lines but a great deal has resulted from the establishment of motorcoach service in lieu of former rail service. Today the entire local passenger business in the cities of Paterson and Plainfield is handled by motorcoaches and a large part of the service formerly furnished by street cars in New Brunswick, Camden, Elizabeth, and Perth Amboy and South Amboy is now provided by motorcoaches, which have replaced street car operation on single tracks.

The elimination of turnout waits and the operating flexibility of the motorcoach resulted in immediate popular approval. This year one-half of the company's total transportation business will be carried on its 1800 motorcoaches and the other half in its 1400 street cars.

One of the greatest factors that has popularized the motorcoach, Warner believes, is the pickup and delivery of passengers at the curb which is made mandatory by the State law in New Jersey. This makes it unnecessary for passengers to cross through automotive traffic to reach the coaches and is believed to have produced a greater increase in short-haul traffic for the motorcoach than any other single factor.

The company is now operating about 900 gasoline-electric motorcoaches and finds that the most important factor in its favor is the elimination of gear shifting, which greatly reduces the abuse of the clutch and transmission by the driver and affords a smoother and more comfortable ride for every passenger.

Franklin Has 91 Men With 20-Year Service Records

With 12 more men completing 20 years of service in the plant of the Franklin Automobile Co. at Syracuse, N. Y., during the past week, the roll of veterans with a score of years at Franklin is now increased to a total of 91. The new members of the "20-Year Old Club" were guests of honor at a banquet tendered by executives of the company.

In the automotive industry where the average complete turnover of working personnel is less than five years, this record of Franklin employes who have served the same automobile manufacturer for more than 20 years is considered a remarkable tribute.

REDUCTION IN PRICES OF WHIPPET CARS

Saving of $80 to $130 P Auto Possible Under Plan.

Sweeping reductions on both the four and six cylinder models of the Whippet line, were announced the past week by the Willys-Overland, Inc., factory branch here. The reductions, it was stated, are not national but of local scope only and were announced in order to decrease the stock of Whippet cars now on hand at St. Louis branch.

The price reductions in the four-cylinder line as as follows: Cabriolet coupes, formely $702 delivered, now $622, delivered; coupe, formerly $641, now $571; coach, formerly $641, now $561; sedan, formerly $718, now $624. Plymouth

Plymouth 4-Door Sedan, $735

CHRYSLER PLYMOUTH

Beginning with FULL SIZE .. the biggest dollar value in its field . . .

$675 AND UPWARDS

Roadster (with rumble seat) . $675
Coupe 685
Touring 695
2-Door Sedan 700
De Luxe Coupe (with rumble seat) . . . 735
4-Door Sedan 735

All prices f. o. b. Detroit. Plymouth dealers are in a position to extend the convenience of time payments.

All you have to do is to compare Plymouth's full-size with the few other cars in the lowest-priced group to realize quickly why Plymouth is everywhere acclaimed the greatest dollar-for-dollar value in this field.

You find here a new measure of roominess and comfort for all adult passengers—long, low, richly-upholstered bodies with wide, deep seats.

But Plymouth value extends much further than mere size. It strikes an entirely original note of style and smartness.

In performance it gives the power and speed that only the new Chrysler "Silver-Dome" high-compression engine can give, combined with astonishing quiet and smoothness. And the safety assured by internal-expanding hydraulic 4-wheel brakes—the only car at its price with this fine equipment.

Keeping these facts in mind it is easy to prove to yourself by inspection and actual trial that Plymouth gives you more for your dollar than any other car in the lowest-priced field.

At St. Louis Air Fields

INDICATIVE of what may be expected in the future, the Universal Aviation Corporation, of which the Robertson Aircraft Corporation is a unit, announces that five 32-passenger Fokker planes will be built to the company's order for service between Kansas City and points East.

The first of the planes will be delivered next spring after undergoing extensive tests. According to Frank H. Robertson, chairman of operations for the Universal corporation, the ships will have all the conveniences of a modern passenger train, including electrically equipped kitchen and berths for 16 passengers. It is planned to use the planes between Kansas City and the East coast, exchanging passengers with Western Air Express, another unit of the Universal corporation, which will operate between the Pacific Coast and Kansas City. The Robertson and Western Air Express companies will also operate plane-train service from coast to coast through St. Louis in conjunction with several railroads.

New Passenger Service.

Daily passenger service between St. Louis and Kansas City was inaugurated Thursday by the Robertson Aircraft Corporation.

Jack Grosse, City Register, was a passenger in the first plane to Kansas City, carrying a letter from Mayor Miller inviting Mayor Beach of Kansas City to visit St. Louis by air. Departure for Kansas City is at 2:15 p. m., with arrival there about 5 o'clock. Eastbound planes leave Kansas City at 8:30 a. m., arriving at Lambert Field about three hours later, in time for passengers to board the tri-motored ship for Chicago, which leaves at 12:30 p. m. The fare on the Kansas City route is the same as that between St. Louis and Chicago, $30 one way, $55 for the round trip.

New Ryan Monoplane.

The first of the new Ryan six-place monoplanes will be turned out for test flights at the Mahoney-Ryan plant at Lambert Field this week.

The ship has a slightly larger wing than the old model and includes a number of refinements. There are places for two pilots and four passengers, dual controls being part of the regular equipment. Later ships of this model will have the new Wright J-6, 300-horsepower motor, in place of the J-5 motor. The first ship of the new model is put out in de luxe style for exhibition at the Aeronautical Show at Chicago next month. On his recent visit here Col. Lindbergh, who made Ryan planes famous with the "Spirit of St. Louis," inspected the new model.

Ford Flyer to Be Tested.

The first of the tri-motored ships to be deliveerd to the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc., will be brought here probably this week for extensive tests by Maj. Thomas Lanphier and Phil Love, of the T. A. T. technical staff. The ship, a Ford transport with Wasp motors, is the first of 10 similar planes to be used in the plane-train service to be inaugurated next June by T. A. T. Following the tests here, the plane will be flown over portions of the T. A. T. route laid out by Col. Lindbergh, chairman of the Technical Committee of the company.

Maj. Lanphier Visits City.

Maj. Lanphier, who resigned as commander of the Army's First Pursuit Group to take an executive position with T. A. T., arrived at Lambert Field Thursday with Phil Love in a new Stearman, recently purchased for the use of T. A. T. officials. Love departed an hour later for Dayton in a National Guard ship, while Maj. Lanphier remained here until Friday, conferring with T. Preston Sultan, who, with Love, is air consultant for T. A. T. Maj. Lanphier flew to Detroit Friday, and will return this week to assist in the tests of the tri-motored ship.

Lieut. Weld Inspects Field.

Lieut. Frank Weld, former executive officer of the navy flying station at Pensacola, Fla., spent Tuesday and Wednesday in St. Louis on his way by automobile to Minneapolis, where he will take charge of a naval reserve flying unit. Lieut. Weld inspected naval reserve flying activities at Lambert Field while here.

Bouse Looks Over Benton School.

M. R. Bouse, manager of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., made a flying trip to Benton, Ill., with Pilot Lindenberg last week to inspect a branch flying school operated by the Von Hoffmann company at Benton. There are 18 students in the school, which is in charge of Jim Lewis, veteran pilot. Lewis is also organizing a flying club at Benton.

3 Get Pilots' Licenses.

With three more students receiving licenses as limited commercial pilots last week, the number of Parks' Air College students licensed since the college began operations eight months ago is now 73. Four of the graduates have qualified as transport pilots.

Statistics of the college disclose that between the opening of the course and Oct. 31 a total of 6535 hours were flown at Parks Airport in connection with the school. In that period there were but 21 forced landings and only one injury, a broken finger suffered by a student in the only crash resulting from the forced landings. Parks College now has an enrollment of 229 flying students, and 147 students in the mechanics' school.

Eight Attend Guard Meeting.

Three ships of the Thirty-fifth Division Air Corps returned to Lambert Field Friday from Hot Springs, Ark., where officers of the unit attended a meeting of the National Guard Association. Those making the trip were Capt. Rus- ll Young, Lieuts. Lambert, arks and Kaeppel and Sergt. Gerding and Private McMahon. Maj. Miller, commander of the Minnesota National Guard flying unit, accompanied the St. Louis group.

"Red" Jackson Wins Twice.

"Red" Jackson, test pilot for the Curtiss-Robertson Airplane Manufacturing Co., won two races at Kansas City last Sunday with a "Robin." He won a race for planes with OX-5 motors and also finished first in a dead-stick landing contest.

Landing Without Stick.

The prize landing in a "Robin" is claimed by "Bud" Gurney, who landed one of the ships by using the stabilizer and throttle only—not touching the stick. To prove that such methods are practical in an emergency Maj. Robertson plans to do the same thing himself.

Visitor From Denver.

J. D. Alexander of Denver, Colo., president of the company that makes the "Eaglerock," visited Lambert Field during the week and conferred with M. R. Bouse, manager of the Von Hoffmann Aircraft Co., local distributor for the Eaglerock.

To Discuss Regulations.

Oliver L. Parks, vice president of Parks Air College, is a member of the flying school committee of the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce, which will meet at Chicago, Dec. 2, to discuss regulations for flying schools. The other members of the committee are "Casey" Jones and "Tex" Rankin, both noted pilots.

Sam Lambert's Daring Feat.

Sam Lambert continues to be the most daring of the newer flyers at Lambert Field. He took off Wednesday in a 40-mile wind in his Monocoupe for Moline, Ill. With the same wind on its tail the tri-motored passenger ship made the trip to Chicago in five minutes less than two hours.

Santa in a Plane.

Yesterday Field Manager O. E. Scott piloted a department store Santa Claus from Lambert Field to the old air mail field in Forest Park, where a crowd of children received him. Scott performed the same service three years ago, and received a "sack of gold" containing about four pounds of lead and a $20 bill for his trouble.

Sixth Woman Flying Student.

Miss Marie Malik of St. Louis started to work with nine other new students in the mechanics course of the Von Hoffman Flying School last Thursday. She plans to take up flying after completing the mechanics course. She is the sixth woman student to enroll in the Von Hoffman School since it was started, but the first one to go in for mechanics. Twenty students graduated from the mechanics' school on Nov. 10.

Big Fokker Stops Over.

A 12-passenger Fokker plane to be used by the Western Air Express between Los Angeles, Cal., and Salt Lake City, stopped at Lambert Field Friday to refuel, on its way from Teterboro, N. J., to the Pacific Coast. John A Love, head of the investment firm of Love, Bryan & Co., and a director of the Universal Aviation Corporation, controlling Western Air Express, boarded the ship here. The ship carried six other passengers and pilots, Charles James and Everett Drinkwater. The ship has all the refinements of modern aircraft.

Noted Pilot Drops in.

R. S. Fogg, a pilot from Concord, N. H., who won the "newsreel" race to Greenley Island following the landing of the Bremen flyers on the isolated island, flew into Lambert Field Thursday from Cincinnati with F. H. Putnam, a Cincinnati business man, and the latter's daughter, Dorothy, as passengers. They returned to Cincinnati Friday after Putnam attended to business here.

Fly to Labor Meeting.

Four members of the Joliet, Ill., Chamber of Commerce traveled by air from Parks Airport on the East Side to Herrin, Ill., last week to attend a meeting of the Illinois Federation of Labor. Pilots Sterling and Wigton made the trip.

Railway and Air Line Combine.

Under an agreement reached last week the Illinois Central Railroad and the Robertson Aircraft Corporation now exchange tickets. Either company may sell tickets over the other's line.

"Red" Harrigan Expected Here.

"Red" Harrigan, test pilot for the Mahoney-Ryan Co., is expected here this week from San Diego. If he arrives in time he will test the next six-place Ryan job.

Fred Stone's Ex-Pilot Calls.

Johnny Campion, who flew out of Lambert Field before becoming pilot for Fred Stone, famous comedian, who was critically injured when he crashed his ship, was a visitor at Parks Airport during the week. Stone crashed Campion out of a job, but Johnny expects to make connections with an Eastern aircraft manufacturing concern soon.

Hunters to Go by Air.

Frank Dunn tested the windshield wiper on Phil Ball's ship last week preparatory to another flight to the hunting preserve, near Cherokee, Ok., where Ball, Harry Sinclair and other notables seek recreation. Frank and his employer flew through rain for about six hours the last time they returned home from a hunting trip.

Flies From San Antonio.

Maj. Jacob Fickel of the regular army flew into Lambert Field Wednesday from San Antonio, Tex., in a Douglas. He returned to Texas the next day.

A Business Flight.

"Bud" Gurney, chief pilot, and H. J. McNally, traffic manager for the Robertson Aircraft Corporation, flew to Kansas City and Omaha in a Cessna last week on business for the company.

Airman Carries Serum.

Clyde Brayton made a trip in a Travel-Air last week from Parks Airport to Quincy., Ill., where serum to be used in treating a meningitis patient there.

"Columbia" Cracks Up a Waco.

"Columbia," who knows everybody at Lambert Field, provided a slight thrill Wednesday when he cracked up a Waco belonging to a friend. "Columbia" emerged unscathed, but the Waco lost the under carriage and lower wing.

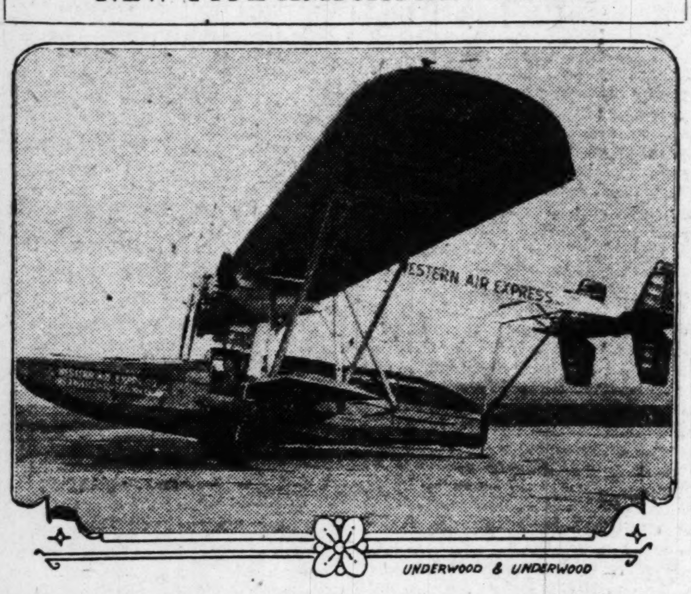
Hotel for Parks' Airport.

A modern hotel is being planned at Parks' Airport, to be operated separately from the dormitory in which students are quartered. Plans call for a 60-room structure, containing modern conveniences.

New Machinery Bought.

The Robertson Aircraft Corporation has purchased $18,000 worth of machinery to complete its shop equipment. With the new machinery Robertson mechanics will be able to build almost any engine part, in addition to replacing damaged wing and fuselage construction.

NEW TYPE AMPHIBIAN PLANE



UNDERWOOD & UNDERWOOD

THIS plane, a Sikorsky Amphibian, capable of carrying 14 passengers and pilot, is powered by two twin motors placed between wings and fuselage, and is to be used in regular service between Los Angeles and Catalina Island. Note the boat-like construction of fuselage.

Says American Cars Set Pace At Paris Show

As the world's money market has been transferred from London to New York, so, in the opinion of R. S. Cole, Hupmobile vice president in charge of sales, leadership in automobile styles is passing from European to American control.

America's new priority in motor car design was one of the significant features of this year's automobile shows at Paris and London, according to Cole.

"Formerly American manufacturers went to Paris and London to get the trend of the year's modes in automobile, as revealed by the creations of Europe's designers," says Cole, "but the latest and most beautiful types of Europe's automobile factories exhibited this year followed closely the styles already announced in connection with the 1929 models of American cars.

"One thing that always impresses the American visitor to the Paris show is the size of the building in which it is held and the space available for exhibits. When it is considered that in a show of this kind provision is made to display not only all American cars, but also cars manufactured by so many other nations, including the great number shown by French makers, and that it is possible for all to be assembled on one floor and still to be seen to the best advantage, the contrast with conditions in London and even in American automobile shows is very striking."

DRIVING CAR TO CALIFORNIA BLINDFOLDED

His Dog Pilots Car Says Jimmy Burns, Explaining Stunt.

A notable of the canine world was the guest of St. Louis the other day on a coast-to-coast automobile tour. He is Pedro, a Belgium police dog, and he is piloting a Moon aero-type sedan from New York to California.

Although Pedro may be said to pilot the car, he does not actually drive it. He has put his master, Jimmy Burns, who has gained renown as a blindfold driver, at the steering wheel. Burns will be blindfolded throughout the trip to prove that Pedro is a dog wonder who can really guide the car. Pedro is said to have a system of signal all his own. If a pedestrian should suddenly step in front of the automobile Pedro presses the horn with his paw. The dog's loud bark is another signal, which means, "turn to the right." A low growl is the signal to turn to the left, and so on.

Hyvis oil will be used exclusively on this, the longest blindfold trip Burns has yet attempted. Although unable to see anything Burns drives swiftly and confidently through the heaviest traffic. He indicated on his stop in St. Louis that he chose Hyvis oil for the trip because of its performance on previous blindfold drives.

"The oil is of vital importance for I must drive all day without being able to see my pressure gauge or motometer," Burns said. "The oil must stand up for, by the time my ears could warn me of trouble the damage would be done." The oil will not be drained throughout the 5000 mile run and when additional Hyvis is put in the crankcase will be officially unsealed and then resealed.

Burns and Pedro arrived in St. Louis from Indianapolis and after a brief stay departed for Chicago, Madison, Wis., and Duluth, Minn., the next stops on the westward trip.

Besides officers of the Moon Motor Car Co., others on the reception committee to greet Burns and his dog on their arrival here were Harold Strickler, head of the lubricant division of the Lubrite Refining Co., which distributes Hyvis in the St. Louis territory and sells it from its 200 local filling stations, and Frank Klug, district representative for the Pennsylvania refineries which produce Hyvis.

Graham-Paige Dealers Increase

The success of the Graham-Paige line, which attained production of 70,406 in its first 10 months, is emphasized by the growth of the company's dealer connections, which have increased 140 per cent this year.

At the end of 1927, six months after the three Graham brothers assumed ownership control of the company, the dealer list in the United States and Canada totaled 740. After the New York show, the Graham-Paige line, the growth of the dealer list began in earnest. Today, in 10 months, 1040 new distributors and dealers have joined their fortunes with those of the three Graham brothers, making a total of 1780; or, including overseas dealers, 2093.

Wentzville Hotel Has Been Ropened

The Wentzville Hotel, at Wentzville, Mo., on U. S. 40—the St. Louis-Kansas City highway via Columbia—has been reopened under new management. The management plans to cater especially to St. Louisans on Saturday or Sunday outings. Wentzville is 40 miles west of St Louis.

SOMETHING NEW IN ROAD SIGNS

ZUM SCHLOSSPLATZ

ASSOCIATED PRESS PHOTO

If you want to go to Schlossplatz, which happens to be in Germany, just follow the direction of this wooden fellow who stands ready to set you on the right path. He is carved out of hardwood and is the artistic answer to Germany's disapproval of sign boards which mar the beauty of the rural districts.

Warning to Watch Oil in the Winter

With the advent of cold weather, motorists should give added attention to crankcase oil, according to Oldsmobile engineers. Not only the quantity of oil in the crankcase, but its quality as well should be checked frequently. The engineers call attention to the fact that there is a more liberal use of the choke during the winter months. Choking an engine partly closes the air intake at the carburetor and thus enriches the gas mixture. This rich mixture striking the cylinder walls of a cold engine has a tendency to condense and seep down the cylinder walls into the crankcase, thus diluting the lubricating oil.

"All possible mechanical appliances designed to keep lubricating oil free from contamination and dilution are used on the new Oldsmobile," the engineers report. "These include crankcase ventilation, oil filter, gasoline filter and an air cleaner. By these methods all oil, gasoline and air in an Oldsmobile engine is thoroughly cleaned. But notwithstanding all these precautions it is wisdom for automobile owners living in the colder climates to watch their crankcase oil. With the new Oldsmobile we recommend that the oil be changed in winter each 1000 miles of driving."

Reo Speed Wagon Business Good

October was the fourth biggest month in the history of the Reo Motor Car Co., from the standpoint of retail Speed Wagon sales, according to a statement by Carl Parker, assistant sales manager.

"Not only are our 1928 Speed Wagon shipments to date nearly one-third greater than for the entire calendar year 1927," said Parker, "but they exceed by a substantial margin the total Speed Wagon shipments for any previous full year.

De Soto Easy for Women to Drive

With women forming an ever-increasing section of the automobile driving public, motor car manufacturers and designers are being forced more and more to take feminine likes and dislikes into consideration when planning their product, say officers of the De Soto Motor Corporation, division of the Chrysler Corporation.

Apart from the feminine influence in choosing the family car, an influence which is at least partially responsible for the bright and harmonious colorings of the modern motor vehicle, women are demanding cars which can be driven with a minimum of effort and which can be parked without difficulty on crowded downtown streets.

Sales figures show that the new De Soto Set is being given a hearty reception by women all over the country. They find its flexibility, its driving ease, suited to their requirements.

Nine New Moon Dealers in Nine Days

Helm Walker, vice president of the Moon Motor Car Co., reports quickening of Moon-Aerotype sales due to many new dealers being signed up in the past two months. Walker says, "retail dealers and their salesman are more rapidly appraising the new Moon-Aerotype at its true value. We are contracting almost daily with new and substantial outlets for our product. As a case in point we signed today the ninth high-grade dealer in nine days.

New Salesmanager For Lambert-Graves

K. E. Morris, formerly salesmanager at the South Side Chevrolet Co., has become salesmanager for the Lambert-Graves Motor Co., Oldsmobile dealers, at the main plant, 4035 Lindell boulevard.

C. R. Griffith, formerly in charge at 4035 Lindell, has been made manager of the Twenty-third street branch of this company.

The Kingchester Motor Co., which also is owned by the Lambert-Graves Motor Co., remains as it is with W. W. Miller as vice-president and general manager.

Reo to Announce New Car Dec. 15

Reo is about to introduce a new automobile.

No details are available except that the car is to be somewhat lower in price than the Flying Cloud and that it will supplement, and not replace, the Flying Cloud.

Officers of the company state that public announcement will be made Dec. 15.

New Dealer for Pine's Winterfront

Frank Quan, secretary of Fred Campbell Auto Supply Co., distributer for Pine's Winterfront announces the appointment of the Automotive Electric Service Co., 2129-31 Locust street, as a service station.

U. S. 36 Across Missouri Now Perfect Road

deeper reds form a fine contrast with the autumn haze. There are two or three large orchards next to the road in the central part of the State. All the fields are of fine, black soil and the farms bear the external appearance of prosperity. Fat cattle and sheep are in the meadows. Countrymen are seen coming in from the side lanes on fine riding horses.

There are sweeping hillsides for some distance east from St. Joseph, of the sort characteristic of the Missouri River borders. West of Macon there are some notable wooded uplands. In the vicinity of Hannibal the hills have a different quality, of the sort distinctive of the basin of the Father of Waters. There are some rich bottoms beside the Grand River, west of Chillicothe, and Locust Creek, east of that town. The Grand however, is a misnomer; it's only a big creek (except in flood time). The highway crosses a long "fill" near Locust Creek and the earth has been slipping away, causing State engineers some worry. They cannot pave there until they force the right-of-way to stay in place.

At Macon, No. 36 passes the spillway at one end of Macon Lake, a municipally-owned body of water covering 250 acres, which is a paradise for ducks in the hunting season because the town passed an ordinance protecting them, to prevent wholesale slaughter.

Highway officials already are making plans to lay concrete over the gravel surface from Macon westward to No. 5 next spring, meeting the slab extending from Brookfield. This will be about 23 miles long, reducing the gravel length of No. 36 to about 54 miles, comprising only the stretches between Chillicothe and Brookfield and between Macon and Shelbina.

St. Joseph, third city of Missouri, is an interesting old place, with an attractive, lively business district and pleasant homes on the hills. It has historic attraction as a starting place for pioneers of the West and the eastern terminus of the famous pony express. There is an atmosphere about it unlike other cities of the State, and the surrounding region shares the nature and interests of nearby Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa. The Missouri River, as seen from St. Joseph, unfortunately is not very impressive.

At the other end of No. 36, Hannibal, too, has sights and lore to draw the tourist's attention. That it is steeped in reminiscences of Mark Twain and his immortal characters is well known.

A log of No. 36, as compiled by aid of the, chronicler's odometer follows:

00.0 St. Joseph, junction of Nos. 1 and 71.
01.5 City limits; enter excellent asphalt.
03.6 Begin concrete.
71.2 Junction of U. S. No. 65, near Chillicothe; gravel begins.
92.2 Junction of No. 5 (north), near Laclede.
96.6 Enter temporary street detour in Brookfield.
98.2 Return to concrete highway.
104.7 Junction of No. 5 (south); gravel is resumed.
127.0 (circa), Macon.
154.8 Shelbina; concrete is resumed.
190.4 Hannibal; junction of U. S. No. 61.

As for the rest of the circuit tour suggested from St. Louis—most motorists do not need to be told about the virtues of No. 40, running to Kansas City, but in St. Louis it is less generally known that good pavement extends northward from that place to St. Joseph. The traveler crosses the Missouri River into the fast developing industrial area of North Kansas City on a bridge recently made toll-free, and then speeds through a beautiful region of suburban and country homes, of farms and of woods. There are innumerable curves in the road and sharp grades. No. 71 is followed to Nashua and thence No. 1 to St. Joseph. There is 13 miles of bituminous macadam surface in Clay County and five more in Buchanan; the rest is concrete.

TWO NEW GARDNER '8' MODELS

NEW GARDNER LINES NOW ON DISPLAY

Three Series, on 120, 125 and 130 Inch Wheelbases Being Shown.

As a fitting celebration to commemorate 53 years of success as a manufacturer of automobiles, Gardner Motor Co., Inc., announces three entirely new series of eight-in-line automobiles. The new line comes in three wheelbase lengths, 16 body styles, more than 50 striking color combinations, and a great array of improvements and refinements. Prices range from $1295 to $2395.

The new line, designated as Series "120," "125" and "130," derives its name from the wheelbase lengths of the cars in the three series. In St. Louis the cars are being displayed by Tuthill Gardner, Inc., the distributer here.

Gardner engineers have produced distinctive type of coachwork. Louvres formerly used only on the hood, are now used on the cowl sides and not only add greatly to the appearance of the front end but provide an excellent means of controlled ventilation as well.

In addition to a deeper radiator, the completeness of detail of the front and rear end, the new design of lamp equipment, the addition of cowl bar with cowl lamps as standard, redesigned radiator cap and Griffin, added refrinements consisting of a more attractive visor, metal quarters on sedan bo cowl ejector ventilators, steel ning boards, protective armor the car, are trimmed so that screws are exposed; and bars of chrome nickeled bar bumpers fore and aft, adds a distinct touch of refrinement pleasing the eye.

Standard equipment includes Watson stabilators front and Built-in flush type thermostatically controled radiator shutters, balloon tires, automatic windshield wiper, three-way automatic tail and backing light, all chrome headlamps with chrome standards and tie bars. Double rear view mirror, magnetic starting button on instrument board convenient like switching on an electric light, chrome convex bumpers front and rear, trunk on brougham, centralized automatic system of chassis lubrication, air cleaner, oil cleaner, gas strainer, eight-day clock. Tiffany inside sun visor, thermostatic heat control, Fedco number plate system with loss-of-use insurance, four-wheel inclosed brakes, hydraulically operated; ash-trays and cigarette lighter.

Gasoline Tax in Canada.

All the provinces in Canada, except Saskatchewan, impose a tax on gasoline and while heretofore the common rate has been 3 cents a gallon, Quebec this year raised its tax to 5 cents and Ontario will follow in the coming year.

WE PROVE OUR CLAIMS

The following remarks by present owners prove that Oldsmobile understates rather than overstates the merits of this fine car of low price

Performance "I have never handled a car of its size or in its price-class which matches this Oldsmobile for ease in handling, comfort and performance" . . . "The motor is remarkable. Pick-up from 20 to 35 miles per hour in high speed compares to ordinary pick-up in second speed" . . . "I am in love with my Oldsmobile; it is wonderful; cannot be beaten for mountain climbing" . . . "The fastest car in its class I have ever driven."

Value "It looks to me like Oldsmobile has given me $2500 worth of automobile in my new Landau" . . . "I know automobiles, and this new Oldmobile is the best value on the market today" . . . "I own a four-door Oldsmobile and let me remark that every word of what you say in your advertising is true."

Appearance, Comfort "Attracts favorable comment from all my friends" . . . "The riding qualities are great; it is a wonderful car" . . . "At the local Auto Show we looked them all over good, tried them for comfort and later took demonstrations of the makes in which we were interested. We bought the Oldsmobile."

Come in and inspect "the fine car of low price." Drive it yourself and you will understand how easily we prove our claims!

FOUR STATES VOTE BONDS FOR HIGHWAYS

Issues Totaling $240,000,000 Voted Favorable Election Day.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Highway bond issues totaling $240,000,000 were passed in four states on election day, while two bond issues amounting to $110,000,000 were defeated, national headquarters of the American Automobile Association announced today.

Decisive victories were registered for a bond issue of $30,000,000 in Louisiana, $100,000,000 in Iowa, $75,000,000 in Missouri and $35,000,000 in West Virginia. A bond issue of $75,000,000 in Pennsylvania, which was opposed by the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, A. A. A. affiliation, on the grounds that the State already had ample funds for construction, was defeated, while a $6,000,000 bond issue in Colorado, favored by the Rocky Mountain Motorists, Inc., another A. A. A. unit, also went down to defeat.

California had a $10,000,000 bond issue up for the elimination of grade crossings, but this was defeated. On the other hand, says the A. A. A., a $6,000,000 bond issue for State parks, which was favored by the California State Automobile Association, A. A. A. affiliation, was carried by a vote of three to one.

The national motoring body says that perhaps the most significant of the bond issues before the voters was the $75,000,000 issue in Missouri, which was originated by and put over largely through the efforts of the Automobile Club of Missouri, of which Maj. Roy F. Britton is president. A previous bond issue of $60,000,000 authorized in Missouri, 1920, has been exhausted.

It was pointed out that this issue provides for the completion of the highway system in a State with a strategic location in the nation's network; assures widening of roads in the congested areas around St. Louis and Kansas City, and even more significant, limits the gas tax of 2 cents and motor vehicle license fees, through constitutional amendment, to the present rate for a period of 10 years.

The Missouri bond issue, it is stated, allows $25,000,000 for each of three years to be used in building highways and toll-free bridges. It also means the completion of the State's system of 7640 miles of improved roads, and the construction of farm to market roads with the proceeds of the bond issue and the current annual revenue.

Iowa's $100,000,000 bond issue will mean the improving of the 6600 miles in the State's primary system, and $60,000,000 indebtedness voted by 61 counties will be taken over, the Iowa State Automobile Association has advised national headquarters.

The national motoring body says the Louisiana issue, which raises the gas tax to four cents per gallon, was sponsored by the Motor League of Louisiana from the outset and put over this A. A. A. unit against almost unsurmountable odds.

The West Virginia issue sponsored by A. A. A. units in that State, was carried by approximately four to one, and indications point to an even larger favorable vote.

Commenting on the various bond issues, the A. A. A. said they form striking instances of the willingness of the people to vote bonds to supplement Federal-Aid and make the nation's highway system the finest in the world.

Keep Eyes, Mind On Driving, and Avoid Accidents

Keeping eyes to the front and mind on driving, is 99 per cent of the solution of motor vehicles accidents, in the opinion of John G. Wood, chief engineer of Olds Motor Works.

"If every person driving an automobile concentrated mind and attention on what they were doing an automobile accident would be a rarity," says Wood. "It would eliminate carelessness(the most prolific cause of accidents. If two drivers, approaching each other, atttend to their business of driving there is little danger of a collision. In recent years automotive engineers have recognized this fact and have striven in every way known to the profession to make cars easier to operate, thereby giving drivers full freedom to do nothing but pay attention to their driving.

"The need of a driver to keep his eyes to the front and his mind on his work was legally recognized by the State of Michigan when it removed all speed limits on highways. Instead of a specified speed limit, the new law reads that a car may be driven at any speed providing the driver can bring it to a stop within the clear distance ahead.

"In other words a driver must keep his eyes to the front and regulate the speed of his car so that he can stop before reaching a turn, another vehicle, a pedestrian or any thing that blocks his clear vision. If every driver followed this law at all times safety drives would be unnecessary."

Goodrich Makes Many Products

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

AKRON, O., Nov. 17.—How vital are the contributions of some industries to the comfort and pleasure of millions of people is illustrated in the daily output of a few of the 30,000 different articles of rubber manufactured by the B. F. Goodrich Co. at its Akron plant. Among these thousands of different products, tires, rubber footwear and garden hose stand out as items of prodigious volume. In one day this huge plant, of more than 120 acres of floor space, turns out enough tires to equip more than 6000 automobiles.

Goodrich daily supplies enough rubber footwear for the protection and comfort of more than 25,000 persons, from heavy rubber boots to the lighest and daintiest protective footwear. Goodrich daily manufactures 10 miles of garden hose.

Graham-Paige Wins Brazil Touring Test

Graham-Paige cars made a clean sweep in Brazil's 1200-kilometer touring test last month, winning first place in the four classes, while a fifth Graham-Paige took second in its class.

The "Washington Luis" touring test is held annually under the auspices of the Sao Paulo Good Roads Association, and covers a course from Sao Paulo to Rio de Janeiro to Petropolis and return, a distance of 745 miles. The contest is not a race but a four-days' run under touring conditions, each car carrying four or five passengers. The run is closely supervised and checked at the several controls, and scoring is on the basis of economy in fuel consumption and freedom from troubles. The roads for this course are described as being "not too good."

To Test Speed in Sahara Desert.

Capt. Malcolm Campbell, famous British speed driver, has a new automobile which, it is believed, is capable of making 222 miles an hour. He is touring Africa to investigate a site in the heart of the Sahara Desert, said to be suitable for motor speed tests.

Fargo Commercial Cars Fill Need

The newly announced Fargo line of commercial cars offers an ideal solution of retail delivery problems, points out Harry A. Kaufmann, Fargo sales manager.

"An insight into present day traffic and merchandising needs was shown by Chrysler engineers when they designed these new delivery cars," he says. "The Fargo Clipper and Packet models have every advantage and none of the disadvantages that have developed in using passenger automobiles for store deliveries. Their style and smartness put them in a class for appearance with the best type of private automobiles and their handling ease makes them rival the passenger cars for flexibility in traffic. At the same time, they have a capacity which enables them to carry a much larger volume than can be put into a touring car or sedan.

"Reports already are coming to the Fargo offices in Detroit which show that the convertible feature of these new passenger type commercial cars is especially well liked. Store employes can be carried to places where work is to be done, or by removing the seats a commodious light commercial type car is at once available. The combination of these two uses is commended by one of the country's three largest department stores, which speaks of the special advantage to its interior decorating department in being able to send both workers and material on the same trip to the most exclusive homes where, it is reported, the distinguished appearance of the new cars has been the subject of much approving comment from patrons."

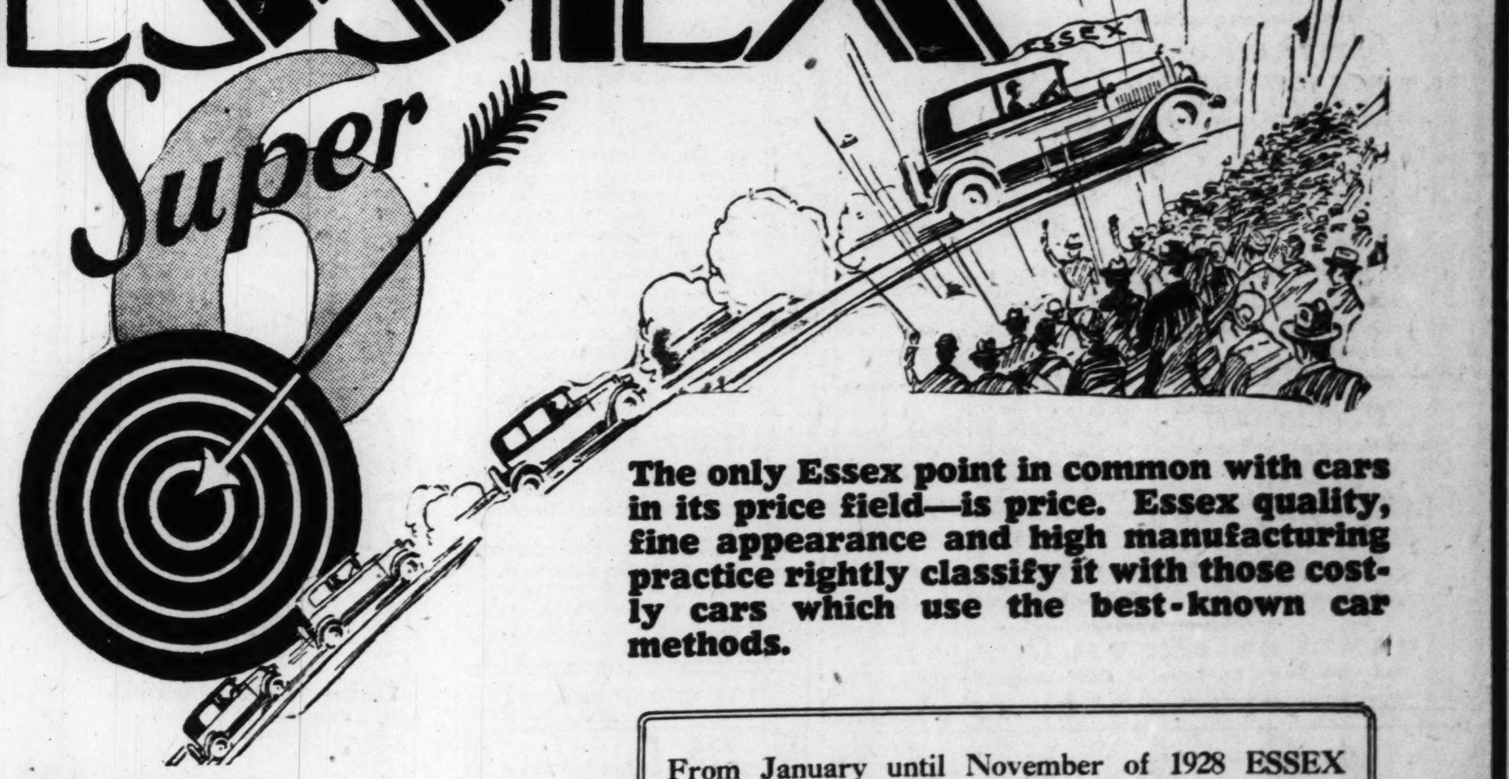
ESSEX



The only Essex point in common with cars in its price field—is price. Essex quality, fine appearance and high manufacturing practice rightly classify it with those costly cars which use the best-known car methods.

From January until November of 1928 ESSEX SUPER SIX won the choice of far more buyers in Metropolitan St. Louis than any other six-cylinder car sold. And remember, public acceptance is the true measure of value in automobiles.

Essex uses roller tappets, Timken tapered wheel bearings, wheel worm and gear type steering, hard rubber steering wheel with steel core; five-frame cross members and four-wheel brakes of the same enclosed and protected type found on the costliest cars.

UPWARD TREND IN OUTPUT OF CARS AT HAND

Seasonal Slump Is About at End—Not as Bad as Last Year.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 17.—With estimated October output around 395,000 passenger cars and trucks, the automobile industry is showing its ability to maintain a strong market in ordinarily slack months.

While production is still tapering off slightly, either the current week or next week is expected to mark the low point in the downward curve, with schedules beginning to increase sharply during the next 10 days or two weeks, when manufacturers whose assembly lines are at present inactive get under way on their new models.

Present output, while showing a decline of 13 per cent from last week, still remains about 74 per cent above this time last year, and indications point to November and December production for this year being at least 100 per cent above what it was in the corresponding two months in 1927.

Passenger car sales show no very great change from two weeks ago and may be characterized as fair to good, with only four localities in the entire country reporting new car sales as being slow. As compared with the last previous survey when sales were good in 13 trade centers, fair in 17 and slow in three, the current report shows sales good in 12 districts, fair in 17 and slow in four.

The trend of sales, however, has changed considerably. The present survey shows improvement in only four centers, a downward trend in 21 and an unchanged condition in eight. Two weeks ago the trend was upward in eight, down in 15 and unchanged in 10.

New car stocks are showing a tendency to increase, although they may be classified as normal. Low-priced car sales are firm and practically unchanged, while medium and high-priced car sales have fallen off and the trend is definitely downward. Used-car sales are on the same basis as they were two weeks ago, being classed as fair with no change in the trend. Stocks, while normal, are showing a slight tendency toward decreasing.

New Stretch of U. S. No. 36 Opened

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

HANNIBAL, Mo., Nov. 17.—The eight-mile stretch of U. S. Highway No. 36, west from Hannibal to Spooner's Corner, near West Ely, was opened to traffic recently. Although the concrete work was completed several weeks ago, the road over the eight-mile stretch has been kept closed to traffic because of an unusual amount of grading and shouldering to be done on the sides.

One of the biggest jobs of cutting through for a slab road in Marion County was accomplished in the building of this highway in the vicinity of the new viaduct where the road passes under the C., B. & Q. railroad tracks at Bear Creek.

Engineers have declared this to be one of the finest pieces of road work in the Middle West.

The opening of this road gives a continuous concrete passage to Shelbina, Mo., west from Hannibal, a distance of approximately 38 miles. From Shelbina, route No. 36 goes on to St. Joseph, Mo., it being finished with either gravel or concrete. It is said to be the shortest hard-surfaced route across Missouri, 197 miles in length, from Hannibal to St. Joseph.

Chrysler-Plymouth Demand Increases

Continued growth in the demand for the new Chrysler-Plymouth is keeping its sales at the highest rate they have yet known, says J. W. Frazier, Plymouth sales manager.

Discovery of new efficiencies in plant operation and manufacture have enabled the Plymouth to be offered at its modest price, Frazier says.

Heavy Demand for 'Fleetwood' Cadillac

Orders for more than 700 cars with Fleetwood custom-built bodies totaling in value more than $3,500,000 were received by the Cadillac Motor Car Co. during the first five weeks following the announcement of the company's new cars late in August. Actual shipments of Fleetwoods for the same period are three times as great as in the same period one year ago.

Announcement of the new lines of Fleetwood custom coachcraft was made simultaneously with announcement of the new Cadillacs and La Salles with Fisher bodies. The Fleetwood presentation includes 13 bodies for the Cadillac chassis and two for the La Salle.

PRODUCTION ENGINEERS TO HOLD MEETING

Chrysler Vice President to Speak at Detroit Confab Nov. 22-23.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 17.—Production engineers from all over the nation, members of the Society of Automotive Engineers, will hold their annual meeting here Nov. 22 and 23. The meeting is to be divided into five technical sessions, at which a dozen addresses on production subjets are to be presented, and a production dinner, at which those in attendance are to be the guests of the Detroit section of the S. A. E.

The principal speaker at the dinner will be K. T. Keller, vice president in charge of production of Chrysler Motors Corporation. In addition to this address, the production engineers will receive reports of the production meeting committee on progress and equipment, production expense, production standards, material handling and time study.

United States Issues Road Maps.

The first series of uniform scale maps ever made showing the status of improvement of the Federal aid system of highways, with the exception of California and Texas, has been completed by the Bureau of Public Roads of the United States Department of Agriculture. It has prepared maps that will show the motorist what kind of roads he will find in various states. He may now know just where he will have to travel over gravel roads, sand-clay, bituminous macadam, waterbound macadam, bituminous concrete, concrete or brick roads.

TALKS ON EDUCATIONAL VALUE OF SCOUT PLAY

Discussion at Meeting of Scoutmasters' 'Gold Key' Training Course.

The educational value of play projects, contests and story-telling will be discussed tomorrow night at the third meeting of the St. Louis Scoutmasters' "Gold Key" training course, being conducted at the William Stix School by the local scout council. This will be the last meeting during which it will be possible for a newcomer to join the course in time to meet all requirements for the gold key, which will be awarded at the end of the five-years' school. The course is open to any scoutmaster, assistant scoutmaster or troop committeeman in the St. Louis district.

Education will be the subject of the principal talk of the evening. Dr. Frank Eversull, principal of the East St. Louis High School, speaking on "Methods of Education" to the joint meeting of the three classes in the course. Dr Eversull will develop the educational value of observation, demonstration, recitation, reading and examinations as applied to scout troops, with special emphasis on those phases most effective in the growth of the individual.

A similar talk, on "Scout Methods of Education," will be given by C. F. Brown, District Superintendent of Schools, before the advanced training class. This talk, however, will treat the forms of activity in the scout program, the significance and types of troop, patrol and individual projects and methods of inter-patrol competition.

The elementary class, conducted by Scoutmaster L. F. H. Schmitt of Troop 178, will take up the kinds, value and methods of signaling, and Assistant Scout Executive J. D. Wright will speak on "Running the Troop." Capt. John R. Hall, M. D., of the Washington University School of Medicine, will continue with his first aid class, the third class given in the course.

HIGH SCHOOL POOLS OPEN TO SCOUTS LEARNING TO SWIM

Boy Scouts just learning to swim, or those ready to pass tests in swimming and life-saving, may use the swimming pools at Roosevelt and Beaumont high schools on certain nights, according to H. T. Swanson, activities director of the local scout council. Permission to use the pools for this purpose has been obtained from the public school authorities.

Each pool will be open one night a week, the Beaumont on Tuesdays and the Roosevelt on Thursdays, under the supervision of Dr. O. W. Appel, of the American Red Cross. Dr. Appel will have direct charge at the Beaumont tank, while the Roosevelt pool will be in the charge of Eagle Scout Kennett Allen.

Only scouts now unable to swim or those ready to pass tests will be admitted, as the capacity of the tanks is limited. In both cases it will be necessary to obtain a permit from local headquarters to be admitted to the pools, Swanson said.

Famous Recipe For Stopping a Severe Cough

You'll be pleasantly surprised when you make up this simple home mixture and try it for a distressing cough or chest cold. It takes but a moment to mix and costs little, but it can be depended upon to give quick and lasting relief, even for severe bronchial coughs.

Get 2½ ounces of Pinex from any druggist. Pour this into a pint bottle; then fill it with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. The full pint thus made costs no more than a small bottle of ready-made medicine, yet it is much more effective. It is pure, keeps perfectly and children love its pleasant taste.

This simple remedy has a remarkable three-fold action. It goes right to the seat of trouble, soothes away the inflammation, and loosens the germ-laden phlegm. At the same time, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly upon the bronchial tubes and thus helps inwardly to throw off the whole trouble with surprising ease.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Troop Notes

Headquarters Notes.

The last chance for St. Louis boy scouts to advance in rank during 1928 will be afforded them at the boards of review which are to be held this week and during the first week of December. The boards are scheduled as follows: South District: Rose-Fanning School, Nov. 19 and Dec. 3; West District: Clark School, Nov. 22 and Dec. 6; North District: Farragut School, Nov. 20 and Dec. 4: Suburban District: Webster Groves High School, Nov. 21 and Dec. 5.

The Courts of Honor are scheduled for the South District on Dec. 11 at the Missouri School for the Blind; West District on Dec. 13 at Ben Blewett Junior High School: North District, Nov. 12 at Yeatman High School; and on Dec. 11 at the Webster Groves High School for the Suburban District.

Two St. Louis boy scout troops are still on the suspended list, and seven are considered to be lapsed because of failure to register on time, Carl H. Laemmli of the registration department of the local Boy Scout Council announced Friday. The suspended troops are Troop 150, Euclid Baptist Church, and Troop 196 of the Tabernacle Baptist Church. The lapsed troops are 106 of the Second United Presbyterian Church, 130 of the Zion Evangelical Church, 151 of the Jennings Union Church, 199 of the Nelson Presbyterian Church, 92 of the Cupples School, 66 of the Dover Place Christian Church, and Pattonville 1 of the Fee-Fee Baptist Church.

Laemmli reports the addition of 29 new boys to the scout ranks during the past week. Their names and troop numbers follow: Troop 13, William Sexton; Troop 35, Robert Simon; Troop 60, M. Mannheim; Troop 137, Thomas W. Kraus, Francis McHugh; Troop 246, Sam Shargaa; Troop Ferg. 2, F. C. Owen, Ted Tulloch, Charles Grimm; Troop 57, Gerald Maguire; Troop 74, Fred Carey, Stafford Carr, I. W. Kurtz, Fred Oehm, V. Schuchat and Willard Stamm; Troop 166, Kenneth Kwentes, George Martin; Troop 183, Charles Leisse, Wilbert Remmers, Lester Saenger; Troop 227, A. Tunnicliff, C. Spann, E. Meglitsch; Troop Kwd. 2, John Livingston; Troop M. 1, N. McGuire, M. Blair; Troop Ov. 2, Thomas H. McCrackin Jr.; Troop W. G. 5, Robert Timberlake.

North District.

The Bob White Patrol is leading in an inter-patrol contest being conducted by Troop 3. This patrol has also starred in several knot tying contests and demonstrations of Scoutcraft.

A Scout entertainment is planned by Troop 206 of the Ames School for the evening of Dec. 1, at Dodier Hall, under the direction of Assistant Scoutmaster George Tiebbersing, assisted by Mrs. B. Cameron. Troop 206 is inviting Scouts and friends from all over the city to attend. Three Scouts have just completed the first-class swimming requirement, these being Harold Cameron, Harold Enstall and William Morse. In the inter-patrol contest the Tiger Patrol is holding a lead of 200 points, with the Eagles, and Wolves trailing. Senior Patrol Leader Ralph Cameron and Junior Assistant Scoutmaster Herbert Herzog are responsible for the inter-patrol program. Scoutmaster Fred Herzog reports nine Troop Committeemen present at each meeting.

The intensive activity program recently adopted by Troop 161 of the Webster School is now operating and indications are that the race for awards will be close. Field Scout Executive L. L. Hotchkiss visited a recent meeting of the troop in time to act as a knot tying expert in the inter-patrol competition.

A father and son night to which 20 boys of Troop 230 brought their dads, was held at the Bellefontaine Methodist Church last week. Chairman of the Troop Committee Earnest Boyd presided and Assistant Field Scout Executive Harold W. Moller was present. As a token of appreciation for his leadership, Scoutmaster E. F. Turton was presented with a pair of candle sticks made by the boys of the troop as a handicraft project.

South District.

Morris Poe has been installed as patrol leader and Raymond Bennington has been made assistant patrol leader of a new patrol at Troop 67 of the Madison School. An activity program for the winter is being arranged by the new leaders.

Suburban District.

A scout hiking record has just been made by 10 scouts from Troop Overland 2 of the Overland Christian Church, who completed a 30-mile hike in seven hours and 30 minutes. Hiking under the leadership of Senior Patrol Leader William McCrackin, Scouts Otho McCrackin, William Dee, Allen Umstattd, Edward Evers, Harry Dollard, William Robards, Faville Williams and Benny Gross hiked to a point two miles south of Eureka, Mo., on the Meramec River. The march was made with individual packs averaging from 15 to 20 pounds in weight. The time at Eureka was used in intensive work in scoutcraft and scout tests, including exploring, tracking, signaling and cooking, and a number of requirements were satisfactorily complied with. Scoutmaster E. P. Evers and Troop Committeemen Allen Umstattd and T. H. McCracken visited the hikers on the second day of their camp and accompanied them on the trek back to Overland.

West District.

An Armistice day program was staged by Troop 197 at the Vinita Park Methodist Church last Sunday. Scout Bugler Knight and Scout Dieterman formed the troop on both sides of the chapel and then escorted the flags of the Allied Nations to the platform to the music of their respective national anthems. A roll call of World War veterans, members of the church, was followed by "Taps."

An announcement "of interest to the Scouts and friends of Troop 101, of the West Park Baptist Church" is to be made by Scoutmaster Leroy Lane at a parents' night to be held Tuesday, Dec. 11, when both the inter-patrol contest and individual contest for Scout efficiency will terminate. The contest is so close that it is impossible to know at this time who will be the victors. An opportunity to increase their standing will be afforded scouts of this troop on a hike to Rankin Cave today.

After 15 years of experimentation with various forms of organizationo, Troop 30 of the Y. M. H. A. is now operating on a plan suited to its particular problems, and whereby a troop program and a patrol program are carried out concurrently. The chief factor in this scheme is the division of program making so that one group of older boys works with the troop as a unit at the troop meetings while another group works with the individual scouts. The troop aim is 100 per cent proficiency in Scout tests and merit badges.

A miniature training course for its own leaders is being conducted by this troop under the guidance of Marcus Reznikoff, in which the older boys of the troop are taught how to teach in the various scouting subjects. Model patrol meetings are worked out and leadership principals demonstrated.

The troop paper "Squanto" has just achieved National recognition.

An event of importance in the life of this troop is scheduled to take place soon when Troop 90 consolidates with it in an exploration trip to Rankin Cave.

Under the leadership of Scoutmaster James Gillespie of Troop 49 of the First Presbyterian Church, a test passing hike was conducted yesterday during which more than 35 tests were completed. Troop 49 is working to bring all of the scouts to Eagle Scout rank.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS TO GIVE BAZAR IN WEBSTER GROVES

Charity and Summer Camp Benefit Carnival to Be Held Nov. 30.

A carnival and bazar to raise funds for charity and for a girls' camp next summer will be held by the Oteyozua Nissaki group of the Webster Groves Camp Fire Girls at the Webster Groves Baptist Community Hall, Oakwood and Summit avenues, Webster Groves, the evening of Nov. 30. This Camp Fire group, which has its headquarters at the Baptist church, performs individual charitable work in the poorer districts around Webster, and also maintains a summer camp each year.

The carnival will consist of clown acts, motion pictures depicting Camp Fire Girl activities, a pageant illustrating the seven laws of the organization, and other entertainment by the 15 members of the group.

Genuine Indian-made articles, from an Indian reservation in New Mexico, will be sold at the bazar, the list including such pieces as hand-wrought silver bracelets and rings, leather belts, moccasins and pillow tops, and Navajo rugs and blankets. A gypsy fortune teller also will be on hand.

49 PCT. MORE YOUNG WOMEN THAN MEN DIE OF TUBERCULOSIS

Scanty Clothing and Dieting for Slimness May Be Responsible, Doctors Say.

The scanty clothing of the modrne young woman, and her dieting regime may be responsible for a radical increase of tuberculosis deaths among girls, according to a report to the Tuberculosis and Health Society by its medical advisory staff.

In 1927 the tuberculosis deaths among young women exceeded those among young men by 49 per cent. In 1925 the figure was less than 4 per cent. The society's experts have been unable adequately to explain the increase.

In tuberculosis deaths among all classes St. Louis has had, for the past 10 months, the lowest figure ever recorded here, the committee reports. Mortality for the first 10 months of 1928 is 8 per cent less than that of 1927. The reduction is ascribed to the intensive campaign of prevention and cure made by anti-tuberculosis agencies.

Gifts to Complete Theater.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 17.—The employes of the Department of the Interior have agreed to contribute one day's salary to the fund being raised for completion of the National Theater, construction of which was started in the days of President Porfirio Diaz. With exception of the dome, the exterior of the building was finished before Diaz's downfall. The building has remained in that state ever since. When completed it will be one of the most beautiful theaters in the world.

GYPSY TRIBES SETTLE DOWN IN NEW HOME IN CARPATHIANS

Czecho-Slovakian Government Sets Aside Tract for Their Permanent Abode.

By the Associated Press.

UZ-HOROD, Czecho-Slovakia, Nov. 17.—For the first time in their history, wandering gypsy tribes which have lived for centuries by pillage and mendicancy have their own country and their own parliament.

Uz-Horod, beautifully situated in the Carpathian highlands, is the capital of the new gypsy state. It is rapidly developing into a modern city.

Czecho-Slovakia, in whose territory are large gypsy tribes, is the first country to grant them land on which to settle. The Government's policy of assimilating the gypsies, which was inaugurated a few months ago, has been attended by success. The first step was to require registration of all gypsies.

The Government then sought to restrict their movements to certain territory and to introduce compulsory education. These conditions apparently are within prospect of realization. Camps and caravans are disappearing from pasturage land that was once the "Gypsy Kingdom" as the Government pushes its program of home building.

The Gypsy population is half pagan and half Christian. Missionaries have begun to preach sermons in "Romani Tehib," the language used by the gypsies.

STRESEMANN PRAISES U. S. ATTITUDE TOWARD GERMANY

Declares That Nowhere Has Foreign Policy Met With So Much Appreciation.

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Nov. 17.—Germany's Foreign Minister, Dr. Gustave Stresemann, finds that nowhere has Germany's foreign policy of peaceful reconstruction and conciliatory co-operation met with so much appreciation as in the United States.

In a preface to a record of the country's political developments during the last decade published under the title o "Zehn Jahre Deutsche Geschichte" (Ten Years of German History), Dr. Stresemann writes:

"As America is destined to play a significant role in the political development of the near future, the rapprochement between Germany and America in such a comparatively short time must be considered one of the most gratifying results of Germany's foreign policy, auguring well for our future. May this tend to bring the conviction to the German people that despite all reverses and checks their goals have been well chosen and help to give us strength to pursue them with all the means at our disposal."

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles.

Many is the family today that makes it a rule always to have a bottle of this perfect preparation in the house. Keep it handy and observe these three simple rules of health; keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open. We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you—see special offer in coupon:

1000 JAPANESE FAMILIES A YEAR WILL GO TO BRAZIL

Direct Steamship Service to Be Inaugurated; Company Has Large Concessions.

By the Associated Press.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 17.—The Japanese promise to be an important factor in the development of Equatorial Brazil, owing to the proposed inauguration within a few months of a direct steamship service between Japan and Para, and the importation of a thousand families yearly from Japan to this section of the country.

In past the Japanese have turned more to the cooler parts of the country, and there are many in the State of Sao Paulo, which produces the greater part of the coffee in the country. At present it is understood Sao Paulo believes it has a sufficient Japanese population.

Much interest has been aroused here in recent weeks by the announcement from Belem, State of Para, that a Japanese colonization company with a capital of $5,000,000 has obtained large concessions and plans to bring out a thousand families yearly, commencing next April. These colonists will be rigidly selected, it is stated by Nachiro Fukahara, who is the representative of the company on the ground, and will engage in the growing of rubber, tobacco, cacao, rice and cotton.

HENRI DEERING TO GIVE RECITAL

Former St. Louis Pianist at Sheldon Memorial Nov. 26.

Henri Deering, pianist, formerly of St. Louis, will give a recital Monday night, Nov. 26, in the auditorium of the Sheldon Memorial, for the benefit of child welfare organizations of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Communion. The proceeds will help support a kindergarten and playground which the church maintains for poor children of the neighborhood.

Deering recently has played in Europe. He appeared last with John McCormack in Dublin and London.

11,362 From U. S. Live in Paris.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Nov. 17.—The much advertised American colony in Paris, often referred to by uncompromising and perhaps envious stay-at-homes as expatriates, fails to find a place among the first six foreign colonies in Paris, which form 10 per cent of the entire city's population. There are 293,422 foreign residents in Paris out of a total population of 2,871,420. In the order named, they are: Italians, 101,893; Belgians, 50,251; Russians, 44,519; Poles, 36,370; Swiss, 32,226; Spaniards, 31,568. The American population is given as 11,362 and the British as 15,743.

THE SPORTS SECTION of the Fiftieth Anniversary Number of the Post-Dispatch will contain three novel series of baseball, boxing and racing stories, all with the rich flavor of the "good old days" when St. Louis was younger, but sporting blood already ran high in the community.

"He-man" fights to a finish with skin-tight gloves—weapons not pads—were the order of the day. The winner took a puny purse and the loser took to his bed. However, the ring was not just brutalizing, but was also "a proving ground of courage and character," as John E. Wray, the Sporting Editor who writes the story of fifty years of boxing hereabouts, observes in conclusion.

The bitter Daly-Allen feud sprinkled with terrific battles on "bloody Chouteau Island" is covered, as well as the epic Sharpe-Crosby fight and many others.

Chris Von der Ahe went into baseball to promote beer sales, but he found the sport itself to be the better business for his team won four pennants; also a world's series—plus the gate receipts—and on a wild pitch!

J. Roy Stockton of the Post-Dispatch sporting staff tells the complete story of the famous four-time winners, the invincible original Browns, and their inimitable "poss" president. It is spiced with humorous anecdotes of the clashes between Chris and Arlie Latham, the club's celebrated clown and the originator of coaching in baseball.

Moonshine racing, "Pool Alley," Barney Schreiber's meteoric career, Tod Sloan's early mounts. These are some of the chapters in William F. Allen's story of the rise and fall of the "Sport of Kings" in St. Louis.

Meller and Music Arrive

"The Wooden Kimona," a Thriller, Is at the American This Week and the Shubert Has a New Musical Play by Our Old Friend, John E. Young, Late of the Municipal Opera Company in the Park.

TWO plays new to St. Louis—one of them pretty new to the world—arrive tonight with the American Theater presenting the mystery meller, "The Wooden Kimona" and the Shubert having the musical drama, "Nobody's Girl." This latter piece, now in its fifth week on the road, is said to be headed for New York following the local engagement. "The Wooden Kimona," on the other hand, has already had a long and prosperous career in the Metropolis.

John E. Young, comedian and author of "Nobody's Girl," who will be remembered for his many portrayals of comedy roles in different operas presented by the Municipal Opera a year or two ago; Paul Kleman, a well known singer who was the leading baritone in Forest Park last year and Evelyn Darville, a coloratura soprano, a graduate of the Municipal chorus of some years ago, are among those in the cast.

Ilse Marvenga, the prima donna who originated the role of Kathie in "The Student Prince," which role she sang for more than 500 times, and Roy Cropper, tenor, who sang the role of Prince Karl in the Chicago company of "The Student Prince" for more than a year, are well known in St. Louis, as is Joseph Mendelshon, well remembered for his excellent portrayal of Franz Schubert in "Blossom Time" of some years ago, are among others in the cast.

IN "The Wooden Kimona" at the American there are the customary scenes—a wind-swept night, fitful streaks of lightning, a deserted inn nestling on the edge of a cold and lonesome lake, pistol shots, silence. Into these atmospheric scenes come strange characters, each motivated by a different purpose, and each of whom weave through the mazes of the mysteries which abound in "The Wooden Kimona." A famous writer of defective stories, a detective from the city, a sheriff from the village, a physician, a maniac, his strange and foreboding wife, keeper of the some-time inn, a New England spinster of peppery personality, a courageous heroine and many others make up the cast of characters.

The heroine is depicted by May Ward, an English actress, who was brought from London to play this part. Other members of the cast are Edmund Dalby, George Bogues, Elizabeth Dunne, Vera Temple, Thomas Collins, Richard Beach and William Balfour.

BOTH "The Wooden Kimona" and "Nobody's Girl" carry fairly large casts, but is may not be long before a novelty in skinny companies takes to the road for, in New York, nightly around 8 o'clock, Fay Bainter and John Halliday come in the stage door at Maxine Elliott's Theater. Twenty minutes later the stage manager and the electrician arrive. There are no scene shifters, for there are no screens to shift. Not even a doorman is needed at the stage entrance.

Broadway's only two-character play, "Jealousy," has as its complete cast:

Maurice ....John Halliday
Valerie ....Fay Bainter

The scene remains the same from act to act and from night to night. The first act takes place in a studio in Paris, the second in the same place two months later, and the third unfolds before the same set, its time being later the same day.

The two players come onto the stage together at the beginning of the play. Once or twice, in the course of the three acts, one or the other exits for a moment, but only for a moment. Toward the middle of Act Two the stage manager rises from his chair in the wings to supply a rap at a downstairs door. In the third act the knock is repeated. But he has no offstage dialog or other atmosphere to supply; the two persons on the stage are sufficient unto themselves as they unfold the tale of two lovers and a murder.

THE two roles of "Jealousy" are abnormally heavy ones, of course, yet neither Miss Bainter nor Mr. Halliday admits any more exhaustion after the performance than after the presentation of a play in which their lines are fewer and their time on stage briefer. Miss Bainter says she never has had a play that seemed to speed to its end so quickly.

Each player knows the other's part in its entirety, and either could recite all the lines alone, for it has been easier for both to learn all the dialog, since there are but two roles, than to memorize merely the cues and taglines. It has been suggested that some time, at a special invitation performance, the players trade parts, Miss Bainter acting the male role and Halliday the part of the woman—without carrying the exchange of impersonations beyond the transference of lines and action.

Neither has an understudy, and if one must miss a performance it is abandoned.

At the Play—By St. John Ervine

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.

THE insatiable curiosity which the general public feels about authorship causes many people to wonder what feelings are entertained for their characters by writers. Does an author part from his people with joy or with regret? Does he know what happened to them before the novel or the play began? Has he any idea of what happened to them after it ended? Dickens was said to feel lost when he parted from his fictitious people, more lost than he appears to have felt when he parted from real people. His characters had become so intimately associated with him that when he wrote "The End" on a manuscript his emotions were similar to those he would have felt had a friend left him forever or died. Maurice Hewlett, in one of his letters, describes his sensation, after he had finished one of his long poems, as "homesickness," and this is the emotion which the public likes to believe is felt by all authors about their work and their people. The relationship, alas, is sometimes less amicable than that, and I have known authors to leave their characters with the greatest relief and satisfaction. "Thank Heaven," they say, "I've finished with that lot, and I hope I shall never see them again!"

The question whether an author likes or dislikes his people is different, of course, from the question how much he knows of their lives before the novel or play begins and after it terminates, and some critics dispute about whether an author ought or ought not to know more about his characters than is revealed in his work. My belief is that he ought to be so intimate with them that he can tell you trivial facts about their lives before and after they appeared in his pages. Characters do not come to life on page one of a book nor do they cease to live on the last page, unless, of course, they are killed in the course of the story. The reader ought to have a sense of continuity about them. He ought to feel, in opening their book, that he is opening a window in a wall of the house in which they live, that there is a great deal more of their life in that house than he can see through the window. That, indeed, is the feeling that the majority of readers have about fictitious characters. What they cannot know is what the before-and-after lives of the characters were or are to be. They like to feel that the author can.

IBSEN lived on terms of such intimacy with his people that when someone inquired of him why Nora, in "A Doll's House," had an odd name, he answered, "Oh, her full name was Leonora, but it was shortened to Nora when she was a little girl. Of course, you know, she was terribly spoilt by her parents." There is no revelation of these facts in the play. Nowhere in it are we told that Nora was absurdly indulged by her parents—just as the majority of American children are absurdly indulged by theirs—nor are we told that her full name was Leonora. Discerning playgoers might deduce the first fact for themselves from her silly behavior in her adult life. It has always been a matter for amazement to me that this driveling idiot should have been adopted by advanced women as a symbol in the cause of feminism.

The woman was a liar, a glutton, an ignoramus and a complete fool. "These be your gods, O Israel!" Our point, now, however, is that Ibsen had become so intimate with Nora that there was scarcely a question about her which he could not answer, and I am certain that if any person had gone to him to inquire what became of her after she left her husband's house, banging the door behind her in that dramatic manner which awoke almost the whole of Europe and a considerable part of America, he could have given a complete account of her subsequent life. Mr. John Galsworthy has obviously lived in similar intimacy with the Forsytes, whose "Saga" has just ended. I reproached him several years ago for preventing the marriage of Fleur and Jon. He said, "Oh, but Fleur really wasn't a nice sort of a girl. She was a very hard young woman!"

MR. BERNARD SHAW does not feel this intimacy with his people that Ibsen felt for his. He once told me that he neither knew nor cared anything about the lives of his people before or after he met them in his plays. I had just told him that I knew so much about the characters in my own play, "John Ferguson," that I could tell him what crops were growing in the fields outside Ferguson's farm, and I was astonished at the ferocity with which he denied all knowledge of his people apart from his plays, until I realized that his attitude towards them is totally different from that of nearly all other authors towards theirs.

I believe that the people in my plays have an existence apart from me, that, in fact, they are there all the time, waiting for me to lift a curtain or open a window to look at them. When I write a play or a novel I am telling a story which would still be a fact if the story were not told at all.

Any claim to recognition I have lies in my ability to tell what I see with enough of veracity and skill to make it interesting to those who have not seen it. I have not created the people; I have revealed them. They are not my servile creatures, made by me merely to fill three or four hundred pages or three or four acts and bring me in a large sum of money, and then to be thrown on the scrap-heap because I have no more use for them. They exist by themselves.

MR. SHAW'S characters, however, have no existence apart from him. He cannot tell you anything of their lives before they came into his plays because they had no previous lives, nor can he tell you what happened to them after curtain-fall because they ended when his plays ended. Some persons even doubt whether his characters live in his plays. His people are slaves, made by him for the single purpose of illustrating one of his arguments. They are not men and women; they are debating points; and that, perhaps, is why one does not feel aggrieved or perturbed at meeting them, under different names, throughout the Shavian drama, any more than one would feel aggrieved or perturbed at hearing Mr. Shaw, in a lecture on "Surplus Value," repeating an argument or using an illustration which he has already used in a lecture on "Economic Rent."

Mr. Shaw has never pretended to do any more than that. So indifferent is he to the actuality of his people, apart from their value to him as illustrations in an argument, that he repeats in the first act of "Major Barbara," about to be revived by the Theater Guild of New York, almost exactly the situation which is to be found in the first act of "You Never Can Tell."

I maintain that characters are not imaginatively alive until their author feels them tugging away from him. He then realizes that they are taking charge of their own affairs, and sometimes they oblige him to alter the plan of his play or novel. That never, I am sure, happens to Mr. Shaw. His people fit into his plan because they have no life outside his plan. If he were to offer them their freedom, they would not know how to use it and would perish from sheer inability to look after themselves. He is a law unto himself and able, because of his genius, to break the

Bolm and His Ballet at Odeon

THE Adolf Bolm Ballet and Musical Ensemble will appear at the Odeon next Thursday evening, Nov. 22, headed by Mr. Bolm himself. A three-part program arranged with the idea of giving full scope to the picturesque art of Mr. Bolm and his company has been arranged.

This will include several ensemble numbers with scenery and costumes by Nicholas Remisoff and choreography by Mr. Bolm. Other interesting features of the program will be authentic Oriental dances by Vera Mirova and dances in imitation of paintings by Degas, danced by Agnes George Demille.

Music will be from the works of Chopin, Delibes, Johann Strauss, Debussy, Schubert, Schumann, Moussorgsky, Gluck and Rimsky Korsakoff.

Mr. Bolm may, with justice, call himself one of the leading ballet masters of the world. Formerly a leading member of the Russian Imperial Ballet he was more recently premier danseuse of the Diaghilev Ballet Russe and the Metropolitan Opera House.

The company consists of Mr. Bolm, Berenice Holmes, Vera Mirova, Agnes George DeMille and 15 other dancers, five musicians and a concert pianist.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.

IN THE home of a New Yorker the other day a guest discovered a Bible in a strikingly beautiful binding and made some comment. "It is beautiful," agreed the owner. And half apologetically continued: "But of course no one reads it around here."

As one not very religious but who is an omniverous reader I have often wondered why that is a frequent attitude toward the Bible. Bruce Barton in his volume, "The Book Nobody Knows," was among the first of modern writers to point out the wealth of literary color in the most interesting book ever published.

The Bible is the only book I have ever been able to read more than twice. I have been reading it at intervals for more than 20 years and have never failed to find something of vastly more reading interest than may be found between the covers of any other book. Nor do I believe anyone gets so much genuine joy out of reading as the conscientious Bible student. Even if one approaches it as fiction it is great reading.

Charles Hanson Towne, editor, poet and famous bachelor, is regarded as one of New York's keenest wits. A recent bon-mot concerned the widely discussed Mrs. Willebrandt. "There is," said Towne, "a Methodist in her madness." It has been reprinted with various credits all over the country. Mr. Towne included it in a speech at a luncheon in honor of William J. Locke at the Metropolitan Club.

Political speeches seem a waste of orator as well as wind. In every campaign for President the candidate who has made the fewest speeches has won. Bryan was a prodigious orator. Lincoln made brief and infrequent speeches. And most of us gorged with opinions of political experts have found they were not so hot either.

There is an authoritative story of a man who recently fell upon evil days. In prosperity, he had established credit at a dozen prominent hotels throughout the country. He planned to spend a month at each, living in luxury, and then disappearing. On his way to his first stop he was killed in a railroad accident.

Fifth avenue has a white-haired "flapper" who parades the thoroughfare almost every evening with a marmoset perched on her shoulder.

I often wonder why most men are intrigued by a mystifying detective story involving a chase for stolen pearls. I have never known a man who actually cared for a pearl in a big way.

A Broadwayite refuses to wear a wrist watch because he always gets it wet "dunking."

One of the young mushroom theatrical producers whose brief success rushed to his head was trying to bully an experienced but youthful playwright whose success was not accidental.

"You are just a young upstart!" snapped the producer.

"I'm six years older than you," was the reply. "But I keep young because I'm too experienced as a dramatist to have to deal with guys like you."

Many theatrical producers have achieved a flash-in-the-pan success, but few have ballooned into such laughable egotism as this lucky young fellow who glimpsed America first a few years ago through the porthole of the steerage. A few flops will likely deflate him. It has several others. And that goes for a few playwrights—with love and kisses.

More antiques have been sold in New York this year than ever before. Balzac observed that in every bourgeois, once he has arrived, a passion for antiques is born. That sounds a little catty and perhaps Balzac was wrong.

Ceremony Masters Chang

Frank Fay Has Left for New York and Brooke Johns Takes Up the Stage Work in Chicago—Six-Foot Leading Men Are Now Demanded by The Leading Ladies and the Customers.

By NIE.

FRANK FAY, highest paid performer appearing regularly o tion picture theater stages, said farewell to St. Louis audie the Missouri Theater last Friday night. On Dec. 1, the day Eddie Peabody comes to the Missouri as master of ceremonies, will open in New York at the Paramount Theater, where he wi troduce the style of entertainment he offered here for six The present plan is for Fay to return to the Missouri next March it seems hardly likely that he will be seen here again. His in New York, where he is a tremendous favorite, seems assured he is likely to remain at the Paramount for many months. After he is planning to have a shot at the talking motion picture game as the owners of the Paramount Theater also make films—make of them as a matter of fact—he will probably get his chance in the galloping tintypes.

Yesterday afternoon Brooke Johns took his turn at the Oriental in Chicago as master of ceremonies and his success in that city will be watched with considerable interest by the movie house magnates. If Johns can duplicate the record he made in attracting customers here last year he, too, will go back to New York for a run at the Paramount following Fay and it is quite likely that he will be brought here when Peabody is through.

In the meantime Eddie Lowry goes merrily on at the Ambassador where he has been increasing his popularity day by day. He has held up longer than any other stage entertainer and there seems little chance of his being taken away from St. Louis for some time to come.

THE new style in movie leading men is on view down at Loew's this week where Leroy Mason is making love to Dolores Del Rio in the picture "Revenge." Mason is a six-footer which is one of the reasons why he has climbed up to leading man fame, for the days of the five-foot tall shieks seems to have departed.

The film queens and the public want to look up to their heroes and Hollywood is fast becoming a city of giants.

Rudolph Valentino, the great screen lover of a few years ago, came well under the six-foot mark. Douglas Fairbanks, one of the dominant figures in the film world, can't stretch himself to that height. Maurice Costello, one of the first greats of the industry that made celluloid famous, was far from being tall.

Now, however, the mere six-footer more often than not has to look up rather than down on his fellows.

Such young skyscrapers as Gary Cooper, Nills Asther, John Loder, Johnny Mack Brown and Lane Chandler, not to mention a few of the older heads in the film game like Reginald Denny, Richard Dix and Edmund Lowe are raising the level of the screen industry.

It has long been considered the thing for the Western heroes of the wide open spaces to tower over the ordinary mere man.

Jack Holt is a stalwart six feet and a fraction. So is Tom Mix. Col. Tim McCoy makes the six-foot mark look ashamed, and Fred Thomson easily passes that figure.

In these modern times the romantic and character stars, the leading men, the villains, and even the comedians, are looking down on the common crowds.

At the Paramount studios, alone, in Hollywood, 16 of the male players under contract are six-footers, some with a few inches to spare, and all but one of the five stars fall into this category.

ADOLPHE MENJOU is the sole exception, and he does not fall far short, just shading the tape measure a trifle above the five-foot ten-inch mark.

George Bancroft towers up to a powerful six feet even or six feet one, depending upon whether the measurer catches him in his bare feet or dressed for the street. Ricard Dix is just six feet in height, and looks taller. Emil Jannings comes a fraction above the even mark, but does not look quite so tall because of his bulk. Charles "Buddy" Rogers, newest of the stars, just reaches the six-foot mark with neatness and dispatch.

Wallace Beery, jovial bad man and character actor, is another of the array of giants Paramount has on its payroll. The top half of his head wavers between the six-foot one and six-foot two mark.

Not so many people suspect that William Powell is a six-footer, but the measuring rod in Casting Director Fred Datig's office proves that he is with just a fraction of an inch to spare.

Among the rising young leading men, being a six footer is nothing to shout about. Four of them on the Paramount contract list measure a good two inches above that mark. They are Gary Cooper and Lane Chandler, who hail from the bracing airs of Montana, and John Loder and Robert Castle, recent arrivals from England and Vienna.

Clive Brook, Jack Luden, Phillips R. Holmes, the erstwhile Princeton University student; Paul Lukas and William Austin, the comedian, are all six-footers, a few of them coming a fraction above that height.

Chester Conklin is the "shorty" of the lot with his five feet six inches of concentrated laughs, and Jack Oakie, a recent comedy "find," is another stunted youth five feet ten inches tall.

In this assemblage of young giants a Frenchman might be expected to be lost in the lower levels. Not so with Maurice Chevalier, latest arrival in Hollywood. He is exactly six feet tall.

NO blows have been struck as yet, nor has there been any hair-pulling, but it is difficult for the peaceful observer in Hollywood, according to all reports from California, to escape noticing film folk aligning themselves into two hostile camps; those who came to pictures from the stage and those who learned all they knew in the silence of the voiceless cinema.

Some of those who found fame without ever throwing a voice over the footlights feel that some of the stage-trained players are too sure of their superiority in the new talking picture era, and are inclined to give patronizing advice on how to succeed in the new talking medium. Veterans of the stage and screen can be found, on the other hand, who will state frankly that "these dumb-bells have had their own way long enough, and from now on we stage-trained people are going to get what's coming to us." There are also, of course, those who suggest that maybe there will be room for everybody, after all, and in any case there is no use getting quarrelsome over the matter.

From the recording rooms of the sound-stages where famous film faces are being assayed for voice there come conflicting reports. Colleen Moore, Phillis Haver, and other favorites who traveled the silent road to success are said to have passed their voice-tests with ease, and the producer Paul Bern goes so far as to say the best screen voice he has found belongs to the child player, Junior Coghlan, an utter stranger to the footlights. Some directors, on the other hand, say that stage experience in the reading of lines is more important than voice.

The public, as usual, will no doubt settle the argument in its own way, at the box-office.

Mr. Kreisler in Concert

Fritz Kreisler, who plays at the Odeon on Friday night.

Yolanda Mero Symphony Soloist, Ferguson With "Pop" Today

Well-Known Woman Pianist to Be Heard Next Friday and Saturday—All-Schubert Program This Afternoon.

YOLANDA MERO, one of the most distinguished women pianists, will appear as soloist with the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra for its concerts of Friday and Saturday of this week at the Odeon, and will play, for the first time in this city, her own "Capriccio Ongarese" for piano and orchestra. The Capriccio is Mme. Mero's first essay into the larger forms of composition though she has composed many songs. It is a work based upon the Magyar songs familiar to her childhood. Played for the first time in public by the Cleveland Orchestra last year it won immediate success, and was later presented by the New York Symphony Orchestra before the season's close.

Mme. Mero has not been heard in St. Louis since 1921 when she was the first soloist with the orchestra under Rudolph Ganz's baton. At that time she left a memory of brilliant musicianship, in her presentation of the Liszt A minor concerto. She began her career as concert artist at the age of 14, touring Germany, France and England immediately after her graduation with highest honors from the Conservatory at Budapest. In that institution she had studied for eight years—the age requirements having been waived to permit the 6-year-old to enter—with Augusta Rennebaum, a pupil of Liszt. After her first concert tour came others in Europe, in South America and in Mexico before Gustave Mahler introduced her to the United States as soloist with the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Nine years ago she came to America to remain and since has made her home here.

The symphony of this week's concerts is Rachmaninoff's No. 2 in E minor. The program concludes with Maurice Ravel's choreographic poem "La Valse." In detail it is:

Symphony No. 2 in E minor, Op. 27—Rachmaninoff
I. Largo; Allegro moderato.
II. Allegro molto.
III. Adagio.
IV. Finale.
Capriccio Ungarese for Piano and Orchestra, Op. 2 .... Mero

Pop's Schubert Program.

IN an all-Schubert program at the Odeon at 3:15 p. m. today the St. Louis Symphony orchestra will play the "Unfinished Symphony" under the direction of Emil Oberhoffer, and will present, in two groups of Schubert songs, as its soloist, Bernard Ferguson.

Mr. Oberhoffer is a particular devotee of Schubert and is distinguished for his reading of the "Unfinished" Symphony. Incidently the program today contains his own personal tribute to the memory of Franz Schubert, his Symphonic paraphrase "Valses Nobles et Sentimentales," written this summer especially for the St. Louis observance of the Schubert centennial and played for the first time tomorrow.

Other Schubert numbers on the program are the "Marche Militaire," and "Moment Musicale" and the ballet music from "Rosamunde."

Today's soloist, Bernard Ferguson, was one of the most popular baritones with the Municipal Opera. He is widely known as a concert singer and has appeared with the St. Louis, Minneapolis, Chicago, New York and Boston Symphony Orchestras. For the past two years he has been a resident of St. Louis.

Today's program is:

Marche Militaire
Symphony No. 8 in B minor
"Unfinished"
Allegro moderato
Andante con moto
Songs with Orchestra
Der Doppelgaenger
Erl Koenig
Mr. Ferguson
Intermission
Extracts from "Rosamunde"
Ballet Music from "Rosemunde"
Songs with Piano

At the Play

law which the majority of authors prefer to observe, namely, that characters should be allowed to have a say in their own lives; but even Mr. Shaw had to make a concession to Joan of Arc and permit her to be mistress of herself. I think he resents her attitude towards him, for I have several times heard him insist that "Saint Joan" is her play, not his. Sir Arthur Pinero once told me that the proper way in which to write a play is to take several characters, throw them together, and then watch what happens. I imagine that the curious contradictions and discrepancies in Shakspeare's plays —for example in "Hamlet"—are entirely due to quarrels and fights between him and his people as to what should be done with them. Mr. Shaw's people do not fight with him. They have not got the nerve.

IN the list of plays which I recommended to my readers in my previous article, I unaccountably omitted "Night Hostess." The sensational death of Arnold Rothstein might also have been arranged as an advertisement for this play. It confirms me in my belief that Mr. Dunning, the author of "Night Hostess" knows about the underworld of Broadway.

Other authors merely write about it after they have read the newspapers. The multiplicity of plays produced in New York makes it impossible for one critic to see all of them. I wish that managers would devise in New York a system similar to that devised by managers in London to prevent the production of several important plays on the same evening.

A manager in London notifies to a central agency the date on which he proposes to produce a new play. If another manager chooses this date, too, the manager who makes the first notification is held to be entitled to it, and nine times out of ten the second manager postpones his production. It may not be possible for managers in New York, where there are about 30 theaters more than there are in London, to adopt that system, but surely some modification of it would be serviceable to everybody. Must there be five new plays produced on Monday and none on Friday?

Another Musical Play By Yiddish Company

Tonight at the Odeon the Henrietta Schnitzer players will present a musical play based on an old Jewish legend the story of which is woven about the acceptance of the Torah by the Tribe of Israel at Mount Sinai, called "Our Torah." The plot is built on a modern theme, and the action of the four acts is said to resound with laughter and characteristic racial humor despite the seemingly historical significance of the ancient legend.

Miss Schnitzer will portray the leading role assisted by the entire cast, with LaRue Jones — "The Black Cantor"—as an added attraction.

Children's Theater to Open Season.

The Children's Theater of the Toy Theater in the Musical Art Building, will present "The Fairies' Child" and "Jack and the Beanstalk," on Friday evening and Saturday afternoon of this wek. The youthful players have been rehearsing for weeks. Members of the organization are: Mildred Bardelmeyer, William Thie, Genevieve Lilie, Irene Virginia Miller, John Henry Pohlman, Nesta Johnson, Jack Martin, Ruth Schmidt, Dolly Ann Yost, Eileen Devers, Carlyn Meyers, Loraine Badley, LaVerne Shattuck, Frances Wells, Harold Wells, Edna Crowe, Konrad Hartl, William Robert Milne, Thelma Leonard, Edna Crowe. Music will be furnished by two children, Marian and Maxine Williams who will be accompanied by their mother, Mrs. M. L. Williams. The ushers will also be children.

Kreisler to Play At Odeon Friday

Violinist to Be Heard in Compositions Which He Has Not Played Here in Previous Concerts.

FRITZ KREISLER, the violinist, will give a recital at the Odeon on Friday evening with Carl Lamson at the piano. An interesting program has been arranged, the opening numbers being in larger form, and in the main, compositions which he has not played here before. The second half will be given over to the small numbers in the presentation of which Kreisler is without a peer.

The full program for Friday evening follows:

Suite, E-minor .... Bach
For violin and piano
Prelude
Adagio
Double
Gigue
Rondo, B-minor, op. 70 ...... Schubert
For violin and piano
Concerto, No. 8 A-minor .... Spohr

Players' Guild Soon To Select New Cast

The cast for "Juno and the Paycock," to be presented by the Players' Guild at the Artists' Guild Little Theater the week of Jan. 7 will be again chosen in open competition, during the period from Monday, Nov. 19, to and including Thursday, Nov. 22. Persons interested in taking a part in "Juno and the Paycock," which is having its first St. Louis production under the auspices of the Players' Guild, will report on any of the evenings mentioned at 8 o'clock at the Artists' Guild. Frederick Kitson Cowley, Director for the Players' Guild company, is in charge of tryouts.

Sousa and Band To Play Thursday

Veteran Leader Is Making His Golden Jubilee Tour of the Country With Great Success.

SOUSA and his band of 82 are coming to the Coliseum on Thursday evening, with a spirited program of music by the band and the soloists. The present tour marks Sousa's Golden Jubilee as a bandmaster and it has been one of the most successful in his long career, many cities turning out to pay homage to the veteran leader who created an institution with his band.

The Golden Jubilee tour started in Schenectady, N. Y. on July 19 and continues for a period of more than 21 weeks.

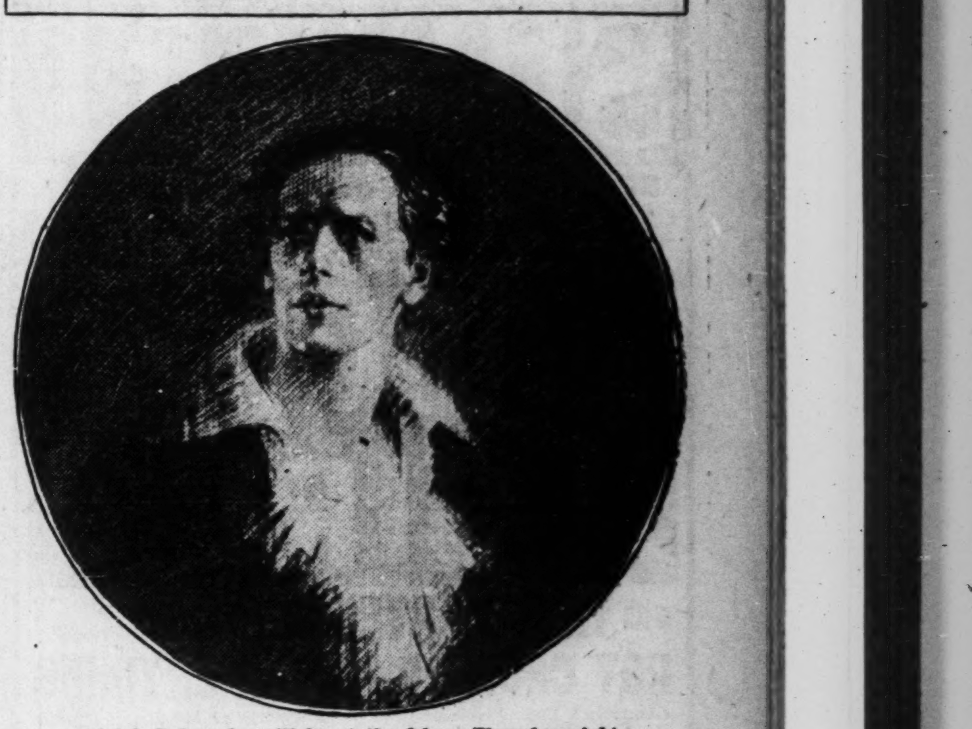
The program for Thursday evening contains numbers by St. Saens, Richard Strauss, Sousa and others and interspersed with the band numbers are solos by William Tong on the cornet; Miss Marjorie Moody, soprano, and a sextet for flutes and a xylophone solo. The regular program will be lengthened by the numerous encores, many of which will be the favorites which Sousa admirers demand.

The concert will start promptly at 8:15. The members of the band will arrive in St. Louis in the morning, give a matinee in East St. Louis and return to St. Louis for the evening concert at the Coliseum.

German Comedy Tonight

A comedy in four acts by Oscar Walther and Leo Stein, called "Fraeulein Doktor," will be presented tonight by the German players with Otto Reuter directing, at Jeffla Auditorium, with Alex Riller, formerly of the Pabst Theater Company, Milwaukee, who will play for the first time the leading role, with Miss Gerda Holgersen in the title part.

Comes With His Ballet



Adolph Bolm who will be at the Odeon Thursday night.

Facing the Music

THE Franz Schubert Centennial memorial concert, under the auspices of the United German Singing Societies of St. Louis, will be given Wednesday night at Alhambra Grotto. Assisting in the program will be Helen Traubel, soprano; Rosalind Anschuetz, violinist, and the Ellis Levy string quartette. Mrs. Frank A. Habig will be the accompanist. The program follows:

Prologue—Written by J. S. Kurtz and spoken by Ludwig Koppee.

Edward Rechlin of Immanuel Lutheran Church, New York, one of America's foremost Bach interpreters on the organ, will play in the auditorium of Concordia Seminary this afternoon at 3:30. The Concordia Seminary students' chorus, under the direction of their new conductor, Walter Wismar, will render three Bach chorals.

The greater part of Mr. Rechlin's offerings will be compositions of the Johann Sebastian Bach. The Toccata in F will appear on the programs. Such choral harmonizations as "Lord Jesus, Christ, With Us Abide" and "My Soul, Now Bless Thy Maker," and the choral preludes to "Salvation Unto Us Has Come" and "Deck Thyself My Soul With Gladness" will be played by the recitalist. Ritter's Sonatine will be played by special request.

The Musical Research Club announces a piano-lecture recital by Vera Schlueter, assisted by Nativa Mandeville-Pigorsh of New York at the Town Club Auditorium on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. The program will be:

"Schubert" (In Memoriam)
Impromptu, op. 80 .... Schubert

The Boston Women's Symphony Orchestra, Ethel Leginska, conductor, will give a concert at the Odeon on Tuesday evening, Nov. 27, under the auspices of the Civic Music League. This will be the first time an orchestra composed entirely of women has been heard here. Madame Leginska herself will appear in the dual capacity of conductor and piano soloist, playing the Mendelssohn Concerto G minor.

The twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of Mu Phi Epsilon, national honorary musical society, was celebrated last week with a Schubert program followed by a luncheon at the Forest Park Hotel. The program was as follows:

BEHIND THE SCREENS OUT IN HOLLYWOOD

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 24.

A FEW hundred years ago the wandering minstrel strolled from town to town and castle to castle and if his songs were good his hearers rarely let him go hungry. The modern troubadour leaps upon the movie screen, a la Al Jolson, croons to a hundred towns in one night and lets the ticket-sellers in the theaters pass the hat for him. By the time it gets back to Hollywood it is a great big hat.

Jolson, pioneering in this new field of the singing screen, has had few rivals competing for the public ear, and the Warner Brothers have made the most of that. But other producers are preparing to bring forward troubadours of their own. Paramount, for example, has imported from France the famous Maurice Chevalier, whose popularity in Europe ranks with Jolson's here. A singing comedian and dramatic actor equally at home in French or English, Chevalier is expected to contribute something to the solution of Hollywood's new problem; how to make the talking-singing screen as international in its appeal as the silent screen has been.

Meanwhile Universal has signed the singing blackface comedian, Eddie Leonard, for the starring role in a singing-talking picture glorifying the American minstrel show, and next spring will star in another musical picture Paul Whiteman, who can make a jazz orchestra do everything but talk. And United Artists will star Harry Richman, the musical comedy favorite. If all these troubadours repeat the success of Jolson the screen celebrities of 1930 may have a very different group from the Who's Who crowd in Hollywood today.

Anyone who thinks, however, that all the stars and featured players of the silent screen are talented only when they are silent is jumping at conclusions. If what the public wants is musical movie stars, there are many heretofore silent celebrities who can be melodious among the microphones.

It may astonish many who have admired Lon Chaney's silent performance to hear that he plays well on the piano and has a good singing voice. Lew Cody is a pianist, too, with a repertoire of songs in French-Canadian dialect. Carmel Myers is a song-writer as well as a singer. The comedian Harry Gribbon began his career as a singing newsboy and sang in musical comedy and light opera for many years. Reginald Denny, Ernest Torrence, Wallace Beery, James Hall, Nancy Carroll, John Boles, and Walter Pidgeon are others featured in musical comedy before they came to the screen.

Qualifying for kingship in a costume picture involves many details of royal behavior not written down in standard school histories. The detail being mastered just now by William Bakewell, who portrays Louis XIV in Douglas Fairbanks' new production, "The Iron Mask," is to get acquainted with a huge hound that is big enough to drag him all around the lot, but must register only faithfulness and docility when the young King walks him in front of the camera.

"Take a week or so and pal around with the dog until he gets used to you," were Fairbanks' instructions as he turned the Great Dane over to Bakewell. Whereupon a studio wit who was watching the player's athletic attempts to get the hound under control dropped the remark: "What a job it's going to be some day for some movie actor to play the Prince of Wales on and off a horse."

The secrecy with which most talking pictures are being made these days shuts out not only the casual visitor who would like to see the wheels go round, but many studio employes who ordinarily have the freedom of the lot.

At one studio whose first sound-stage recently was completed it was discovered that even the few persons being admitted on special passes, signed and countersigned and validated by the proper executives, were tracking too much dirt into the stage. So the bars were put up a little higher and a property boy was sent out to get a door-mat on which the privileged few still to be permitted to enter might wipe their feet.

When the boy returned and slapped the mat down outside the door they saw he had selected a handsome design featured in large letters the word "Welcome."

Christmas, Thanksgiving and the Fourth of July henceforth will be fittingly celebrated on the motion picture screen as well as on the covers of magazines.

Heretofore picture producers have avoided seasonal pictures because, with almost half their customers living in foreign countries, it was poor economy to make a picture based on a patriotic holiday observed in only one country, the United States, or (as in the case of Christmas) in Christian countries only. Talking pictures, however, have temporarily changed all this. Almost all theaters so far equipped to run talking pictures are in the United States; so the producer safely can make the most of sound-subjects exploiting American holidays.

Fox already has made a seasonal talkie designed for general release the week of Lincoln's birthday. It is "Marching On," in which Chic Sale gives one of his elderly characterizations as "the man who knew Lincoln." Due to the hectic demand for new talkies this picture already has been shown in some of the first-run houses.

The same studio also is making a Christmas talkie, and at Universal the Charles Dickens classic, "A Christmas Carol," will be done in dialogue for holiday release. Next Fourth of July, no doubt, will see the seasonal talkies out in full force, for by that time all the studios will have their sound-stages in operation.

Colors frequently are called "loud" when they strike the eye with unwelcome vehemence. But who would have thought any color could be loud enough to interrupt a talking picture? Nevertheless, the latest bulletin from the M-G-M sound-stage, where recording engineers are learning something new every day, is that certain yellows and lavenders, when applied to sets and furnishings used in a talking scene, prevent the perfect photographic recording of certain sounds. So caution in colors is the watchword. The vibrations of the hero's necktie or golf sweater must not be allowed to clash with the wave length of his conversation.

Film colony philologists still are seeking the perfect word to describe pictures that talk. One hears, besides the widely used "talkies," such synonyms as: squeakies, squawkies, noises, scratches, howlies, screeches, speakies and whoopies.

Many a screen story of the past has been written around a pretty face. Now many a scenarist is writing romance around a foreign accent.

The sudden entry of talk into the heretofore talkless drama found producers with numerous foreign stars and featured players on their hands, most of whom spoke English with a decidedly French, German, Hungarian or Scandinavian accent. Naturally the producers could not lightly cast aside these players; neither can they lightly hand them roles requiring fluent English. Accordingly the stories prepared for a foreign star nowadays are carefully arranged so that, in case there are dialog sequences or it is decided to make an all-talkie version, the role assigned to the star will require the kind of foreign accent he or she happens to have offscreen.

In "The Sins of the Fathers" Emil Jannings, for example, portrays a German-American who, if suddenly heard conversing in Jannings' off-screen English, still would be perfectly in character. Vilma Banky in her new picture will be a little Hungarian girl learning how to speak English while working as a waitress in New York. When Greta Garbo makes her talkie debut she probably will appear as a siren from Sweden, who still sounds a little Swedish in her English conversation.

Some think this adaptation of stories to accents will prove too complicated to last. However, Fred Niblo, who has directed so many pictures with foreign backgrounds that he is something of an authority on making American audiences like that sort of thing, argues it will be simple enough to use Hollywood's foreign accents where they will do the most good, and that most of the foreigners actually will find their accents an advantage rather than a handicap.

If there were enough "wired" theaters in Europe it might be profitable to let some of the foreign stars here talk in their own languages for European audiences. It so happens, however, that almost no theaters abroad are ready for talkies now. Meanwhile it is interesting to note that Fox is putting the voices of foreign contract players on ordinary phonograph records which can be played in theaters of their respective native countries. In these little speeches of greeting to the home folks the players incidentally help to arouse interest in talking picture developments among people who as yet have seen only silent pictures.

Carpenters, riveters and cement mixers are the busiest actors in Hollywood these days. With few exceptions the studio lots are deadly dull as to actual production of pictures, but lively as bee-hives as to building activities. Construction of talking picture stages goes on at a furious pace, day and night, and in the few actually completed stages the cameras and microphones, too, are kept busy. For the most part, however, the picture-makers are marking time, waiting for the buildings and electrical equipment needed in talking picture production. Few are inclined to risk money meanwhile in extensive or pretentious silent film productions.

MINNEAPOLIS WEEKLY PAPER SUPPRESSED AS A NUISANCE

The Saturday Press, Barring of Which Publishers' Body Condemned, Published Sensational Articles.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 17. —The Saturday Press of this city, the enjoining of which by the courts was condemned as a "menacing precedent" Thursday, in a resolution adopted by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, in session in Norfolk, Va., was a weekly periodical publishing sensational articles about officials and prominent persons. It had no standing as a general newspaper.

The Press was suppressed under a Minnesota State law, declaring "a malicious, scandalous and defamatory newspaper" to be a nuisance. Publication of the Press was barred a year ago by a court injunction. The decision of the lower court was upheld by the State Supreme Court.

Radio Board Pleased With Results From Re-allocation

Its Members Realize Many Stations Are Injured, but Say Public as a Whole Has Benefited Greatly by Changes.

By THOMAS STEVENSON.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—The Federal Radio Commission is pleased with results of the broadcasting reallocation which went into effect last Sunday.

Preliminary reports indicate that stations are being received with more volume and less interference. That is not true of all stations, many of which were injured by the reallocation. Summing it all up, however, the conclusion is that the listening public generally has been greatly benefited.

Even better results are expected by the commission when some stations get their transmitters adjusted to their new waves and others are equipped to use the power which they have been granted.

Every member of the commission has realized that his official fate depended on the outcome of the plan which had been adopted.

If practice proved that the plan did not improve conditions, the commissioners had no illusions as to what Congress would do.

Of course, almost every radio engineer in the country whose opinion was worth considering had advocated the plan. But there was a possibility that their theories might not stand a practical test.

Sunday evening found every commissioner ready to tune in.

Surrounded by three sets, Judge Eugene O. Sykes of the third (Southern) zone spent two anxious hours trying to get stations. As he listened, a pleased expression came over his face. The Southern stations came in better than he ever had heard them before.

"I can hear some sure 'nuff Southern programs at last," he said.

With his wife and two radio sets, Sam Pickard of the Fourth (Midwestern) Zone tried to see how many of his stations he could pick up. One by one the cleared channel broadcasters came pounding in.

"There is still a little interference, but it is unquestionably a great improvement," was his verdict.

Commissioner La Fount of the Fifth (Far Western) Zone had to sit up quite late before he could get one of his stations. Mrs. La Fount listened patiently while he tried to transform elusive squeals into music or speech. Finally, around midnight, he succeeded in tuning in a Los Angeles broadcaster.

"I've never been able to do that before," he declared. "I certainly can get more stations now than ever before."

RADIO RECEPTION IS IMPROVED IN ST. LOUIS AREA BY CHANGES

Outlying Sections Report Weakened Signals From KMOX, KWK and WIL—KSD Listeners Pleased —Better U. S. Stations Heard More Clearly.

BY THE RADIO EDITOR.

Reception since the new broadcasting allocation went into effect last Sunday appears to have been improved greatly for the listener who desires to tune in the best stations in this country. The man who is more interested in the number of stations he can tune in has suffered. As the former type of listener is vastly in the majority, first impressions of the change are distinctly favorable.

True, there is still heterodyning on a few channels, though in no case as serious as in the past. Local St. Louis stations still prevent reception of many distant stations; in fact, when all St. Louis stations are on the air it is virtually impossible for the owner of an average set to tune in much of anything from about 1060 kilocycles (three channels above KMOX) to the bottom of the dial at 1500 kilocycles. Listeners 50 to 150 miles from St. Louis report poorer reception of KMOX, KWK and WIL, all of which have been dropped down the dial.

But many listeners report that the annoying heterodyne that has marred or spoiled reception of KSD for a year or more has disappeared. Others say that KSD comes in much better than a week ago.

It is too early to determine whether the changes have helped or hampered other St. Louis stations, except that KFUO has fared as well as has KSD. KMOX has had its aerial at Kirkwood down and overhauled and has been busy checking new apparatus. All this has not benefitted reception of that station the past week, but should work a marked improvement from now on. The "broadness" of KMOX that was bothering listeners the past week all over St. Louis seems to be lessening.

Owners of the older superheterodyne receivers report more "repeat points" since WIL and KWK have dropped from 258 to 234 meters, respectively, to 222 meters. This particular aspect of the local situation has been complicated, of course, by the course of KWK in using the 1350 kc channel on the nights when WIL was on the air.

After using its old channel a couple of days, KWK's management decided to comply with the Radio Commission's order to stay on 1350 kilocycles and share time thereon with WIL. It was announced that KWK would be on the air today, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday of this week on 1350 kc.

Just what effect the shifting of KFWF up from 1400 to 1200 kilocycles will have on reception only time will tell. That station now prevents reception of more out-of-town stations than in the past.

The great "independent" stations of the Middle West—WGN, WMAQ, WBBM, WLS, WENR, Chicago; WLW, Cincinnati, O., and WCCO, Minneapolis, Minn.—are being received as never before. As each of these stations broadcasts programs originating in its own city that rival the chain programs, this alone would almost justify the allocation change, from the viewpoint of listeners in this part of the country.

But, in addition, the big Eastern stations are being received better, including WEAF, WJZ, KDKA, WGY, WOR and WABC. A number of fine programs that do not go out over the Columbia chain are broadcast by WOR, including recitals by famous artists and symphony concerts.

Many listeners in this part of the country heard KFI, Los Angeles, for the first time the past week. Hitherto, reception of KFI was made virtually impossible before 10 p. m. St. Louis time by the presence of WRC, Washington, D. C., on the same channel. Also at all times reception of KFI was hindered by squeals and growls. Monday night, the writer turned a powerful superheterodyne receiver's dials to the position where KFI theoretically should "come in." Instantly a program from that station was tuned in so loudly, that the volume control was turned to the lowest limit and still the announcement, "This Is KFI, Los Angeles," could be heard.

Many other listeners report hearing KNX, Hollywood, Cal.; KPO, San Francisco; KJR, Seattle, and a Spokane station. In the past, tuning in Seattle or Spokane was something to boast about.

KOA, Denver, is being received better than ever. So, too, is KWKH, Shreveport, La. A new-comer on dials in St. Louis is WWL, New Orleans, which shares an exclusive channel with the Shreveport transmitter.

The new 5000-watt station of WHAS, Louisville, Ky., is fairly "booming in" nights.

Stations in Toronto and Winnipeg, Canada, especially the former, are being received clearly and strongly.

But, because of the local stations, most St. Louis listeners are likely to have to dispense with hearing the following "national" stations on cleared waves: WBAL, Baltimore, Md.; WTAM, Cleveland, O.; WPG, Atlantic City, N. J.; WBT, Charlotte, N. C.; WRVA, Richmond, Va.; KSL, Salt Lake City, Utah; WAPI, Auburn, Ala., and KVOO, Oklahoma City, Ok.; WHAM, Rochester, N. Y.; WOWO, Fort Wayne, Ind., and WWVA, Wheeling, W. Va.; WCAU, Pittsburg, Pa.; KEX, Portland, Ore., and KOB, State College, N. M.; WRR, Dallas, and WOAI, San Antonio, Tex.

Famous Grand Opera Twice on Air This Week

Lovers of opera will have two opportunities this week to hear "Romeo et Juliet."

The work, one of the most popular ever composed, and full of beautiful music, will be sung over KSD tomorrow night by the National Grand Opera Company of WEAF, New York.

Wednesday night, most of the second and third acts of this opera will be broadcast from the stage of the Chicago Opera, in the Balkite Hour, over KWK, KYW, WLW, KDKA, WCCO, WJZ and other NBC stations.

Genia Zielinska, coloratura soprano, and Julian Oliver, tenor, will sing the principal roles in the KSD broadcast.

Other soloists will be: Stephano, Devora Nadworney; Gertrude, Paula Hemminghaus; Tybalt, Harold Branch; Benvolio, Steele Jamison; Mercutio, Frederic Baer; Paris, Edward Wolter; Gregorio, John Oakley; Capulet, Theodore Webb; Friar Laurence, Nino Ruisi, and The Duke, Arturo Imperata.

Edith Mason, soprano, formerly of St. Louis, is to sing Juliet in the Chicago Opera broadcast Wednesday night. Charles Hackett will have the tenor role Romeo. Cesare Formich, baritone, will be the Capulet. Others in the cast will include: Jose Mojica as Tybalt; Desire Defrere as Mercutio; Antonio Nicolich as the Duke; Edouard Cotreuil as Friar Lawrence; Irene Pavosky as Stephano; Maria Claessens as Gertrude, and Eugenio Sandrini as Gregorio. Giorgio Polacco will conduct.

John B. Daniel will be the Balkite Hour announcer.

'Cotton,' 'Morpheus' To Return to Air Over KWK Tuesday

"Cotton" and "Morpheus" are to return to the air with the Sealy Air Weavers next Tuesday night over a chain of which KWK is scheduled to be the St. Louis link.

John Mitchell and Phil Cook will play the roles of "Cotton" and "Morpheus" as in past broadcasts. They are said to have developed much new comedy and some new songs and skits. Cook and Larry Briers, orchestra directors, have written a "Slumber Song" to introduce the weekly wanderings of the pair in avoidance of work.

"Oh, Ya, Ya," "Linger in My Arms," "Jumpin' Jack" and "You're in Love, I'm in Love" will be heard in the first Sealy program.

Martinelli on KSD Tomorrow Night

Grand Opera Singer Has Had Spectacular Rise to Recognition as One of the Greatest of Tenors in Concert and Radio as Well as on Stage.

Giovanni Martinelli

Giovanni Martinelli, famous grand opera tenor, and a Symphony orchestra under Gennaro Papi, former conductor at the Metropolitan Opera, will present an hour's program of popular classical music in the General Motors Family Party over KSD tomorrow.

Martinelli's career, which has carried him from obscurity to a position as one of the greatest of tenors, is remarkable in that it has covered less than 18 years. His first public appearance as a singer was Dec. 3, 1910, in Rossini's "Stabat Mater," in Milan, Italy. A fortnight later, he made his operatic debut in "Ernani."

The next year, while Martinelli was singing in Ancona, his work attracted the attention of Puccini. As a result of the composer's interest, the young tenor was given a role in the Rome production of "The Girl of the Golden West."

Successful appearances followed quickly in Genoa, Naples, Monte Carlo, Brescia, Turin, Budapest and Brussels.

In 1912, Martinelli made his London debut at Covent Garden, where he created a sensation. Since 1913, he has been a member of the Metropolitan Opera at New York. He has created many roles, and his repertoire includes roles in some 40 operas, more than most singers master in a lifetime of work. Yet Martinelli is only 42 years old.

St. Louis School Concerts on Air Over KMOX

KMOX is to broadcast the entire series of school concerts to be given this winter by the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra.

The first of these concerts to be broadcast will be that scheduled for 2:15 o'clock next Wednesday afternoon.

The program is to open with the lovely overture to Mozart's fairy opera, "The Magic Flute." Next will come the Dance of the Apprentices from Wagner's opera, "Die Meistersinger," the first movement from Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, the ballet music from Schubert's opera, "Rosamunde," and the "Tales From Vienna Woods" waltzes from Strauss.

There will be five of these concerts, each given in a high school auditorium. Programs have been sent to all higher grade teachers who will conduct music appreciation courses in advance of the concerts.

WIL Names New Musical Director

Schuyler Aylward has been appointed musical director of WIL, St. Louis. William Elsworth, director of the station, said that a steady improvement of WIL's programs was being made.

WIL is broadcasting on alternate days on 1350 kilocycles (222 meters), having been dropped from 258 meters by the Radio Commission. WIL is to be on the air Monday, Wednesday and Friday of this week and next Sunday.

RADIO RECEPTION IS IMPROVED IN ST. LOUIS AREA BY CHANGE

tions on the lower channels may be able to bring in KSTP, St. Paul, Minn.; some one of four Chicago stations that share time on the 1480kc wave, and either WBAW or WLAC, Nashville, Tenn., which share the 1490 channel.

Despite the fact that WLW'c 50,000 watt transmitter is being heard strongly in the day time over a wide range of territory, listeners in the Cincinnati district were bemoaning the limitation of WSAI to daylight operation.

Iowa listeners, with WOC and WHO restricted to dividing time on a "national" channel, were protesting virogorously.

Set owners in Central Illinois, in general, were hearing KSD much better than before, but complained that reception of KMOX was poorer. A correspondent at [illegible] Ill., sends the following summary of reception in that part of the state, summary that is wholly out of line with St. Louisans' experience in regard to the big Chicago and Eastern stations:

"Listeners in this part of Illinois are dissatisfied, mainly with what has been done to their favorite stations. They resent the bumping of KYW, Chicago, in the [illegible] meter, 1020 kilocycles, channel, virtually eliminating it so far as they are concerned; the change which forces WOC and WHO, both very popular, to share time, even though reception of the two stations has admittedly been improved to some extent; the doubling up of WENR with WLS, two more very popular stations, and the change which puts WGY, [illegible], WJZ, WJR, WSB, WGN, [illegible], WLW, WMAQ and WEAF, on successive channels, from [illegible] to [illegible] kilocycles—so close together in each instance that they overlap badly and good reception is almost impossible of any of them.

For the rest, they say that there are more blank spots on the dial than ever before, and more places where the only reward is a heterodyne.

"For the NBC networks, the allocation has helped, since so many of the so-called 'national' stations are members of this system. The Columbia system has been helped and hindered. WMMB and WMAQ, which relay Columbia chain programs on alternate nights, are a trifle better off than formerly, but KMOX, the old stand-by of Central Illinois listeners for the Columbia broadcasts, has been dropped further into the graveyard, where only ultra-selective sets can separate it from the whistles and howls on either hand.

"KSD seems to be one of the few stations definitely benefited by the allocation, so far as local reception is concerned. For the last year KSD has been the victim of a [illegible] heterodyne, but with the new [illegible] that heterodyne has faded [illegible] KSD now comes in as clear as a bell.

"Central Illinois has lost more than half of its regular stations. The number of new stations, and the improvement in reception of the few remaining regulars, fail by a wide margin to balance the loss."

MARTINELLI TO BE KSD SOLOIST TOMORROW NIGHT

only in opera, but in his concert work as well. Moreover, his radio appearances have proved him as finished an artist in this specialized field as he is in other musical lines. He succeeds as do few other operatic stars in projecting his personality over the air. One critic said, "Martinelli in a radio speaker is Martinelli in person."

Martinelli's virility and manly character have been as important as his voice in carrying him to success. Wherever he has appeared his audiences and his fellow artists have agreed in proclaiming his humanness. Gatti-Casazza, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, has said that if all singers were like Martinelli, the work of musical impresarios would be sinecures, for this great artist is in every sense a man. He requires none of the "babying" tactics which must be used in handling many stars. His temperament never degenerates into temper. He possesses a business-like regard for time and place. He is consistent and dependable.

RADIO BOARD PLEASED WITH REALLOCATION

the First (Eastern) Zone appeared the least satisfied. It is believed that secretly he was quite elated, but he said it was not so good as it should be and that it would undoubtedly be much better later on.

Besieged by reporters the next day, the commissioners refused to discuss the results. One or two of them remarked casually that they had listened and thought there was an improvement.

They did their best to conceal how much concerned they were about it.

"I really think we should wait until it has had a fair test and we hear from all sections of the country before making a statement," said Sam Pickard, spokesman for his associates.

"Nobody's Girl" Stars on KMOX

Several members of the "Nobody's Girl" Company, which will be at the Shubert Rialto this week, will broadcast a special program over KMOX from 6:45 to [illegible] Tuesday evening.

Among those to appear are: [illegible] Marvenga, prima donna; [illegible] Darville, coloratura soprano, who graduated from the Municipal opera chorus and was seen here two years ago with Louise Groody in "No, No, Nannette"; John [illegible] Young, remembered for versatility in the comedy roles at the Municipal Opera, last year with "Oh Kay!" and now the chief comedian of "Nobody's Girl"; Paul [illegible] baritone at the Muny Opera last season; John Parks, comedian at the Garden Theater last summer, and Roy Cropper, tenor in the "Student Prince" and "Castles in the Air."

Where to Tune in Dr. Cadman.

Listeners in this part of the country will find Dr. S. Parkes Cadman speaking over [illegible], WOC-WHO, WOW, KVOO, [illegible] and WSB at 2 o'clock this afternoon. He is to speak on "The Angel Standing in the Sun."

Singing Contest for Mid-West Winners Over WMAQ Nov. 24

Missouri and Illinois Represented in Semi-Final—St. Louis Youth a Contestant.

The semi-final for singers of Middle Western states in the Atwater Kent National competition will be broadcast over WMAQ, Chicago, next Saturday night, Nov. 24, at 8 o'clock St. Louis time. Winners will compete in the national finals in New York next month.

The following winners in State auditions will compete over WMAQ Nov. 24:

Illinois—Maria Matyas, mezzo soprano, 2711 Iowa street, Chicago and W. Chester Ewers, tenor, 1910 Sherman avenue, Evanston.

Indiana — Mary Studebaker Smith, contralto, Gary, and W. Bromley House, baritone, Indianapolis.

Iowa—Honorine K. Otley, soprano, Fayette, and Paul Fedderson, baritone, Belle Plaine.

Michigan—Celeste Cole, soprano, Detroit, and Wilfred Engelman, baritone, Detroit.

Minnesota—Gertrude Schmitt, lyric soprano, Minneapolis, and Wendell Johnson, baritone, Duluth.

Missouri—Gladys Morrison Ball, coloratura soprano, Kansas City, and Emerson Brown, baritone, St. Louis.

Nebraska—Kathryn Iris Dean, contralto, Lincoln and Kenneth Golden, tenor, Omaha.

North Dakota—Mildred Kellam, soprano, Jamestown, and Kenneth Preston, baritone, Bismarck.

Northern Ohio—Thelma Wallette, coloratura soprano, Cleveland, and Harold Haugh, tenor, Cleveland.

Southern Ohio—Martha E. Dwyer, dramatic soprano, Dayton, and Clyde F. Kelly, baritone, Columbus.

South Dakota—Grayce Lindgren, contralto, Aberdeen, and Max Koster, baritone, Vermilion.

Wisconsin—Phyllis D. Nowak, soprano, Milwaukee, and Stanley Morner, tenor, Park Falls.

Radio audience votes will count 60 per cent in deciding winners. Ballots of 27 official judges, located in every Middle West state and listening by radio, will count 40 per cent. W. C. "Bill" Hay, WMAQ's announcing ace, will direct broadcasting of the contest.

Philco Hour on Pacific Coast Dec. 1

Listeners on the Pacific Coast are to hear Jessica Dragonette, Colin O'More and other Philco Hour stars, beginning Dec. 1. At that time the Philco Hour will be broadcast through seven stations in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle and Spokane, in addition to the Mid-Western and Eastern chain.

P.S. It's a Fada "70"

Here's Why!

FADA "70"

The Fada "70" uses 227 type indirect heater tubes. And Fada makes them last three times as long as ordinary tubes. With the famous built-in Fada super-dynamic speaker—a real one (enormous volume or mere whisper)—Illuminated single dial—Uses 9 vacuum tubes (2 of the powerful 210 type tubes)—Push-pull amplification—Loop or antenna operation (loop hidden in top of cabinet when not in use)—Phonograph attachment—Smooth volume control—Completely self-contained in beautiful Sheraton console—Operates from A. C. light socket (90-130 volts, 50 to 60 cycles)—Yes, it's a Neutrodyne!

Disappearing loop antenna nests in top of cabinet when not in use.

Gigli, Famous Metropolitan Opera Tenor, Sings Over KSD Tonight

BENIAMINO GIGLI, Italian tenor of the Metropolitan Opera, who will be soloist in the Atwater Kent hour over KSD tonight, will sing to his largest audience in his lucky month.

It was in November that Gigli reached the Italian pinnacle of operatic success—La Scala, at Milan. In that house, during the Boito Festival in November, 1918, Gigli was chosen by Arturo Toscanini to sing "Faust" in "Mefistofele."

In the same role, on Nov. 26, 1920, Gigli made his American debut in the most famous of American opera houses, the Metropolitan. On this occasion he played opposite Frances Alda as Margherita in the first revival of Boito's opera in 13 seasons at the New York opera.

Gigli failed at everything he undertook until he stopped working and went in for pleasure—the pleasure of singing. At 16 he was delivery boy for a druggist, delivering a song with each package. "You'll be a great artist one day," said the druggist as he regretfully discharged him. Then Gigli was a waiter in a home of a noted Italian Countess. Next, he was a photographer's assistant in the office of the Minister of Fine Arts, where his voice impressed a passerby. Like many another great singer, Gigli advanced from the choir loft to the opera stage.

KSD's network broadcasting today is to begin at 12:30 o'clock this noon with the usual Peerless concert, in which Edward Wolter, baritone, again will be the soloist. This program will include:

March from "Aida"	Verdi	Ensemble
Valse Chopin	Chopin	Ensemble
The Day is Done	Spross	Baritone
The Old Refrain	Kreisler	Ensemble
Pas' Des Espagnol from "Ramonda Ballet"	Glazounow	Ensemble
Rolling Down to Rio	Germain	Baritone
Bolero	Moszkowsky	Ensemble

There will be a Biblical drama broadcast over KSD at 1 o'clock.

Arcadie Birkenholz, violinist, is to play an all-Schubert program at 4:30 this afternoon over KSD. He has programed the Sonatina in A Minor, the "Moment Musical" and the Sonatina in D Major. Both sonatinas are very melodious, and are written in an especially graceful style.

Beniamino Gigli, tenor, on KSD tonight.

The next KSD feature will be the weekly Stetson Parade at 5 o'clock. Listeners will be taken back to the night of Oct. 3, 1860, when the Republican Wide Awakes held a great torchlight parade in New York City. That was one of the exciting nights of American political history. The Weymouth Post Band will furnish the music.

At 5:30 o'clock the Acousticon program will recall college days of 25 years ago, with their peg-top trousers, long football hair, bulldog pipes. The program will bring:

Love's Old Sweet Song Memories		Orchestra and quartet.
College Yell March	Zamecnik	Orchestra.
Stein Song from "The Prince of Pilsen"	Luders	Quartet.
Medley of College Songs		Orchestra.
Medley of: "In Old Madrid" "Juanita" "Spanish Cavalier"		Mandolin sextet.
True to the Flag	Von Blon	Orchestra.
College Life	Frantzen	Mandolin Sextet.
Vassar Girl Waltz	Harper	Orchestra.
Dear Old College Days from "Peggy From Paris"		Quartet.
Selections from "The Fair Co-Ed"	Luders	Orchestra.
Love's Old Sweet Song Memories		Orchestra and quartet.

Carlo Ferretti, operatic baritone of Maj. Bowes' Capitol Family, is to be today's featured soloist in that program over KSD, beginning at 6:30 o'clock. Born in Italy Ferretti studied with Parodi.

He made his debut in opera at Milan, Italy, singing there for several seasons. Later he was engaged to sing major roles in the opera at Petrograd. After the revolution in Russia, he made a concert tour of the Orient, including China, Japan and India, and became well known for his colorful interpretations. Ferretti sings in seven languages.

There will be the usual talk on "Our Government," by David Lawrence, at 8 o'clock.

The Atwater Kent concert at 8:15 o'clock will bring this program:

Coronation March from 'Le Prophete'	Meyerbeer	Orchestra
Elle Ne Croyait Pas from "Mignon"	Thomas	Beniamino Gigli
Plaisir D'Amour	Martini
Rimpianto	Toselli
La Violetta	Mozart	Beniamino Gigli
Minuetto All Antico	Karganoff
Arlequin	Chaminade	Orchestra
M'Appari from "Martha"	Flotow	Beniamino Gigli
Come Love With Me	Carnevali
If I Gave You a Rose	English
Life	Curran	Beniamino Gigli
Country Gardens	Grainger	Orchestra
Una Furtiva Lagrima from "L'Elisir D'Amore"	Donizetti	Beniamino Gigli

Dartmouth Coach On WMAQ Friday

Five hundred gallons of New England rum have a unique place in the traditions of Dartmouth, for it was on the basis of this potent beverage that Eleazar Wheelock turned an educational deal with the Indians and founded the college.

This and other Dartmouth traditions will be related by Jess Hawley, Dartmouth coach, over WMAQ between 10:25 and 10:35 next Friday night as part of the second annual Dartmouth Pow Wow at Chicago. This year the Pow Wow precedes the game between Dartmouth and Northwestern University tomorrow.

In addition to his coaching activities, Hawley is nationally known as a radio man. He is general manager of Newcombe-Hawley and vice president of United Reproducers Corp., loud speaker manufacturer.

Another Playlet In Eveready Hour

With a playlet featuring Marcella Shields, and the International Singers in two groups of songs, the Eveready Hour on KSD next Tuesday evening will offer 60 minutes of light entertainment.

"The Meanest Man in the World" is the title of the sketch in which Miss Shields will appear. Written by Everett S. Ruskay, it concerns a lawyer whose motto is "no mercy—no quarter, just cop the coin!" until he meets and melts before a girl named Jane. Miss Shields plays the part of Jane, with the "meanest man" impersonated by Jack McBride, who has had prominent parts in several Broadway shows.

Violinist in Roxy Program.

Joseph Stopak, violinist, is to be featured in the Roxy broadcast at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Another soloists and the Roxy symphony orchestra also will be heard. This program may be turned in on KYW or WREN.

NBC Has 1500 Applicants For Free Musical Debuts

Nearly Half Are Sopranos—Auditions to Determine Who Are Worthy of Concert-Radio Opportunity to Begin This Week.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 17.—There are 1500 applicants for auditions for the free concert-radio debuts offered by the National Broadcasting Co. for young artists selected by the National Music League. The auditions will begin this week. A committee of ten, chosen by the league, will hear and pass on the candidates.

George Engles, director of the National Broadcasting and Concert Bureau, which is arranging for the debuts, said that final decision as to the winners would rest on a double audition heard by two groups of judges. One group, seated in the auditorium with the artist, will decide on his abilities as a concert performer. The other will hear the performance through a loud speaker and pass on broadcasting qualifications. Such a final test is essential, Engles explained, because the debuts will be of a combined concert and radio nature.

Nearly every state in the country is represented on the list. In addition there are two Chinese, a Filipino and a Japanese. Nearly half of the 1500 applicants are sopranos. Most of the men are baritones. Pianists predominate among the instrumentalists, with violnists second and 'cellists third. There is one harpist and one soloist on the viola d'amore. Three artists, representing different fields of music, will be grouped in each performance.

"Most of the candidates are already in New York," said Harold Milligan, director of the National Music League. "They have for the most part, come here to seek their musical fortunes. However, we have received a number of applications from cities as far distant as Seattle and New Orleans.

"We are not encouraging these correspondents to undertake special trips to New York for an audition. Such trips too often mean serious financial secrifice and the gamble that the result will justify such a sacrifice is too great. If the applicant is planning to come here anyway, he will be given an audition."

FEATURES FROM NEW YORK ON KMOX TODAY

A concert of music by Schubert will be played by the United Symphony Orchestra over KMOX at 2 o'clock this afternoon, as the special feature of today's Columbia chain programs. Majestic Crosses Ocean in Graf Zeppelin!

FIRST AS USUAL

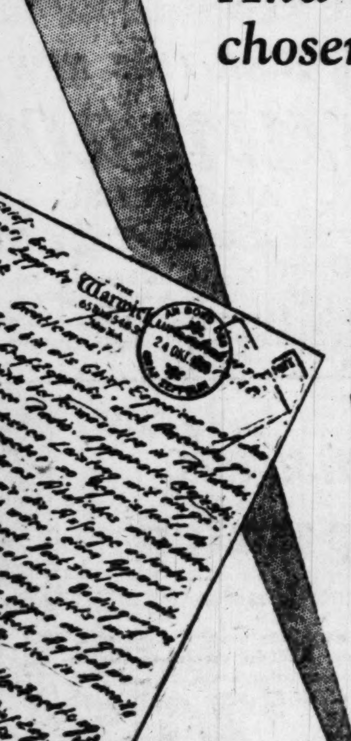
Extreme right, Knute Eckener,
Son of Commander and hero of flight
Center, Assistant Engineer



For the first time in history a console radio set has crossed the ocean in an airship. It was a MAJESTIC, of course.

And MAJESTIC was chosen because of merit!

Read this interesting letter received from the Zeppelin's Chief Engineer:

(Translation)

Lakehurst, N. J., Oct. 20, 1928

Gentlemen:

I am the Chief Engineer of the dirigible Graf Zeppelin and came to America in her very recently, and through relatives in Philadelphia I heard your Majestic Radio Apparatus.

I like the performance of the built-in loud speaker very well and since we do not have anything like that in Germany I beg to ask you if it would not be possible to take one of your sets back with me in the Zeppelin to Germany, and under what conditions.

I would show the set with great joy over there and it would help me remember the enthusiastic reception which all of us found in America.

Very sincerely,

Karl Beuerle, Chief Eng.,

Television May Be Barred From Broadcast Band

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—Television and picture transmission will be available in the broadcast band, from 550 to 1500 kilocycles, until Jan. 1.

Whether operation of radio vision in the broadcast channels will be permitted after the first of the year depends on an investigation to be made by the federal radio commission.

Two factors to be considered in the study of picture transmission will be interference with audible programs and popularity of radio "sight" with the public.

Another element which will have a bearing on the decision is the interpretation of the obligations of the United States under the International Radio Telegraph Convention of 1927 with respect to permitting anything other than telephonic transmission in the broadcast band.

Stations broadcasting radio movies for local audiences only will be the solution of the fading problem in picture transmission, C. Francis Jenkins, Washington inventor and pioneer in the field of radio vision, predicts.

"When each city comes to broadcast and receive radio movies as a city unit, the delight of the 'lookers' will be unalloyed for our present enemy, fading, will trouble them no more," Jenkins says. "The best acting talent then may confidently be employed in the studio and the most thrilling of radio movie stories be broadcast."

Where to Hear Opera Tonight.

"The Lovely Galatea" will be sung tonight by the National Light Opera Co. of WEAF. It may be tuned in at 9:15 on WOC-WHO, WHAS, WSB, or KOA.

Soprano in Maxwell Concert.

Helen Clark, soprano, is announced as soloist in the Maxwell concert over KSD next Thursday night.

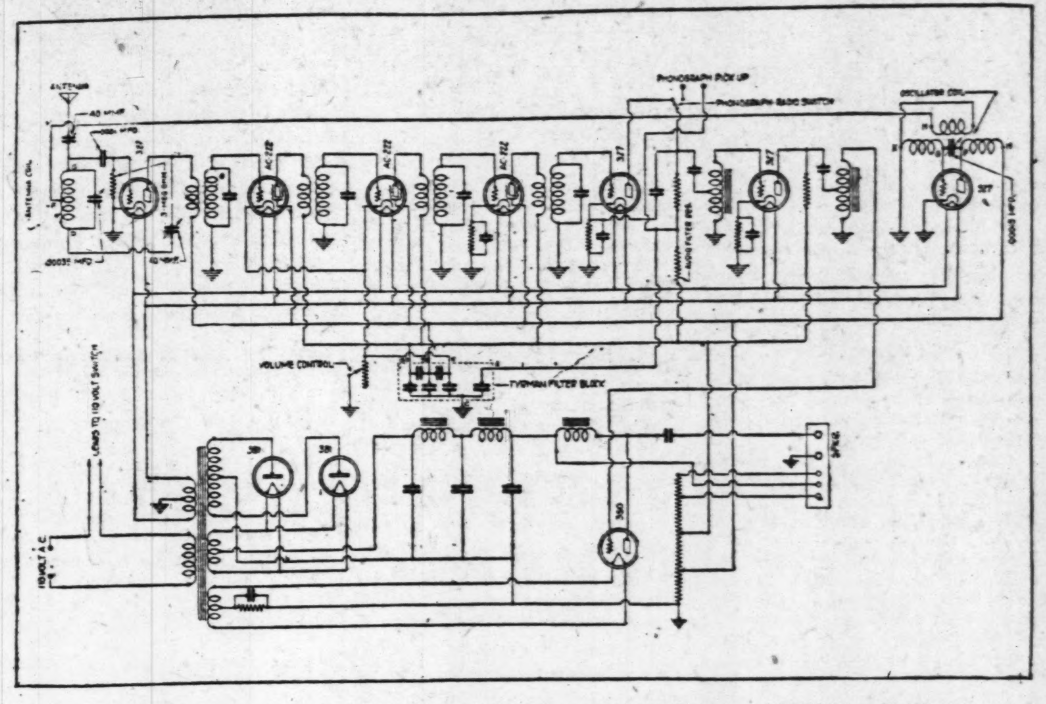
Powerful Home-Built Receiver Uses A C Shield Grid Tubes

Special Unit Supplies Power for 250 or 210 Audio Tube and for Energizing Dynamic Speaker Filament.



Circuit for the new Tyrman "80" superhetehodyne receiver that uses AC shield grid tubes.

A powerful receiver for the custom set builder or the home constructor is the new Tyrman "80," which is entirely AC tube operated and, most important point, employs three AC shield grid tubes. The designers of this set had the successful Tyrman "70" shield grid receiver of last season as a basis for development of an even more powerful circuit using AC shield grid tubes.

The Tyrman "80" uses three of the shield grid tubes in the intermediate amplifier, which operates at a frequency of 475 kilocycles for the purpose of one-spot reception on the oscillator dial. The AC shield grid tubes used are of the heater type and operate from a 2.25-volt source to insure long life.

A feature of the "80" is the fact that a standard 100-volt dynamic speaker filament can be energized directly from the Tyrman "80" power pack. In the ordinary power pack this energy is wasted, but in the "80" it is utilized to supply the filament current to the speaker. Any other type speaker can be used with a slight change.

The audio system has been designed to use either a 210 or a 250 tube in the final stage, depending on whether high amplification or the best possible reproduction be desired.

The power supply is designed solely for the Tyrman "80" circuit and is an integral part of the chassis. It is mounted on the steel platform with four screws, directly back of the other apparatus in such a position as to have no inductive or magnetic coupling with the audio units. It is capable of delivering 100 milliamperes of direct current at a potential of more than 400 volts. It supplies the filament current for operating the seven heater-type filaments as used in the type 27 and type 22 AC tubes.

Two CX381 tubes are used to rectify the heavy current supplied by the power pack. These tubes are operated at only one-half of their normal current load per tube which should give long tube life.

The variable condensers have been designed to match each other at various dial settings more closely than with most superheterodynes.

Grid leak and condenser detection is used in the first detector.

Pacific Coast to Get 50,000 Watt Statio[illegible]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 17.—[illegible] construction permit has [illegible] granted by the Federal [illegible] Commission to the Pacific-[illegible]ern Broadcasting Federation [illegible] a new 50,000-watt station to [illegible] located in Los Angeles.

KFI, Los Angeles, was granted [illegible] 50,000-watt construction per[illegible] which it has not used. KNX, H[illegible]lywood, Cal., also is authorized [illegible] build a 50,000-watt transmitter.

The new station will attempt [illegible] broadcast the best of educatio[illegible] features, according to Grow[illegible] Alexander, its managing director.

"Realizing that the psychological and social potentialities of radio were sufficiently great to warrant the belief that its application during the next decade would predetermine to a large extent the history of nations for the remainder of the century," says Alexander, "various leaders and educators have inaugurated the federation as an aid to culture, idealism, understanding and progress. In so doing, they believe that the West has again set the pace for the rest of the nation in offering a unique solution of a perplexing problem.

"In view of the limited number of wave lengths, the Federation was launched as an aid in integrating the educational facilities available.

"Music, art, drama, non-sectarian religion, radio movies, high-grade entertainment, will be featured in addition to adult education, public school instruction, special intelligence, public debate and discussion of the problems of the day.

"Beam transmission on a low wave is contemplated for simultaneous use, so that intercontinental fellowship may be facilitated.

"Agriculture, sociology, household problems, citizenship, Americanization, orientation and many other courses will be put on the air by the co-operating colleges and universities and other organizations."

Live Stock Show Will Be Broadcast

Daily broadcasts from the International Live Stock Exposition and Hay and Grain Show at Chicago Dec. 3-7 are planned over a chain of stations associated with the NBC. Sam Guard, editor of The Breeder's Gazette, will be in charge of the broadcasts.

The address by Sam H. Thompson, president of the American Farm Bureau Federation, at the opening of the bureau's national convention in Chicago, will be broadcast Dec. 10.

Radio Trade Notes

T. L. Breck, sales manager of the Kolster Radio Corporation, was the principal speaker at a meeting of the Kolster Club Wednesday night at the Coronado Hotel attended by 125 persons. Breck, who is a St. Louisan, born and bred, explained in detail the organization of the Kolster Radio Corporation, its subsidiaries and its Canadian plants and its connection with the Mackay communications system. Breck said the Kolster Corporation was a $12,000,000 concern.

He described a new Kolster de luxe receiver that is to be brought out. Among other features, this set will have a clock that can be set so that the receiver will turn itself on at any selected time on any pre-selected station.

The next meeting of the club is scheduled for the evening of Dec. 11.

A single order for receivers and speakers totaling $1,170,000 has just been received by the Atwater Kent Manufacturing Co. from the Brown-Hall Supply Co., its St. Louis distributer. This is said to be the largest order ever received for radio products from this territory.

The order was for 19,000 pieces of radio apparatus. On a basis of 100 sets to a car, the order would be for approximately 20 car loads.

Shipment into the St. Louis territory as rapidly as possible was requested.

As has been told, A. Atwater Kent has just broken ground for a $3,000,000 addition to his 16-acre factory at Philadelphia, Pa.

The Stone Electric Co., 713 Pine street, has opened a special radio demonstration room. This has been specially sound-proofed and decorated for demonstrating sets under the best possible conditions downtown.

Announcement is made by Gen. J. G. Harbord, president of the Radio Corporation of America, of the election of directors and officers of two new subsidiaries—the R. C. A. of Argentine, Inc., and the R. C. A. of Brazil. They will act as R. C. A. representatives in their part of South America.

It is worth noting that both companies are empowered to broadcast as well as sell R. C. A. products. Argentine broadcasting is supervised by the Government, but stations are privately owned, except for one municipal transmitter, there being 19 in Buenos Aires and seven in the republic outside the capital. The Argentine has a population of 10,000,000 and about 150,000 radio sets.

A new radio and phonograph store is the Glaser Records Shops at 716 Washington avenue. It will carry six radio lines, as well as specialize in radio service work.

A. C. Johnston has opened a radio retail store at 7311 Manchester road, in Maplewood. He is to handle Kolster and Atwater Kent receivers and speakers. Johnston has been with the Strauss Co. for 18 years, and has had charge of its automotive department.

The Chicago & Northwestern Railway installed Majestic receivers on its principal trains for receiving the election returns.

Although about 9,500,000 homes in the United States have A. C. current, only 15 per cent of them have A. C. radio sets, according to H. Curtiss Abbott, general sales manager of the Crosley Radio Corporation. Most of these A. C. sets were installed this year, he reports, and every manufacturer has been taxed to capacity output to provide the receivers.

"The Crosley Corporation's prophecy in June to its dealers has been fulfilled," Abbott recalls. "At that time we told them there were 7,500,000 battery-operated sets to be replaced and that a large percentage of their owners would demand A. C. electric sets this year, plus the normal spontaneous demands of 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 new owners.

"Realizing that the market has scarcely been scratched, we are discussing plans for enlarging factory facilities."

"Going over newspapers from different parts of the country, checking prices now and comparing them with prices not so very long ago in radio," says Hal P. Shearer, general manager of the Splitdorf Radio Corporation, "one is instantly impressed with the fact that no longer do you see many advertisements of low-priced merchandise in the radio field. The higher-priced quality apparatus must be the type of sets that is selling or merchants would not continually be advertising these receivers to the public."

"When one gets out into the field as I am constantly doing, talks with dealers and their examination of homes in various communities bear out my assertion that the public is more interested in the quality of a set today than in what it is going to cost. Radio satisfaction, furniture satisfaction, come first, with price a secondary consideration. The only time price enters is when two instruments of somewhat similar appeal to the purchaser come into the picture.

"It is no exaggeration to say that a million of the higher-priced sets will be sold this year."

The Crosley plant at Cincinnati, O., is reported to be turning out 3000 to 4000 AC receivers a day.

B. J. Grigsby, president of the Grigsby-Grunow Co., make rof Majestic receivers, reports net shipments of $5,160,000 for October; net sales of $17,814,000 for the five months of the fiscal year from June 1 to Oct. 31, and estimated net sales of $5,250,000 for November.

POWERFUL NEW RECEIVER USES SHIELD GRID TUBE

A new Tyrman volume control is used. This affects only the grid bias on two of the intermediate frequency stages and is said not to affect the peaking, thus making it unnecessary to readjust oscillator or antenna dials for changes in volume.

Elaborate precautions are taken by the use of numerous by-pass condensers to insure stability of operation.

Plug-in coils enable this Tyrman receiver to be used not only on the broadcast band, but also for short-wave reception. Shields are easily removable for changing coils.

In addition to complete shielding of coils and condensers, shielded tube sockets prevent objectionable feed-back.

Regenerative control and antenna adjusting condensers make it possible to use almost any length antenna, though it is recommended that the aerial be not more than 40 feet long, due to sensitivity and power of the receiver.

Provision is made for permanently connecting a phonograph pick-up to the receiver, thus making it possible to change from radio to phonograph merely by turning a switch on the front panel.

The Tyrman "80" kit differs from most kits in that it is designed and built by Tyrman. Much of the receiver comes assembled, so that the constructor has a relatively easy task in assembling it.

Real 10 kilocycle selectivity is claimed for the Tyrman "80," together with extreme sensitivity, volume on distant stations and fidelity of reproduction. There are said to be no critical adjustments.

ESKIMOS CATCH COLD AFTER VISITORS ARRIVE

When Alone They Seem to Be Immune to Common Ailment of Warmer Climates.

Although the Eskimos of Baffin Island and Greenland are very susceptible to the common cold and other infections of the upper respiratory tract and live in a climate which might be expected to foster such conditions, they apparently never are attacked by these diseases except when thy com in contact with the less frigid outside world.

This point is emphasized in a paper by Dr. Peter Heinbecker, fellow of the National Research Council in medicine at Washington University, who was a member of the Greenland expedition of the American Museum of Natural History in 1926 and of the Putnam Baffin Island expedition last year, in collaboration with Dr. Edith I. M. Irvine-Jones, Theron Catlin fellow of the St. Louis Children's hospital.

"In the summer of 1926, as the members of the Greenland expedition of the American Museum of natural history made their way up the west coast of Greenland," the paper relates, "it was noted that in certain of the settlements every native was the victim of an acute respiratory tract infection, while in others no evidence of such infection was present.

Result of Contacts.

"Investigation revealed that in the former some contact had invariably been made with the outside world prior to their coming, while in the latter, within 48 to 72 hours of their arrival, all the natives developed acute respiratory infections with sneezing, coughing and spitting.

"Farther north, among the Polar Eskimos, where it was certain that no outside contact had been made that year, there was never the slightest evidence of acute respiratory tract infections at the time of the arrival of the expedition, but within 72 hours nearly every Eskimo of the settlement developed such an infection. It was not necessary for any member of the expedition to have an acute respiratory infection for the malady to appear among the natives.

"Dr. Knud Rasmussen, the Arctic explorer, who was a member of the expedition gave us considerable information about the course of such epidemics. In the fall of the year the infection subsides and does not reappear until another contact has been made with the outside world."

Wounds Heal Rapidly.

Despite the poor hygienic conditions which exists among the Eskimos and their unusual exposure to occupational injuries, the paper, published by the American Association of Immunologists, also records the observation that their wounds heal rapidly and without the attendant infections frequently encountered elsewhere. This is believed to be the result either of a scarcity of pus-producing bacteria in those regions or to exceptional qualities of resistance in the skin of the Eskimos.

"No history of scarlet fever, diphtheria or measles could be obtained," the paper says, "and it seems quite unlikely that these illnesses ever have occurred in this region during the lifetime of the present generation."

Their immunity to these diseases, which other peoples are thought to develop only through exposure to the germs, is attributed to heredity.

THOUSANDS OF DOCTORS FROM U. S. GO TO VIENNA TO STUDY

By the Associated Press.

VIENNA, Nov. 17.—Vienna has emerged from the trials and bitter reverses of the war and post-war period with its position as the world's greatest medical center virtually intact. The United States pays tribute to Vienna's renown by sending nearly a thousand American doctors each year to work in the city's hospitals and clinics.

In addition to this, thousands of American physicians take graduate courses every year under Vienna's famous medical professors. At present there are no less than 45 nationalities represented among the students at the Vienna Medical University. These young men come from the remotest corners of the earth.

The majority of American and other foreign doctors studying in Vienna attach themselves to the great City Hospital and the "Allgemeine Krankenhaus," the latter founded by Emperor Josef II in 1784. In this hospital all of Austria's greatest medical and surgical wizards hold their clinics. The operating amphitheater is always packed with American doctors and medical students eager to learn the latest development in Austrian surgical and medical technique.

Real Estate CLASSIFIED ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH ADVERTISING For Sales

PART EIGHT. ST. LOUIS, SUNDAY MORNING, NOVEMBER 18, 1928. PAGES 1—18B.

$300,000 PAID FOR TWO BUILDINGS ON WASHINGTON AV.

Burdeau Realty Co. Purchases Corner at 21st With 5-Story Structure, for $200,000.

100 FEET ADJOINING TO SAME CONCERN

99-Year Lease Closed on Location on South Grand Bl., Said to Be for Chain Store.

By Berry Moore.

Deals have been concluded for two adjoining properties in the wholesale district of Washington avenue, involving a total of around $300,000.

The northeast corner of Washington avenue and Twenty-First street, improved with a five-story fireproof building, has been purchased by the Burdeau Realty Co., of which George T. Burdeau is president. The purchase was predicated on a lease pending with the Empire Limited, furniture manufacturers, which was made coincident with the purchase.

David D. Lynch & Co. negotiated the purchase, involving approximately $200,000. M. H. Rodemyer & Co. effected the lease, which provides for an annual rental of $17,000.

$1000 a Front Foot.

The site has a frontage of 75 feet on Washington avenue, with a depth of 137½ feet. A valuation of $1000 a front foot, exclusive of the building, was given to the site in the transaction.

The lease is important, ushering in as it does an enterprise which promises to add to the importance of the city as a furniture mart. The Empire Limited is one of the foremost concerns of its kind in the United States, with large factories at Rockport, Ill., and Grand Rapids, Mich. It will use the building in the exhibition of furniture for retail furniture dealers in the Middle West. C. J. Lundberg, president of the concern, who was in the city to execute the lease, said that St. Louis was selected because of its pivotal importance. About $20,000 is to be expended by the lessee in altering the building for the new furniture enterprise.

Last of Three Buildings.

This is the last of the three factory buildings disposed of by the McElroy-Sloan Shoe Co., which has established factories outside the city.

Purchase of an adjoining 100 feet on Washington avenue also was disclosed by the Burdeau company. It was recently improved with a new one-story building. A valuation of $100,000 was placed on the property in this transaction.

Negotiations practically have been concluded for other holdings on upper Washington avenue, thus indicating a decided revival in this section of the real estate market, according to real estate agencies.

Practically in the same category with the proposed furniture exhibition is the Building Industries Exhibition Bureau, to display building and equipment of all kinds. This enterprise, which is sponsored by leading architects and manufacturers of building material, has taken a five-year lease of eight rooms in the Arcade Building, at Eighth and Olive streets. Details of this enterprise are given elsewhere.

Lease on South Grand.

Several long-terms leases again were features of the week, including one for a 99-year lease on an attractive South Grand boulevard location. A nationally known chain store is said to be the lessee at a rental rivaling in many instances those prevailing in the downtown district, forming the basis for higher prices, as a basis for sales.

Operations in the central business part of the city have simmered down to a comparatively low stage, but surface indications point to resumption of activities soon. Selection of the site for the new Federal Building will be the signal, it is believed, for renewed activities in this part of the city.

MARTIN & BREITT AGENCY ANNOUNCES SEVERAL LEASES

Martin & Breitt announce the following sales:

The M. Peterson Hair Co., now located at 810 Pine street, half of the fifth floor of the Columbia Building for the Essex Investment Co.; the hotel at the northeast corner of Tenth and Market streets, containing 28 rooms, to Sarah Grady, for Morrison J. Miller; Florenz T. Feager, the southwest corner of Grand and O'Meara avenues, for the Esenay Realty Co.

Renewed leases include: 1003 Morgan street; Eskimo Refrigerator Co., 815 North Ninth street.

BUILDING INDUSTRIES TO HAVE PERMANENT EXHIBIT

Architects, Contractors and Manufacturers Join in Project—5000 Feet of Space Leased in Arcade Building.

The Building Industries Exhibit Bureau, sponsored by architects, building contractors and manufacturers, has leased eight rooms on the eighth floor of the Arcade Building, Eighth and Olive streets, through the Isaac T. Cook Co. Five thousand feet of flooring space will be available.

The bureau has been organized to establish a permanent central exposition of building materials and equipment for the convenience of architects, engineers, manufacturers and others in the St. Louis Metropolitan district. William F. Wischmeyer of Mauran, Russell & Crowell, architects, is president: James Riordan, secretary, and Edward Lantz, treasurer.

Everything entering into construction will be on display in miniature. The exhibit rooms will be open daily from 9 a. m to 5 p. m., except Sundays. Attendants will describe the various exhibits to visitors and supply exhibitors with the names and addresses of persons inquiring in regard to their products.

Specifications of all exhibitors' products will be kept on file and furnished to architects on request. A bureau of information will compose a complete filing system of all trade names and products and the name, address and telephone number of the St. Louis reprsentative.

Subjects will be selected by the radio broadcasting and lecture committee for lectures to architects, engineers and contractors. Demonstrations will be conducted on new methods of construction.

The bureau, through its member architects, will furnish the design of an exhibit when desired, for which there will be a service charge.

The Building Industries Exhibit Bureau will be equipped to serve the architect at "specifications" time, when, with his client, he can accomplish in two or three hours what otherwise would require several weeks.

The exhibit has been approved by St. Louis architects, who have given their co-operation.

MARYLAND COLONIAL HOME IN COUNTY FOR W. T. DEACON

Maritz & Young, Inc., architects, report that they have received an order to build a new home for W. T. Deacon of the St. Louis Surfacer and Paint Co., the residence to be erected on a five-acre tract on the east side of the Denny road, recently acquired by Deacon through Edward L. Bakewell. The residence will be situated on rolling ground adjacent to a row of forest trees, and is being designed in a line reminiscent of the Maryland Colonial.

The building will have a large living room and dining room adjacent to a terrace garden with a pool in the center, and also contain a sunroom in addition to the service on the first floor. The exterior walls will be painted brick with a soft-blended shingle roof. The building has been designed and will be erected under the supervision of Maritz & Young.

This residence will be the eighth handsome home built in the vicinity of the Bridlespur Hunt Club, located just north of the residence of Edward L. Bakewell, who has developed this section of the county into one of high-class residences.

C. J. DALY TO HEAD REALTY EXCHANGE

Election Will Be Held Tuesday, but There Are No Opposition Candidates.

The annual election of a president and six directors of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange will be held Tuesday at 10 o'clock a. m. in the Exchange quarters in the Wainwright Building. The polls are to be open until 3 o'clock p. m.

A complimentary buffet luncheon will be served to the active members of the exchange.

There will not be much interest in the election this year as there is no opposition for the office of president, and there are but six candidates to fill the six vacancies in the board of directors.

Charles J. Daly of the firm of Daly & McCabe is the candidate for the presidency. He has been an aggressive force in the affairs of the exchange during the past six years, having served in various capacities, for the last three years as first vice-president.

The candidates for directors are William R. Cady, real estate officer of the Mississippi Valley Trust Co., William A. Federer of the Federer Realty Co., John W. Gibson of the Gibson Realty Co., Eugene D. Ruth Jr. of the Francis-Perry-Ruth Realty Co., Carl G. Stifel, president of the John H. Gundlach Realty Co., and Delbert S. Wenzlick, vice-president of the Albert Menzlick Real Estate Co.

Cady is the only candidate up for re-election. At present he is the treasurer of the exchange. Gibson was president from 1924 to 1925 and is a former director. Ruth was a director from 1924 to 1928.

PAVING OF HATHERLY DRIVE IN BEL-NOR IS COMPLETED

The paving of Hatherly drive second of five streets in Bel-Nor being improved, has been completed and forms a direct route about half a mile long from Natural Bridge road to the Normandie Golf Club, which adjoins Bel-Nor on the south. Bel-Nor now has over six miles of improved property on concrete streets. The cost of the present development is said to exceed $100,000 and will bring the total of Bel-Nor improvements already built to $450,000.

Turley to Address Realty Class.

Clarence M. Turley will address the class in fundamentals of the real estate business, sponsored by the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange, at the Downtown Y. M. C. A., Thursday evening, Nov. 22, on "Office and Commercial Building Management."

LIFE INSURANCE TRUST DEPARTMENT ENLARGED

Mercantile Remodels Quarters in East Wing of Balcony of Bank Building.

Growth of the Mercantile Trust Co.'s trust and corporation departments has made necessary their removal to enlarged and remodeled quarters in the east wing of the balcony of the building at Eighth and Locust streets, and the creation of a new and separate life insurance trust department.

The creation of a department for the separate handling of life insurance trusts was made necessary, according to George W. Wilson, president of the company, by the unprecedented demand for this service in the past few years. He stated that the Mercantile Trust Co. held 39 times as much life insurance in trust today as it held in 1922, and held 33 times as many life insurance trusts. He said the demand for this service had been greatest in the past two years, and that twice as many life insurance trusts had been created in that period as were created in all the previous years.

Joseph W. White, trust officer of the company, explained the life insurance trust briefly as the plan whereby the trust company collects the insurance on the life of the client after his death, invests the money, and pays the proceeds to the beneficiaries as the client has directed in the trust agreement. He said its popularity was due to the fact that people who buy insurance to replace their income have recognized the advantages of having it paid out as income rather than in a lump sum, and have come to realize that the life insurance trust is the most elastic and efficient way to make sure their insurance will serve its intended purpose.

Life Investment Trust Survey.

He told of the work of a national committee of trust men from the larger cities in the United States, appointed in 1921 by the Trust Company Division of the American Bankers' Association. Judge Thomas C. Hennings, vice president of the Mercantile Trust Co., was then and is now chairman of this committee, the original purpose of which was to survey the field and consider the possibilities of the Life Insurance Trust, which was then not very well known or accepted by the public.

The removal of the trust and corporation departments to their new quarters and the establishing of the life insurance trust department necessitated the alteration of the east wing of the balcony of the trust company building and gives the combined departments 20,000 square feet of floor space as against less than 2500 square feet formerly occupied by them. The life insurance trust department will be controlled by the Trust Committee, composed of members of the board of directors of the Mercantile. Its service to clients will be under the supervision of Judge Hennings and White.

SUIT BEGUN TO BLOCK $800,000 APARTMENT

Pershing Property Owners Declare It Would Violate Zoning Ordinance.

Forty-four property owners in the 4500 block of Pershing avenue filed suit yesterday to prevent the erection of a proposed $800,000 apartment house at 4530 Pershing avenue, the former residence of the late A. Moll, founder of the grocery company of that name.

The petition alleges that the apartment house, which is to be eight stories high, violates the zoning ordinance, and that this position was taken by the Building Commissioner's office in refusing to issue a permit for the structure. The permit was granted later by the Board of Adjustments, the petition states. The property owners ask that the permit be reviewed by the Circuit Court and set aside as violating the zoning ordinance.

The petition is directed against Kurt V. Moll, son of A. Moll, Thomas P. Barnett, architect, and Chauncey Heath, real estate dealer, who are preparing plans for the structure. Heath declared that the site, which has a frontage of 200 feet on Pershing avenue, was suitable only for apartment purposes.

NEW APARTMENTS ON CABANNE BOUGHT THROUGH DROZDA CO.

The William S. Drozda Realty Co. reports the sale of the Boston & Hartford apartment building, 5820-5826 Cabanne avenue, for John B. McGinty to Charles A. Oebels. This building has just been completed and is three stories high, with 24 apartments of three, four or 5 rooms each. Its equipment includes mechanical ice refrigeration, heat and hot water from a central plant and incinerators. There is a garage in the basement. The Drozda company represented the buyer while the seller was represented by Altheimer, Williams & Calmer, Inc.

The Drozda firm also sold two six-family apartment buildings in rear of 4733-4739 St. Louis avenue for Charles A. Oebels to C. Caulwell.

To the People of St. Louis
With winter approaching we are very desirous of cutting our used car stock. We have some wonderful bargains to offer in eight-cylinder Hupmobile sedans. Cars that are just like new, overhauled, reconditioned and guaranteed by us. Their original cost was $2500, we are selling them for the ridiculous figure of $795. They will easily outwear two light cheap cars. Phone us for demonstration.

HAPPY... and why not?

Here's the Story: He looks contented and happy. But it was different last week. He was worried. He owed bills. He did not have the money to pay them. He could not borrow at the bank. He had no security.

A friend told him of the Welfare. "They lend $10 to $300 on furniture, auto or salary—and you pay back in twenty monthly payments. See them. Get the money. Pay your bills."

He got the $200 he needed—without fuss, without delay—on his own signature and security. We asked no questions of friends, relatives or employers. His furniture remains in his possession. His bills are paid.

He will pay us back $10 per month plus lawful interest allowed by the State, for this company operates under State supervision.

HERE'S THE WAY TO MAKE A LOAN: You don't have to lay off work. Just phone the nearest office and we'll call any time during the day or evening and explain our legal loan plan free in the privacy of your home. Get your loan today.

CHARGES VOTE FRAUD PLOT WAS 'FRAMED'

Defendant at Chicago Trial Asserts Prosecutor Tried to Direct His Testimony.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Nov. 17.—Declaration of a defendant among the 16 men on trial for conspiracy to commit fraud, violence and murder in connection with last April's primaries, that the entire case was a "frameup" today precipitated a spirited free-for-all verbal battle in which the defendant-witness, 12 lawyers and even the trial Judge participated.

The climax came when Harry Hockstein, the witness, charged that David Stansbury, chief of the staff of prosecutors, had conferred with him with a view to inducing him to give testimony which he said Stansbury hoped would send to the penitentiary Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney; Michael Hughes, former Police Commissioner; Morris Eller, City Collector, and "Scarface" Capone, Chicago gang leader.

The argument ended when the defense made a motion for a mistrial, which was overruled by Judge John M. O'Connor, with a reprimand for defense lawyers.

Hockstein, one of the 16 lieutenants of Eller in the "Bloody Twentieth Ward," over which Eller Reigned as Republican boss and where most of the primary day disorder, including one murder, occurred, maintained that the case against the defendants and against Morris Eller and his son, Judge Emanuel Eller, also indicted, was "framed" by Sheridan Bruseaux, investigator for the prosecution.

Hockstein's declaration that he "could have made deal" when he went to visit Stansbury brought protest from both State and prosecution, and was followed by a declaration by Edwin J. Raber, examining attorney for the State, that Hockstein himself was trying to evolve a frameup. This Hockstein denied.

Hockstein maintained the violence in the Twentieth Ward on primary day was the work of enemies of the Ellers who desired to shift responsibility for the disorder to their shoulders. The Ellers have obtained separate trials.

THREE MEN BIND AND HOLD UP WOMAN ALONE IN APARTMENT

$600 Fur Coat, $85 Cash and Jewelry Worth $350 Taken From Fourth-Floor Efficiency.

Three robbers entered a fourth-floor efficiency apartment at 4271 Washington boulevard last night, bound and gagged Mrs. Birdie Manne, 26 years old, and stole her $600 fur coat, $85 in cash and jewelry worth $350.

Mrs. Manne was alone in the apartment shortly after 9 o'clock when a young man pushed the door open and stepped in.

"Now, lady, don't holler," he whispered. "All we want is your diamonds."

Mrs. Manne was explaining that she had no diamonds when two other men pushed in. One carried a nickel-plated revolver and held a handkerchief over his face. The first man clapped his hand over her mouth and then pinned her arms behind her back. One man started to search the apartment, while the third obtained a towel with which her wrists were bound. Then she was carried to the kitchen, where another towel was bound about her ankles.

Mrs. Manne estimated that it was 15 minutes before she managed to extricate herself. Returning to the living room, she found the robbers gone and the door closed. She telephoned the police, who found no one who had seen the men depart.

NO PAROLE OFFERED MOONEY, CALIFORNIA GOVERNOR SAYS

By the Associated Press.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 17.—Reports from New York that Gov. C. C. Young had offered a parole to Tom Mooney, which had been declined by the former labor leader, who is serving a sentence at San Quentin prison for participation in a Preparedness day bombing in San Francisco in 1916, were denied at the executive office today.

Young has informed persons appealing for aid for Mooney that he is eligible for application for parole, which then would be considered on its merits. Mooney has refused to apply for a parole on the ground that to do so would be to admit his guilt. He has said he would accept nothing less than a pardon.

The Governor said recently he saw nothing in the case warranting a pardon but would review the matter.

At a meeting in New York yesterday called by the American Civil Liberties Unions plans were discussed for an attempt to interest President-elect Hoover in Mooney's case. Frank P. Walsh attorney for Mooney, was quoted as saying his client had refused an offer of parole.

DENIES CHARGES IN $100,000 BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

Charles B. Gerhart, 4484 Forest Park boulevard, elderly realty dealer, denied in a deposition filed in Circuit Court yesterday that he ever promised to marry Miss Edith Cockley, 3835 Annapolis avenue, Overland, St. Louis County.

Miss Cockley, who is 38, is suing Gerhart for $100,000 damages, alleging breach of promise. She says he proposed marriage Nov. 1, 1926, and she accepted his offer. The deposition was taken last July. It is expected the case will go to trial next month.

DR. HOMAN'S ASHES NOT CAST TO WINDS, AS HE DESIRED

Action Held Up Pending Word From Kin; Body Cremated Without Ceremony.

The request of Dr. George Homan that his ashes following cremation yesterday without formal services, be carried to a height of a mile and scattered to the winds, is held in abeyance pending decision of relatives in the East.

Dr. Homan, who died Thursday of the infirmities of age, had left the request with a physician friend. He was 82 years old, a graduate of St. Louis Medical College and former Health Commissioner, president of the St. Louis Medical Society and secretary of the Missouri Board of Health. He was a bachelor and is survived by a brother and several nieces.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

The Post-Dispatch reserves the right to reject any query. Personal and telephone calls or answers by mail cannot be given attention, except letters on medical questions of undoubted sincerity when accompanied by stamped, addressed envelope.

ANXIOUS TO KNOW.—Some dealers in secondhand books will undertake finding a book for you, even if it is out of publication. See some of them.

M. B. R.—As to plants using oxygen from the air, there are in plants no respiratory movements corresponding to those in animals, but oxygen is taken in through the stoamata, and lenticels; or breathing apertures, so that there is an exchange of gases between those in the plant and the external air. The part they play in this interchange of gases renders the air fit to be breathed by animals, which in return give off carbon dioxide utilized for plant food. Nelson's encyclopedia says "The absorption of oxygen and the evolution of carbon dioxide is as necessary for plants as for animals. When a plant is deprived of oxygen, all vital processes are suspended; and if it is kept in the same atmosphere, the destruction and disorganization of the living substance inevitably follows." Carbon is derived chiefly from the air, however, by the leaves, and oxygen and hydrogen are obtained from water absorbed by the roots. The main reason for removing plants from a sleeping room at night, especially cut flowers, is to give the room a restful appearance and keep the plants fresh by the change of air, as well as benefiting the occupant of the room.

LEGAL INFORMATION

(By a Member of the St. Louis Bar Association)

ELLA CINDERS.—Your father can be held for debts for your necessities, only, such as food and clothing.

DISTRIBUTORS.—It is given as an opinion that the ordinances of cities making it possible to collect a license from house to house advertising distributors, do not conflict with a Federal law as to such advertising which you mention.

DOROTHY DOT.—If you fail to pay the tax you will pay interest at the rate of twelve per cent per annum, when you do pay. (2) The persons could not get a divorce, as you ask, if they are living together as husband and wife.

A. W. H.—(1) Marriage licenses are public records and newspapers can publish them if they wish. (2) There is nothing to prevent publication, no matter where the license is issued. (3) You can get a license and be married the same day.

IGNORANT.—If your mother dies without making a will you will receive all of her property mentioned. If you should die before her your son would receive the share you would have had. If she dies without a will her estate would have to go through the Probate Court.

K. R. L. S.—You should have a lawyer in getting the divorce. You may go to the Legal Aid Bureau, City Hall, and ask if there may be some help for you, giving the fact of your husband's sentence.

CHARLIE.—It is not necessary for you to apply for other papers, before your son is of age.

I. M.—Write the Pension Bureau, Washington, D. C. relative to the pension for a widow of the soldier.

A. M. B.—The woman's husband has the right to choose where they shall live. The husband can be required to support his children.

H. L. S.—If either you or your wife, with whom you own a home jointly, should die, the property would go to the survivor without making a will.

J. G.—Sixteen is the legal age at which a boy may drive an automobile. His mother might be liable in a case of accident when the boy is not of age, if she permitted him to drive the car.

A READER.—You could be prevented from voting if you had not resided in the State one year if the law of the State requires that you must be a resident for a year before voting.

WORRIED.—You do not have to live in Illinois to be married there. You would have to examine all the daily papers to see what it is customary to publish in them. A license issued anywhere could be published.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS

Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnosis or treatment of individual cases will not be given.

E. E. B.—You do not say what particular preparation you expect to use for vapor inhalation, so the proportions cannot be given. As a suggestion, Vapo-Cresoline is good to use in this way for bronchitis, and the original package contains a proper lamp with directions for use. Tincture of benzoin, pure or diluted, is also used for such troubles.

EDITH S.—The cure of a duodenal ulcer by other than operative means is often slow. So long as there is improvement, however slow, it seems advisable to continue treatment conducive to such progress. Your physician is in a better position than any one else to advise you, being familiar with the case in its different phases. If dissatisfied you are always free to ask for consultation of your physician with others, as well as being within your rights in changing physicians without occasion for offense.

EDWARD.—One in your mother's condition may be helped by taking Sanmetto in one or two teaspoonful doses in a wine glass of water three times daily before or between meals, abstaining from tea, coffee, and any alcoholics, taking no beverages of any kind after the mid-day meal. The general care of such a case is largely assisting in the forming of regular habits, and this will be outlined for you if you will send, stamped, addressed envelope for a longer answer. Refer to "Edward."

M. E. R.—The following being a digestive tonic should benefit and correct your trouble. Tincture of nux vomica, four drachms; powdered papoid, two drachms; bismuth subnitrate, two drachms; compound tincture of gentian, three ounces; elixir of lactopeptine, three ounces; mix, shake, dose, two teaspoonfuls in wine glass of water three times daily, before or between meals. Also avoid constipation, take systematic out-door exercise, such as walking. Diet is important, and if you wish a proper list send stamped, addressed envelope, repeating the reason.

IN MEMORIAM

BAUER, ELIZABETH—Passed away three years ago, Nov. 18.

In grief comes the thought so solemn and deep.
She is not dead but just asleep.

Sadly missed by
DAUGHTER, SON AND GRANDCHILDREN. (c)

BROWN—In memory of my mother, Mrs. Barbara Brown. A requiem high mass will be sung at St. Joseph's Church Monday, Nov. 19, at 8 a. m.
SON GEORGE.

CARDER—In loving memory of my dear son and brother, Thomas Wheeler Carder, who died 12 years ago today, Nov. 18, 1916.

His memory is as dear today as in the hour he passed away.

Sadly missed by
MOTHER AND SISTER.
And all who loved him. (c)

EHRHARDT—Aug. C. In loving memory of my dear son, who departed this life Nov. 18, 1924.

We do not forget you nor do we intend;
We think of you often and will to the end.
Gone and forgotten by some you may be,
But dear to our memory you ever will be.

Sadly missed by his MOTHER, SISTER AND NEPHEW.

GASTORF—In loving memory of our dear mother, Helen Gastorf (nee Carlson), who departed this life three years ago, Nov. 20, 1925:

When a mother breathes her last farewell,
The world seems quite another place
Without the smile of mother's face.

HUSBAND, CHILDREN,
AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

GLEICH—In loving memory of my dear husband, Jacob Gleich, who passed away one year ago, Nov. 22, 1927:

The flowers are laid upon his grave,
They wither and decay:
But my love for him who sleeps beneath
Will never fade away.

Sadly missed by WIFE.
And all who loved him.

LANGE—In loving memory of our son and brother, Theodore A. Lange, who departed this life Nov. 15, 1922:

Gone is the face we loved so dear,
Silent is the voice we loved to hear;
Too far away for sight or speech,
But not too far for thought to reach.
Sweet to remember him who once was here,
And who, though absent, is just as dear.

PARENTS, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

MEICHEL, FREDERICKA—In loving memory of our dear mother, Fredericka Meichel, who departed this life 2 years ago Nov. 20, 1926.

Sadly missed by SONS, SISTERS and RELATIVES. (c)

NELSON—James W. Nelson, who passed away one year ago Nov. 20, 1927.

The flowers I place upon your grave
May wither and decay,
But love for you who sleeps beneath will Never fade away.

Sadly missed by wife.
MRS. MARGARET NELSON.

NESTER—In loving memory of my dear husband and our father, George R. Nester, who died two years ago, Nov. 18, 1926:

His smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall:
He had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.

Sadly missed by
HIS WIFE AND CHILDREN.
And all who loved him.

But dear to our memory you ever will be.

Sadly missed by
SONS AND DAUGHTERS. (c)

REID, MARY (nee Decker)—In memory of my dear wife and mother, who departed this life on Nov. 18, 1927.

Dear mother, you are not forgotten,
Though on earth you are no more;
Still in memory you are with us,
As you always were before.

Sadly missed by
FATHER AND CHILDREN.

RUWE—In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Johanna Ruwe, whom the Lord called home one year ago, Nov. 15, 1927.

Loving and kind in all her ways,
Upright and just to the end of her days;
Sincere and true in her heart and mind;
Beautiful memories she left behind.
There is a sad but sweet remembrance;
There is a memory fond and true;
There is a token of affection, mother,
And a heartache still for you.

Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN, GRANDCHILDREN AND ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

STRUEBIG, LOUIS A. W.—In memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather who departed this life Nov. 15, 1927.

Sadly missed by FAMILY. (c)

VINYARD, JAMES S.—In loving memory who departed this life Nov. 19, 1927:

One year has passed since that sad day
When one we loved was called away,
God took him home—It was His will;
Within our hearts he liveth still.

Sadly missed by
Wife, Children, Grandchildren and his many friends and relatives.

HELP WANTED—MEN, BOYS

New Discovery
No-Frost Offers $15 a Day PROFIT

Here's a new money-maker—a sure way to big, quick, easy profits. You can make $100 a week full time, $50 a week spare time, helping me handle No-Frost orders in your community. No-Frost is a new scientific marvel. Absolutely guaranteed to keep all kinds of glass free from steam, frost, fog, rain, sleet, mist and snow—regardless of season or weather.

ANYONE, ANYWHERE CAN MAKE BIG MONEY

All you do is demonstrate to motorists, bus drivers, homes, stores, garages, etc. I don't sell to dealers. So you—and you alone—get the profit on all orders from your territory. Every demonstration brings 2 to 12 orders. Just rub a little No-Frost on the glass. It doesn't show. Won't streak, smear or scratch. Yet keeps glass clear as crystal in all kinds of weather. A sensation everywhere. A necessity for every auto owner, bus driver, storekeeper, street car motorman, locomotive engineer and everyone who wears glasses.

$125 in 1 WEEK for VAUGHN

C. Vaughn, O., cleared $125 in one week with my proposition. Men and women everywhere report amazing profits with No-Frost and my 350 other lightning sellers. Van Allen, Ill., averages $100 a week; Mrs. Roof, S. C., made $50 first week spare time. Mrs. Hodges, N. Y., clears $18 to $20 day in and day out; Hanson, N. D., jumped his pay from $25 to $75 a week—AND HE WORKS ONLY PART TIME. You can make these big profits, too.

SEND NO MONEY

I'll PROVE you can make $50 to $100 a week—without capital, training or experience. I furnish everything and tell you just what to do in this easy, pleasant work. You don't risk a penny, yet stand to make $15 to $20 a day RIGHT FROM THE START. Don't miss this chance. Introduce No-Frost while it's new. Get the facts without delay. No cost or obligation. Mail coupon now.

SALES HELP WANTED, MALE

MEN

Waiting list will shortly be established for applicants seeking executive positions with ELECTROLUX, INC. Pioneers in a new health industry now commencing operations in the United States; these lists already exist in many of the 43 countries in which Electrolux operates over 500 branches.

Electrolux needs right now about 90 men to fill executive positions paying salaries ranging from $4000 to $25,000; many men who have been with us a matter of months are earning these salaries; inasmuch as we are the only ones in our field we cannot get experienced men for this new industry; the most important qualifications are intelligence, loyalty, aggressiveness and vision.

We have a remarkable product, a strong international organization and tremendous financial backing; the men selected to fill these positions will be given an intensive training in our policies and methods of operation and will receive splendid income in bonus and commission during their training and qualifying period.

Men who apply for personal interview Monday forenoon will be able to start work immediately if they qualify.

ELECTROLUX, INC.

ESCAPED from an ELEVEN YEARS' MENTAL FOG to FIND his WIFE REMARRIED

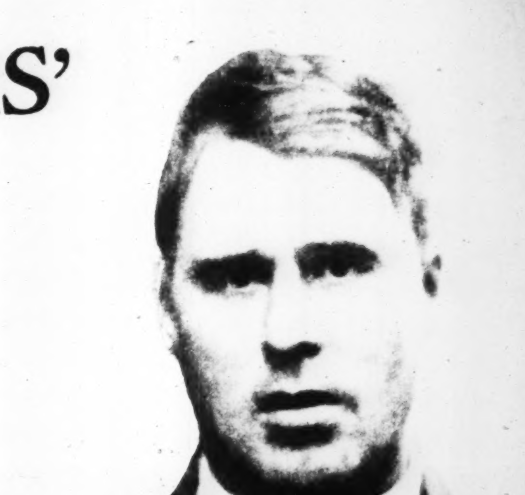
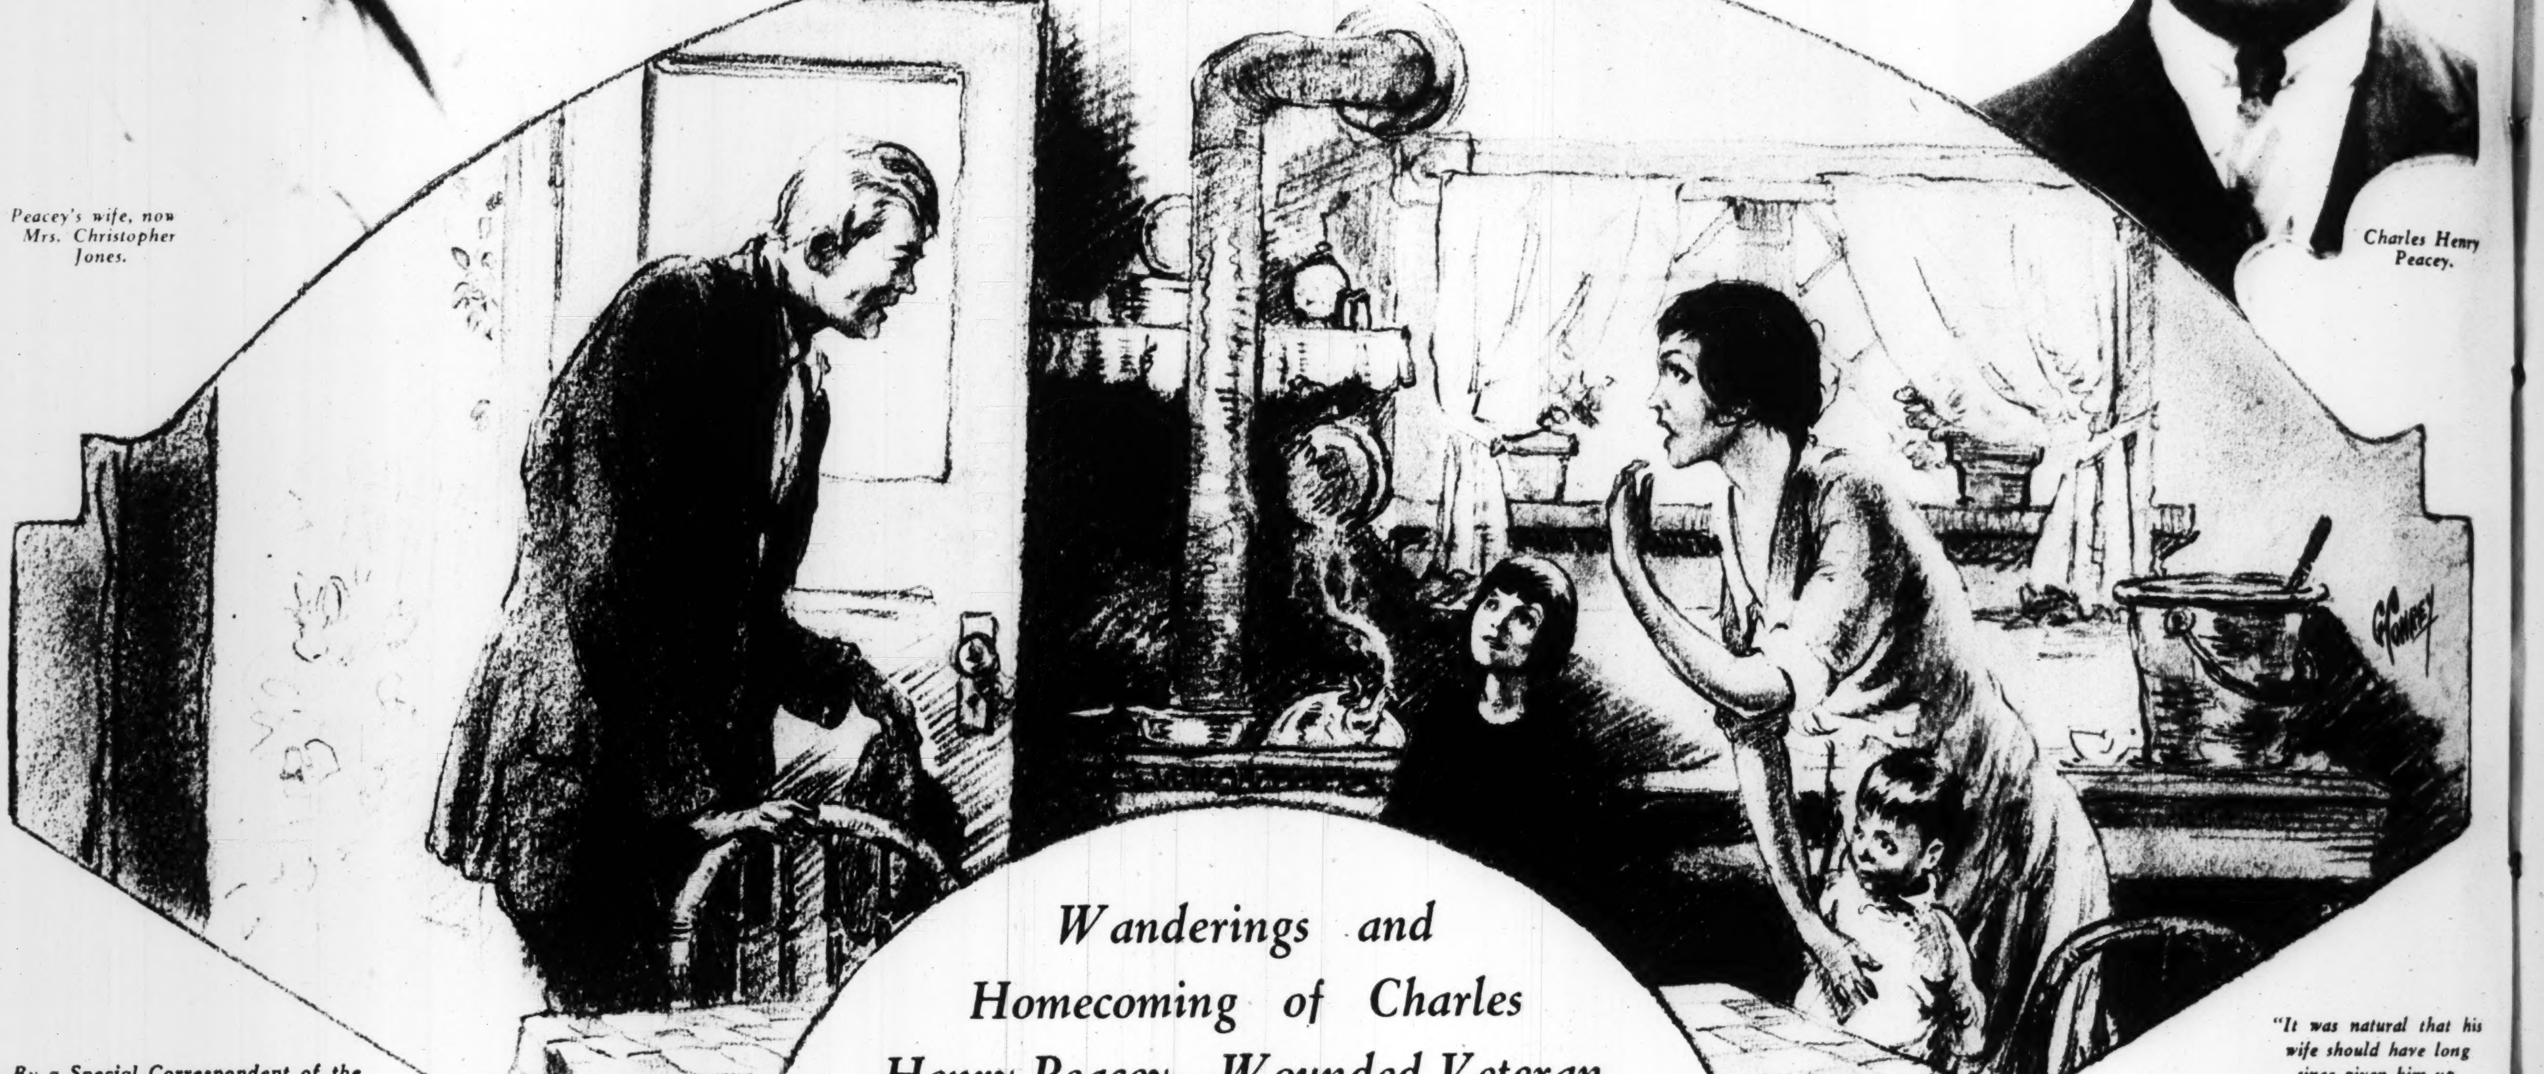
Peacey's wife, now Mrs. Christopher Jones.



Charles Henry Peacey.

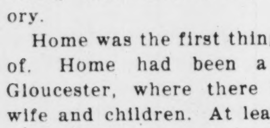


"It was natural that his wife should have long since given him up for dead."

Wanderings and Homecoming of Charles Henry Peacey—Wounded Veteran of the Great War—Like Enoch Arden's.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LONDON.



TIME had played a trick on Charles Henry Peacey. Out of his life 11 years had been stolen. A short time ago he stumbled free of the mental fog that had shrouded him since 1917 and slowly won back to light and memory.

Home was the first thing he thought of. Home had been a cottage in Gloucester, where there had been a wife and children. At least there had been those before the sleep that had consumed more than a decade of his life.

He went back there as soon as he possibly could—1500 miles he traveled, with his limp and his graying hair and a silver plate in his head. And he found only that the years had wiped out every trace that he had ever existed, that he had had his life in Gloucester, that the scheme of his life had fitted in with other lives there.

Peacey found his wife married to another man and with this man's child in her arms. She did not know him at first. He walked familiar streets and peered into familiar faces, but he was a stranger. Eleven years had gone by for his wife, his family, his friends, but for him it had only been a long night of confused dreams.

It was natural that his wife should have long since given him up for dead. It was natural, too, that, at the urging of her mother, she should have remarried. There was no reason to believe that Peacey could be alive.

He had come out of the war in 1916 a wreck. This is what he remembers of the encounter that shattered him:

"It was on New Year's Eve of 1916 that the Second Gloucesters were storming Kemmel Hill. I was in a tank, a skilled gunner, and I can remember how, seated in the cupola, I worked the gun until it was hot under my fingers. We were close up to the enemy and driving through. I was working the gun as fast as I could fit the ammunition. Then something happened. Vaguely, as I realized my fingers were no longer plying the breach, I guessed the tank had been hit.

"I woke up five months later. I was in a hospital in Cambridge, England. I had been in a fog—unconscious, they say—for five months. A shrapnel had pitched directly onto the tank."

Returning to Gloucester, he was miserable. The toes on one foot had been crushed and a part of his skull had been replaced with a silver plate. He soon discovered that he could not stand the confinement of work indoors. He was finished with the war, and it began to look as though he were finished with everything. The kindness and devotion of his wife kept up his courage during this period, he says. Several jobs he had to throw over because of the state of his nerves.

When a chance came to ship on the Flavia out of Bristol as one of the engine-room gang, Peacey jumped at it. This looked as though it might be the solution of many of the difficulties of the Peacey family. The type of work, it was believed, might aid in restoring the man and the wages he would get would go a long way toward keeping his wife and their three children.

The Flavia was bound for Portland, Maine, and every incident of that voyage stands out in Peacey's memory as clearly as though he had embarked only last week. In mid-Atlantic the Flavia sighted a steamer wallowing helplessly in heavy seas. The disabled vessel was taken in tow and Peacey remembers how he looked forward, with the other members of the crew, to the salvage money which would be divided at the end of the return voyage.

WHEN the Flavia docked in Portland, Peacey went ashore. He felt that something strange was happening. There was a kind of numbness that he tried hard to fight off. He clung desperately to his memories of the past, but outlines grew vague and misty.

Next he remembers a large city. "That place was the finish," he says. "I slipped off completely there." He thought he was again in England. For hours he walked the streets looking for familiar landmarks. He walked up streets on which his hope grew, seemed confirmed, that he was in London, in the Chelsea district. Again, he thought he recognized parts of Kensington and Bloomsbury. It has been quite definitely established that this city was Boston.

Peacey is reluctant to talk about this period. He speaks of it as more harrowing than the worst tortures of the war he had been through. There was always the struggle with blankness, a struggle that he secretly knew he would lose.

Still all was not yet lost. In some manner or other he retraced his way to Portland. The ship and the thought that he must return to it still pressed on his mind. He knew he had to report for duty, he knew the penalties that attached to desertion. Having fought this through, he started out to find the Flavia. But somewhere along the way to the docks his mind went quite blank.

One minute he was walking the streets. The next he seemed to be struggling out of an anesthetic. Eleven years had elapsed between that one moment and the next.

He was in a hospital bed in Portland. A nurse was bending over him. A doctor and another nurse were called. All seemed excited that he could talk rationally. When he was able he asked to see a newspaper. He had a suspicion, he says now, that he might have "slept" for a considerable time. But when he saw the date, May 22, 1928, on a Portland newspaper, he was convinced that his eyes had failed him. It was not until they showed him a number of other papers and magazines that he was convinced.

Jean Peacey, standing, and John Jones, the child who is now declared illegitimate.

Still he did not know who he was nor how he had gotten to the States. Try as he would he could not recover his identity. There were vague flashes, but they vanished as quickly as they had come. No identity papers had been found in his clothing to aid him. He believed that he was a British citizen but he was not certain of this even.

The hospital authorities were able to give him very little aid. They told him he had been brought there as a charity case, suffering various mental delusions. They told him they had performed operation after operation in an effort to clear his mind. As a last measure, they had undertaken a delicate operation, entering through the nasal passage to a certain lobe of the brain. They told him he was lucky to have come through the 11 years at all.

Within a short time he had made a physical recovery and his mind seemed to grow stronger. He felt, and the hospital authorities agreed with him, that it might aid the restoration of his memory if he were to travel about and see new scenes and faces. The hospital authorities discharged him, unable to do anything further for him, and he started out on a vague kind of journey that was to end in New Orleans, Louisiana. Even the memory of this is a little uncertain. He recalls very clearly being given assistance in the town of Harrisburg, Illinois, a mining community. Here he met a former member of the American expeditionary forces, who was very kind to him and who arranged for his transportation to Cairo, also in Illinois, where he was to be given employment. In addition the American gave Peacey a five dollar bill, a change of clothing and an old portmanteau in which to carry his few belongings.

Arriving in Cairo, Peacey failed to find the man from whom he was to obtain employment. He was fortunate enough, however, to meet a freight train brakeman at a roadside eating stand who gave him free passage to Memphis. As to his wanderings through Tennessee, Mississippi and Louisiana, Peacey says:

"In Memphis this same brakeman from Cairo, who, incidentally, was an employe of the Illinois Central Railroad, introduced me to a chap who was taking a train of cotton to the docks at New Orleans.

"This second chap not only saw me clear to New Orleans but bought me lunch at two points along the road. When I got to the big city of the South I was not feeling well and my railroad friend sent me to the Charity Hospital. Here I was treated fine, and the surgical work started in Portland, Maine, was finished.

"THEN the men from the various posts of the New Orleans American Legion took charge of me. By this time I was able to remember who I was and where I lived and what the whole blooming row was about. And, of course, I wanted to go home as soon as I possibly could.

"Soon the British Consul General was at work, and between him and the American Legionnaires arrangements were made to send me home on a liner leaving New Orleans.

"And so I finally got back home. Men whom I used to know very well in Gloucester passed me in the streets as though I'd been a stranger. At last I came to the house where my mother lived. A strange woman answered my knock.

"'Oh, Mrs. Peacey, she's been dead years ago,' the woman said when I asked for my mother. My own brother didn't know me when he first saw me."

Complications have arisen since Peacey's return. The Crown has notified Mrs. Peacey—now Mrs. Christopher Walter Jones—that it will be necessary to bring an action for bigamy against her. The little girl, registered as the lawful issue of "Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Walter Jones" will be erased from the birth records as legitimate and listed as a child born out of wedlock. All this has greatly distressed Mrs. Peacey, or "Mrs. Jones." She says:

"After I got over the shock of meeting Harry at the kitchen door I told him that I was married again and happy. I immediately sent for my husband, that is, Mr. Jones, and told him the lay of the land. It upset the poor fellow terribly.

"I'm in an awful position and don't know what to do except that I shall never leave Chris. He has not only been a good father to my first three children, but then remember he is the father of my fourth child.

"After we gave up all hope of Harry I worked very hard for seven years for my three children, the last of whom was born shortly after Harry left for the States. Then I met my present husband, Chris. My friends and Mr. Peacey's mother advised me to get married again, saying that Harry surely was dead.

"Four years ago I married Mr. Jones. He has been a kind and loving husband. He has been a good father. First, of all things, I plan to clear myself of the bigamy charges in the courts. Perhaps there will be a divorce and immediate remarriage.

"After remarriage we shall take steps to legitimatize our child, which is not such a difficult problem as it seems. And Harry, like the soldier he is, is going to help us—then when it's all over he's going to clear out for the States again."

Peacey confirms this. "Of course, I shan't trouble my wife and her second husband," he says. "The queerest thing of all is that he, Chris Jones, was a schoolmate of mine. He's been very good to Mary, and the children are happy and in love with their new father.

"I've got to see this thing through. I can't re-enter their lives. I'm certain of that. I have told my wife to forget that I've come back. Sometimes I wish I had stayed in New Orleans. She might as well look on me as dead. I will be dead for her.

"SHE hasn't changed much, except to grow a bit plumper. She told me that I was the same except that my hair is gray. I think I'll clear out for the States and let May and Chris have their peace and happiness. But first I'm going before the courts and help to clear her of this bigamy charge and help set the status of her child right. I'll not lay around Gloucester long after that."

When Peacey went to the Cunard steamship line officials at Bristol he satisfied the officials that he was the sailor listed as a "deserter" from the steamship Flavia, and drew his wages for his American voyage of 11 years ago, together with approximately $100 as his share of a salvage award for towing an American steamship, disabled in mid-Atlantic, to Portland, Maine. Part of this money he sent to his former wife to help her defray the legal expenses entailed in clearing herself of the bigamy charge. But the rest of it he is hoarding. It will take this modern Enoch Arden back to the oblivion of the States, and he hopes that he in his turn, with the passage of time, will be able to forget those who forgot him.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank D. Waterman.

NEW YORK.

WHEN Mrs. Evelyn Allen Waterman, 29-year-old daughter-in-law of the millionaire fountain pen manufacturer, died last month from an overdose of veronol, many friends of the family hoped that the unfortunate event would lead to a reconciliation between the dead woman's husband, Elisha Waterman, and his father, Frank D. Waterman.

But that hope seems to have been based on what Frank D. Waterman called a misapprehension of the real causes for the break between father and son, who have been estranged now for two years and whose difficulties have been prominently displayed in the papers as a result of lawsuits brought by the son against his father. Contrary to the general impression, the breach was not due to Elisha's hasty marriage to the pretty Evelyn Allen of Montreal in the fall of 1923. Although Frank Waterman advised his son against marrying at the time, he did not disown him for it, and in fact kept his son employed in his fountain pen business for several years thereafter. And since the son's marriage had little to do with the estrangement, the wife's death therefore has made no change in the situation. The true story of the breach between members of this prominent New York family is here revealed for the first time, and it is simply another story of a tragic aftermath of the war.

It was with a certain heaviness of heart mixed with pride that Frank Waterman saw his elder son, Elisha, sail for France 10 years ago as a member of Company A, 105th Machine Gun Battalion of the Twenty-seventh Division. Elisha was then only 19 years old, but a fine, strapping fellow almost six feet in height, with impressive, broad shoulders and an attractive, devil-may-care attitude. He had attended Lawrenceville, one of the East's best preparatory schools, and had enjoyed all the advantages of being raised as the first-born of millionaire parents. But in spite of this he remained unspoiled, and the only effect his wealth seemed to have on him was to give him a certain amount of self-confidence and a lightness of spirits such as comes with comfortable living and the knowledge of an assured future

FRANK WATERMAN was deeply devoted to this son. Father and son were on the most intimate of terms. Himself without a college education, Frank Waterman had given his son every advantage money could buy and confidently looked forward to the day when the boy would return from the war, finish his schooling and then relieve him of some of the responsibilities of his great business, which has been personally managed by members of the Waterman family since its foundation more than three decades ago

Elisha had enlisted as a private, but it was not long after his arrival in France, in June, 1918, that he began to distinguish himself as a soldier. He was popular with his mates and liked by his officers, and on top of that did his duty so efficiently that he was in a short time promoted to corporal. He showed even more zeal after that recognition and it wasn't long before he was raised to sergeant and then made top sergeant of his company. His outfit fought through 11 engagements, some of them violent and bloody affairs, with many casualties, for, as everyone knows, machine gun companies didn't have the easiest assignments in the fighting. But not only did Elisha Waterman come out of the fighting unscathed, he came out with high praise for his conduct under fire.

Indeed, the major of his battalion singled young Sergeant Waterman out for special honor and one day when the outfit was on parade that officer stood the young top kick in front of the regiment and made the statement that Waterman was "the best soldier in the unit." It was high praise for a 19-year-old boy to hear, and perhaps dangerous. An older man might take it with quiet pride, without allowing such an honor to upset his equilibrium, but there was danger that a young man not yet in his twenties might derive from such distinction an exaggerated idea of his own importance. At any rate, from that time on Sergeant Waterman's companions thought they noticed a difference in him. His orders seemed to be given with a tone of harsh superiority which they did not possess formerly. There was about him a suggestion of swagger that he didn't formerly have, it appeared, and he began to show unaccustomed zeal in his authority. Some of his less charitable companions, most of them older men, began to diagnose his condition as a case of "swelled head," but they made due allowance for his youth and were inclined to overlook the matter. But before the outfit returned to New York Sergeant Waterman was almost as unpopular in his company as he had once been liked.

IN MAY, 1919, the Twenty-seventh Division returned to New York and was mustered out of the service. Young Waterman's father, mother and younger brother welcomed him back as a hero. His father was proud of the youth's fine record as a soldier, and of his climb from private to top sergeant. But there was something about the manner in which young Waterman accepted all the praise that caused his friends uneasiness. He took it all for granted and as if the compliments and family adulation were simply a corroboration of his own estimate of himself.

Finally, the fuss made over the returned heroes died down and life began to assume some of its more normal peace-time aspects. By this time young Waterman was used to the limelight and he didn't seem to relish the descent into ordinary routine. Whereas most other returned soldiers were glad to take off their uniforms to resume civilian garb, he insisted on keeping his on. There were, of course, no more military parades and no opportunity for him to march along giving orders to subordinates, but he made the best of the situation by continuing to wear his uniform and by taking long walks on Fifth avenue and through the crowded promenades of Central Park.

AT HOME, according to his family, his attitude seemed to be pretty much that of a spoiled child. He seemed restless, uneasy and hard to please, but his family put that down as a necessary result of the unusual experiences he had been through and took it for granted that time would see a change. When he entered Yale in the fall his family thought his readjustment to civilian life was about to be accomplished, and his father rejoiced. But in a short time it was seen that this fond hope had been misplaced. Elisha took no interest in his studies, cut his classes and gave up college, and it wasn't until several weeks after he had given up his studies that his father was informed. And when Frank Waterman asked his son why he refused to continue with his studies he was told that the professors were a lot of dumb-bells and didn't know anything, anyway.

This did not seem a very promising attitude to Waterman's father, but the latter made the best of it and took his son into his employ. The young man didn't seem much happier in business in New York and he was soon out of sorts with his family, so that it was decided to send him to the Canadian branch of the business at Montreal. The change might do him good, and the responsibility of being "on his own" might help the young man to readjust himself.

Then, one night in September, 1923, Elisha Waterman met Evelyn Allen at a party given to celebrate the girl's twenty-fourth birthday. She was a pretty, vivacious girl, daughter of a comfortably situated business man who had retired. She had attended McDonald College and after that taught school. It seemed to be a case of love at first sight with her and Elisha and their interest was heightened because the war gave them something in common to talk about. For Evelyn's only brother, Charles, had been killed in action with a Canadian regiment. Elisha proposed to her within a week after they had met, and she accepted him. At that time young Waterman was acting as general manager of the Waterman factory at St. Lambert, Quebec, just across the St. Lawrence River from Montreal. His salary was $50 a week, but he was allowed to make use of the company's account at the Mount Royal Hotel for purposes of entertaining or dining.

When Mrs. Waterman was visiting in Montreal, shortly after her son's engagement, she was introduced to her future daughter-in-law. The mother liked the girl, but did not think that her son had yet reached a position justifying his marriage. This also was Mr. Waterman's attitude when his wife reported the situation to him on her return to New York. He wrote to his son telling him that he didn't consider him old enough to marry, that he hadn't yet proved his ability to take care of a wife and that he hadn't shown himself stable enough as yet to take on such a responsibility. Shortly thereafter the parents received a telegram from their son informing them that the wedding was to take place November 10, and adding that he hoped they would be present. And his father, mother and younger brother came up to Montreal to attend the event. They thought that he was acting unwisely, and although they were not enthusiastic about the affair, they made the best of what they considered a bad situation and co-operated as best they could. After the wedding the young couple came to New York and were liberally entertained by the Waterman family. Then they returned to Montreal, where Elisha resumed his duties at the Canadian branch.

DIFFICULTIES then arose between Elisha and his father. There was not entire satisfaction with the manner in which the young man was discharging his duties at the Canadian plant. He was asking for an increase in salary, according to reports, and at the same time making use of the company's account at the Mount Royal Hotel. And soon he and his wife moved from their apartment to that hostelry. In the February following the marriage it was decided by Frank Waterman that his son's management of the Waterman interests in Montreal was not a striking success and he therefore decided to remove him. This was done without embarrassing the young man. Elisha and his wife were invited to spend a month down on Mr. Waterman's Florida estate at Eustis, and after the vacation was over Elisha was informed of his transfer to the New York office. For a year and a half the son worked at his father's office. His salary had been raised to $75 a week. His father had purchased a co-operative apartment for him and his wife, which they occupied without paying rent. But Elisha, apparently, was not satisfied. It seems he felt he ought to be given greater authority in the management of the business. He reasoned that since he was some day to control the business he might as well begin to assume more authority. Soon there was friction in an office which had formerly run with entire smoothness. He kept asking that his father give him more authority, and his father told him that he would have increased authority as he showed increased ability. Elisha then declared that the will of his uncle, Lewis C. Waterman, who founded the business, made him heir after his father had held the estate in trust, and he began to threaten an accounting of his father's administration of the business.

IN THE fall of 1925 Frank Waterman was defeated as Republican candidate for Mayor of New York City and after his strenuous campaign he went to Florida to rest. In his absence Elisha felt aggrieved that his word was not to be the final authority at the New York office and one day early in 1926 he wrote his resignation out on a piece of paper, placed it on the desk of one of the officials and walked out. His next action was to engage a lawyer to sue his father for an accounting of the business, alleging that a codicil to his uncle's will provided for his inheriting it after his father's death. This action died before ever coming to trial. Elisha's break with his father was now complete. The next attack on the father came in the form of a series of articles appearing in a New York tabloid. The articles were under the signature of Elisha's wife and were published under the title: "Why I Horsewhipped Frank D. Waterman, My Multimillionaire Father-in-law." The articles ran for two weeks. It was a terrible blow for Frank Waterman. Still the father said nothing and refused to reply. Then Elisha filed another suit against his father, February, 1927, this time for possession of a savings account of $1200, which the son alleged was being wrongfully withheld from him by his father. This case, too, was dropped when young Waterman and his attorney failed to appear in court on the day of trial. When pressed for a statement the only thing Frank Waterman would say was:

"I have done everything possible for this son, giving him an education here and abroad and with every opportunity to go forward in the business. I have provided him and his wife with a home and I have paid thousands of dollars of indebtedness for him. There is not the slightest basis for any of the charges he has brought against me and I cannot understand what influence led him to his present line of conduct."

MORE than this Frank Waterman has refused to say. He feels that any forceful, explicit statement on his own behalf will of necessity be equivalent to an attack on his own son. He has preferred adverse publicity rather than to speak against his own son. And it was because of his refusal to speak out that the rumor was circulated that the estrangement was originally due to his son's marriage.

After the second suit was filed Elisha Waterman and his wife left New York, where they had been living in an apartment paid for by Frank Waterman. Elisha obtained work on a Philadelphia newspaper. After a time he gave that up and moved to Watsontown, near Camden, New Jersey. The young couple occupied a single room. Elisha was out of work. They were without funds. Their future prospects were anything but bright. And it was under these conditions that Elisha awoke on the morning of October 13 and found his wife in a state of coma. A doctor was called and she was rushed to a hospital in Camden, where she died. An autopsy revealed that an overdose of veronol was the cause of death, and Elisha admitted that his wife had been using the drug more than a year. The doctors refused to say whether her death was accidental or suicide.

A representative of Frank D. Waterman was at the funeral, but when the service was over Elisha disappeared, and neither father nor son have heard from one another since. And the death of Mrs. Elisha Waterman has so far brought no reconciliation.

Al Jolson.

NEW YORK.

ONE NIGHT a little more than a year ago, the slender, dynamic figure of a man with burnt cork on his face and a tear in his voice sang out of a picture on the screen of a New York movie theater. It is hardly necessary to mention his name when it is stated that his song was "Mammy."

From a pictured stage he sang to two audiences—a pictured audience and a real audience. The pictured audience gave him an ovation, but it was drowned in the demonstration of the living assemblage. And the real audience went out of that theater with new standards set to govern its entertainment of the future. A vast change had been wrought.

Whatever disaster it involved to the artistic standards of motion pictures, it was certain that the whole industry had been revolutionized. A new chapter had been written in the story of the show business. The silent drama had at last found its voice. One picture, "The Jazz Singer"—one man, Al Jolson—one song, "Mammy," had made over an industry whose investment is $1,500,000,000. Moreover, it brought a tottering film concern from the verge of bankruptcy and placed it at the forefront of motion picture producing companies. But it did more than that. It performed a miracle of finance.

The stolid, unprepossessing tables on the market page of any newspaper tell that part of the story. On the evening of October 5, 1927—the evening the miracle occurred—the "A" stock of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., closed at 27 3-8, and there weren't many takers at that. One year later it was selling briskly at 126, and it is still active around that figure. The passing of one year, after the success of the Vitaphone had been established, found the Warner Brothers "made," and every picture house of consequence in the country breaking backs and sweating blood to get Vitaphone equipment installed to beat its competitors in the rush for talking pictures.

THERE is still another way to tell it. If the market tables showing Warner stock climbing from 27 3-8 to 126 within a year do not make the situation clear, let Al Jolson's share of the spoils be examined. Apocryphal tales cluster about that contract he signed with Warner Brothers for the making of "The Jazz Singer." It is generally understood that his salary contract called for $125,000. It is also generally understood that Warner Bros. didn't have cash enough at the time to pay the full amount, so they paid him $50,000 down and made up the rest with $75,000 worth of Warner Brothers stock. If that report is true, Jolson profited enormously by reason of the Warner shortage of cash. His $75,000 worth of stock, accepted at its face value a year ago, would today be worth something like $345,000. Thus, instead of getting a flat $125,000 for his work, Jolson is getting around $395,000. Had he accepted no cash and taken $125,000 worth of stock, his earnings would have been around $575,000.

Of course, Al Jolson, already immensely rich, doesn't have to worry a great deal about the thousands he might have made and didn't. As it was, he made far more than he hoped to make when he signed the contract. And even on that night of October 5, 1927, when he sat in a box in the Warner Theater, when he heard himself singing "Mammy" from the screen and saw an immense audience growing more emotional and demonstrative with every note, he didn't suspect the far-reaching magnitude of his achievement. As accustomed as Jolson was to public acclaim, he probably was a bit startled and bewildered when the listeners rose from their seats and called hysterically upon him to stand up and receive their tribute.

The theater was turbulent with excitement. Hysteria literally swept the place. Never had his personal appearance upon a stage evoked such enthusiasm. Brilliantly gowned women were sniffling and dabbing at their eyes with handkerchiefs. Distinguished men were cheering huskily. That night was a dizzy one for the black-faced comedian with the tearful voice. He had sung "Mammy" before, but on that night he had sung it in a picture and changed the theater habits of the world, as he and others were to learn.

The invited audience which witnessed the world premiere of "The Jazz Singer" was a critical audience, too. Included in it were the executive heads and the lesser "yes men" of great film-producing companies. There were theater owners with millions of dollars invested in steel and stone and seats—acres of seats which only superb entertainment could fill. And there were present many hard-boiled motion picture critics.

When "The Jazz Singer" caused a blase audience such as this to act as it did, there was little question about how it would be received by the less critical and less exacting crowds, the movie-going public. Predictions made that night by the shrewdest students of crowd psychology were fulfilled when throngs jammed the Warner Theater the next day and continued to jam it several times daily for six months at $2 a seat to see and hear this master work of hokum—this melodious composition of "sure-fire" emotion. They were fulfilled further when milling mobs later stormed the 6000-seat Roxy Theater, which showed the picture for three weeks at 75 cents a seat. Its popularity continued to increase, as may be imagined, with the descending price scale as it was taken before the regular movie patrons of the neighborhood houses. It is still going the rounds of these houses and still has the world's millions lining up at the box offices.

The show business has experienced few revolutions like the one which occurred in the Warner Theater on the night of October 5, 1927. They may be counted on the fingers of one hand, with two or three fingers to spare. There was one in April, 1896, at the Koster & Bial Music Hall, New York, when motion pictures were shown to the public for the first time. There was another in 1914, when D. W. Griffith's "The Birth of a Nation" took the movies out of the nickel-odeon class and pointed the way to the picture palaces of today. The third came with "The Jazz Singer" and Jolson's singing and wailing of his famous "Mammy" song.

Vital statistics of the City of New York record no suicides among motion picture executives on the night of October 5, or even the next day. But it is not unreasonable to suspect that many were tempted. For all of them could now see what they had not been able to see before—the golden glow haloing these talking and singing pictures. Many of these producers had been offered the opportunity to monopolize these "talkies" and had turned it down as unworthy of serious attention. Lightning bolts flashed and thunder cracked at executive conferences of Paramount-Famous-Lasky, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, First National and other mighty picture producing organizations after that first view of "The Jazz Singer." The gods of the motion picture industry warred spitefully among themselves in their disappointment, for they had overlooked the great possibility and had allowed the inconsequential, almost bankrupt Warner Brothers organization to carry away the prize. What a triumph it was for Warner Brothers!

Until "The Jazz Singer" went over the Warner organization had been from the start a struggling concern. Three times it had failed, only to get up and make another start. Its hectic career began when the four brothers—Sam, Harry, Albert and Jack—sons of a Russian immigrant, quit their various jobs and opened a little theater in Newcastle, Pennsylvania. That was when the picture business was in its early stages. They were moderately successful with this and their success encouraged them to enter another branch of the business. They became distributers of motion pictures. With their limited capital, however they were flirting with disaster. Very quickly they found themselves in competition with big business and big bank rolls, and they soon were wiped out. That was failure No. 1.

They moved to Pittsburg and started again. What they started on is not clear. It may have been less than a shoestring, but they started. Unable to obtain good, marketable pictures they had to close out again at a loss—failure No. 2.

At this point most others probably would have turned to something else, but not the Warner boys. The lure of the picture industry had caught them. Their third consecutive failure was on the way when they tried, this time, to become producers. Again they had to yield to overwhelming competition.

Failure No. 3 meant simply a fourth start. This time they were able to draw more capital into their organization and formed the nucleus of the present Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. Even with that, it wouldn't have taken much to break them, but at this point they began to display keen business sense. About this time, Ambassador James W. Gerard's book, "My Four Years in Germany," came out and they hit upon the idea of buying the picture rights and making a feature film of it. When that proved successful, they filmed such books as "Main Street," "Brass," and "The Beautiful and the Damned." They entered into a contract with David Belasco for some of his plays and procured the services of John Barrymore for the well known play, "Beau Brummel."

THESE ventures lifted them above any financial position they had previously occupied, but still they were not far from the wall and competition was growing daily more disheartening when the big opportunity came—the Vitaphone.

The Vitaphone was the product of the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and its subsidiary, the Western Electric Company. It followed some 20 years of effort to introduce effective sound reproduction into the art of movie making. Almost from the beginning of motion pictures various inventors had foreseen the desirability of making pictures talk and had tried out any number of devices.

In 1909 or 1910 a former actor by the name of Young who owned the McKinley Theater (now a garage) at Jefferson avenue and Accomac street, St. Louis, presented "talking pictures" by the simple expedient of screening himself and Mrs. Young from the spectators by a curtain and improvising dialogue to fit the action of Biograph one-reelers. The dialogue, which was "ham" in the extreme, hastened the abandonment of this form of "talkies."

Thomas A. Edison then took up the problem of synchronizing the phonograph with motion pictures and produced the Kinetephone in 1913. Edison's efforts gave vaudeville the quarrel scene from "Julius Caesar." But Shakspeare must have turned in his grave if he heard what sometimes resulted. Frequently, the faulty synchronization had Cassius speaking Brutus parts and Brutus speaking for Cassius. It could not be made to work dependably. Edison became disgusted and abandoned his efforts.

FOLLOWING the war a German instrument which recorded more or less acceptably the second act of "The Merry Widow" was shown at the Columbia Theater, San Francisco. It was deemed successful and $100,000 was raised to market the invention. But the hundred thousand and the invention both disappeared.

Later, Dr. Lee De Forest presented talking pictures with another device in numerous picture palaces throughout the United States, but for some reason they were not successful.

When the A. T. & T. and Western Electric turned over the sound and motion synchronization problem to the Bell Telephone laboratories, their engineers threw aside all previous ideas and methods as failures. They set out on an entirely new principle—the principle of electrically recorded and reproduced sound. When they needed a practical man from the motion picture industry to work with them they called at the offices of the great picture corporations.

One after another, the big companies refused to be interested. No, they were convinced that talking movies would never be effective. Stepping down in the scale of companies, the A. T. & T. and Western Electric came upon the financially faltering Warner Brothers. Sam Warner, now dead, was the man who saw the opportunity and grasped it. He made the alliance

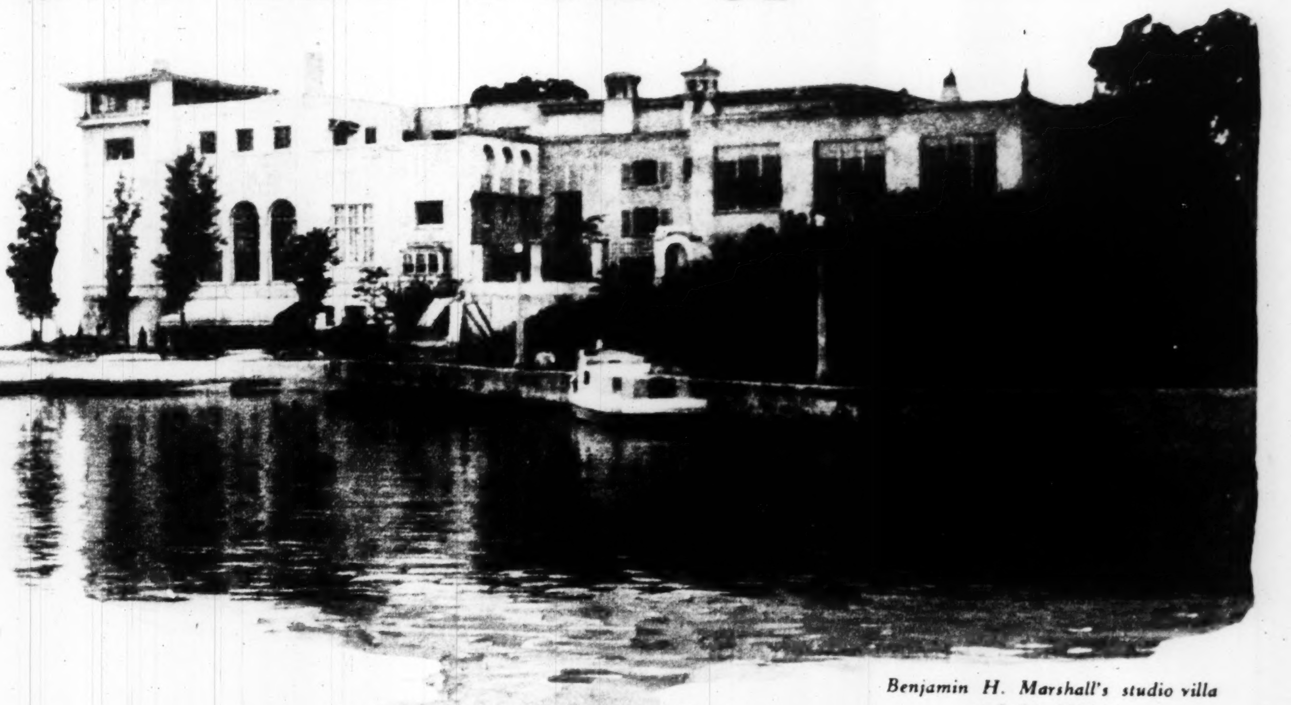
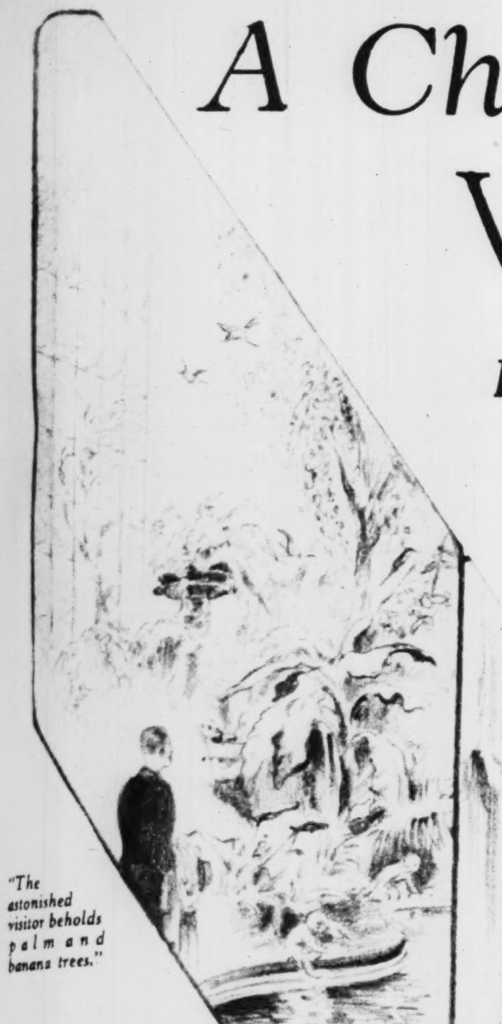
A Chicago Architect's HOUSE of WONDERS



Benjamin H. Marshall's studio villa on Lake Michigan.

Disappearing Roofs and Banquet Tables That Rise Fully Laden Out of the Floor Are Commonplace in Benjamin Marshall's Studio Villa.



"The astonished visitor beholds palm and banana trees."

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CHICAGO.

BENJAMIN H. MARSHALL'S business is that of designing and building luxurious hotels. Such well-known Chicago hostelries as the Edgewater Beach, the Blackstone and the Drake owe their origin to this eminent architect. So do others. But in building utilitarian structures such as hotels are, Benjamin Marshall never was able to satisfy his artistic urge. For 30 years he dreamed of erecting an edifice which would permit him to "turn himself loose." Finally, when he was many times a millionaire, he realized his dream. The result was his amazing studio villa at Wilmette, on the Lake Michigan shore, a few miles north of Chicago. There is nothing quite like it anywhere else in the world. With its pink stucco walls rising in splendor above the blue waters of Lake Michigan, it constitutes a sort of fairy castle, an unreal world, and yet almost a complete world in itself. To artists, writers and students it has become in the five years of its existence a Mecca and a wellspring of inspiration. To travelers from afar it is a sight almost comparable to the Taj Mahal at Agra. And by virtually everybody it is hailed as an eighth wonder of the universe.

"This is the mechanical age," says the designer in speaking of his dream castle. "So art must bow to mechanisms. But not completely. Not to the extent of submerging art to mechanical utility. I have tried here to combine the highest in art with the utmost in utility. And I believe I have succeeded."

The awestruck visitor has no thought of disagreeing with him. Just what it is he has succeeded in doing hardly appears at first glance. There is only the realization that it is something colossal. But as the tour proceeds through the 40 rooms of the wonder palace, one set of marvels succeeds another until the art treasures from Italy, Greece and Egypt, the plants and birds from the South Seas, the exotic effects from India, China and Japan, and the doors, windows and furniture from medieval Spain and modern Algiers all fit themselves into the architectural and decorative scheme, making an harmonious whole.

BUT it is not only the art treasures and curios from the four corners of the earth that make the Marshall studio the most remarkable structure in the Chicago area. At the touch of hidden buttons, silently running mechanical devices work transformations that form a continual source of surprise and delight to the architect's guests. Half of the building, which rises one story on the Sheridan road and three stories on the lake front, is devoted to architectural work. It is the studio. Here 40 draftsmen and engineers are busy on routine building work—more than likely the plans for another big hotel. The other half, which is the most remarkable part, serves as a playground for Marshall, his family and his friends.

If uninformed of what lies ahead, the visitor enters this unusual playground almost without suspicion. The only suggestion that something extraordinary may be ahead is the long and severely modeled hall guarded by several sets of fifteenth century iron doors. Even in the reception room, where a medieval crucifix is flanked on each side by a beautiful Raphael and Michael Angelo painting, little hint is given of what the place really holds. But from the reception room the guest steps into a loggia and literally a different world. To his right and left are furnishings and art objects from ancient Egypt and Italy of the Middle Ages. Before him lies a scene from a tropical isle.

EVEN with a blizzard raging outside, the astonished visitor beholds palm and banana trees flourishing in a temperature kept at 80 degrees the year around. Richly colored birds from Samoa and the Fiji Islands fly about. Tropical flowers are blooming. The scent of jasmine, orchids, gardenias and buginvillaea scent the air. Enormous and brilliant chrysanthemums are in bloom.

The garden, 75 by 150 feet, is entirely inclosed in glass. In its center is an irregular, crescent-shaped pool. The water is turquoise in hue as a result of the blue-green tiling copied after the mosaic floors of the Temple of Karnak at Luxor, Egypt. In winter, the garden forms a tropical oasis in the snow and sleet of Chicago's climate. In summer, the first of the famous Marshall mechanical devices is utilized to make the garden a part of the Illinois outdoors. The transformation is as swift as if done by the waving of a magic wand. A concealed button is pressed and the huge glass roof, 50 feet from the floor, rolls aside and disappears. Pressing of another button causes the glass front facing the lake to descend silently into the foundations of the building. The garden then becomes a part of the lake shore landscape. It is all a bit uncanny.

Not only is the garden so equipped for letting in the sun and air. The studio is built on a projecting point, with the wide sweep of Lake Michigan in front and the neat harbor of the Wilmette Yacht Club on the north side. Virtually all the rooms facing the lake on either of these sides have glass fronts, which disappear at the touch of electric buttons. So, also, with a large part of the roof. Many of the upper rooms are glass-topped, and this glass slides into the walls at the will of the owner. The roofs are especially a source of pride to the builder, for Marshall is a bitter foe of unsightly roofs. They are not only inartistic, he argues, but also unnecessary. To show how beauty can be achieved in roofs just as easily as unsightliness he has made all of his roofs of glass or sod. Where it was not practicable to use glass, he sodded the roof and decorated it with flowers and shrubbery.

The picture, with one sodded roof overlooking another at irregular heights, has something of the hanging-garden effect that is vastly pleasing. Few architects, perhaps, could have contrived to get so many different effects and contrasts without creating an architectural monstrosity. But the whole ensemble at Wilmette is one of proportion.

In the Chinese pagoda the floor is covered with quilted satin.

The indoor garden is worth half a day's exploring itself, for it contains more than a hundred varieties of trees, plants and flowers from the South Sea Islands. At least part of them are in bloom the year around. Jasmine bloomed in October, and early November found the tropical chrysanthemums in full flower. Others follow throughout the winter months, so that it is possible, with blizzards howling outside, to see the daintiest and tenderest blossoms just through the glass wall from a snow bank. Besides the tropical birds and flowers, there are numerous small pieces of statuary scattered about. There are little walks hidden by the luxurious foliage and there are rustic benches brought from the other side of the earth. A springboard projects over one end of the crystal pool. The Prince of Wales and Charles Chaplin have dived into it.

Leaving the garden, the visitor enters the drawing room, or Marshall's private studio. Here more wonders are to be seen. It is an enormous chamber, richly furnished and decorated with life-sized figures in marble. Luxurious divans and great arm chairs may be counted by the dozen. Priceless paintings are set on easels and the wall is covered with moss-colored velour hangings, as is also the ceiling. The windows are hidden. Illumination is obtained from 800 concealed electric bulbs.

BUT with all its artistic atmosphere, the practicability of the great room is readily apparent. A French sedan chair conceals a telephone—one of a half-dozen in the room. The studio building houses a branch telephone exchange and the owner can conjure a telephone out of the most unlikely place, and from almost any spot in the room.

At one end of the chamber is a miniature stage, with lighting arrangements equal to those of any theater in the world. In one corner, at the opposite end, is a richly carved pulpit from an Old World Church, but it isn't so entirely a pulpit as it appears, for it contains a very modern steel safe. Above it is a motion picture projecting machine which serves purposes both of pleasure and business. When the architect wishes to convince a client of the advantages of this or that type of building plans, he shows them on a silken curtain to illustrate his point.

By the clearance of a few pieces of furniture and the pressing of a few buttons, another surprise is sprung. The drawing room is converted into a banquet hall. The front part of the stage disappears and from underneath emerge tables and chairs for 75 guests. All is done almost in the twinkling of an eye. The table comes up fully set and with the first course of the dinner ready.

It is in the "yacht," however, that most guests are interested in these days of Volsteadism. Yachts somehow are understood to be beyond the jurisdiction of Volsteadism, whether they are at sea or not. This one is not at sea, or even on the lake. It is built adjoining the big drawing room. It is small but complete. The entrance is not noticed until the host presses one of his numerous magic buttons. Then appears the cabin of a small vessel. There are three stools on each side and in the rear a comfortable buffet seat. In the foreground is what appears to be a bar—and it is.

Mr. Marshall presses another button, and over this bar is seen Ambrose Lighthouse in the distance, with a rather rough sea between. The "yacht" seems to rise and fall with the swell of the waves. The illusion is perfect.

LOST IN THE LIBYAN DESERT FOR SIX DAYS

Harrowing Ordeal of Three Sportsmen, Rescued by an Airplane, Who Drank Their Own Blood to Slake Their Raging Thirst.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CAIRO, Egypt.

IT WAS before dawn of a recent morning when Signor Gino Cristiani and Ibrahim Bey Fuad set out from here with a chauffeur and guide. They made for the Libyan desert beyond the Pyramids. Their object was a few hours hunting, a brief pleasure jaunt away from the city.

Ibrahim Bey Fuad, an official of the Egyptian royal household, and Signor Cristiani, his Italian friend, were seemingly well prepared for their few hours away from Cairo. They carried four one-litre flasks of water, a flask of coffee, 10 loaves of bread, two brace of pigeons, two pounds of meat, a tin of tongue and one of sardines. For their car they had three spare tins of petrol. They were, in short, nicely fixed for picnicking.

But they did not return to Cairo that night. Instead, a week later they were found wandering in the desert's hell, naked, blackened by the sun, maddened by thirst so terrible that in their torture they had drunk their own blood. All but the guide. This fellow, a Bedouin, had left the party to find succor. He had become lost.

When the party had set out that pleasant day, they drove past the Pyramids, then stopped their machine and spent an hour or so hunting gazelle. But by 10:30 o'clock in the morning the sun was beginning to beat down in its usual morning fierceness. They decided to return to Cairo.

On the way one of the party remarked that he disliked to return so soon, and suggested that they try their hunting luck in a new place. The guide objected, confessing that he did not know the route proposed, but they turned off among the sand hills. An hour later they had a satisfying meal. They meant to be in Cairo by dinner time; they threw away most of the left-over provisions, not dreaming this was to be their last meal for six days.

There are many sandhills in this section. The machine had to twist and turn deviously to travel among them, and soon the party was out of sight of the Pyramids. The Pyramids, it seems, were one landmark the guide knew, but once they were out of sight, he was lost.

NIGHT came, and nowhere on the horizon could they find the lights of Cairo. Their petrol gave out. Philosophically they lay down in the car, expecting to find their way, or aid, when daylight came.

At dawn the four men set out in opposite directions. They returned weary, without finding a single indication of the route or any possible source of aid, even having difficulty in again reaching the machine.

But the guide would bring them out of the scrape. He would go to Gizeh, fetch food, water and petrol, and soon they would be in Cairo.

The sportsmen and the chauffeur watched him disappear among the sand hills. Help, they felt, was not far off. As the heat grew more intense, they drank what water remained in the radiator. The sand was blistering hot, and it was impossible to remain inside the car while the sun beat down on its top. The men crouched down on the sand in its shadow and waited.

Their thirst was maddening. All through the next day—Sunday, the third day since they had left Cairo—they waited in agony. Night brought some relief from the scorching heat, but it brought, too, the certainty that they could not expect aid from Gizeh. They must themselves find civilization or perish.

Monday morning they set out for the Pyramids. They were going in the wrong direction. They trudged hopelessly, stubbornly. The annoyance of loose footing smothered them under a sense of futility. It swelled to a grotesque, stupefying torture. They tore off the clothing that seemed to choke them, and then the sun blistered. Thirst was a horror that filled the universe. First one, then another, then the third gashed his arm and drank his own blood.

All day Monday, and then another day in hell, and then another, and they reached the well named Hell's Ravine. A well and a sheltering cave! It was heaven to them. They flung themselves down in the grateful shadows of the cave. This was their salvation; airplanes at that moment were circling the region in search of them.

For their guide, himself lost for two days after he left the hunters, had fallen in with a caravan of Bedouins. With them he went to Maghagha, and then reached Cairo by train. He told the authorities that the automobile had broken down, and his companions were lost in the desert. Camel corps and motor patrols were organized and sent out in vain, but the Royal Air Force did not give up the search.

Thursday morning, the sixth day after the sportsmen set out and the morning following their arrival at Hell's ravine, they heard the drone of an airplane motor. They staggered into the open. One of them fired several shots from a rifle, but the roar of the motor prevented the pilot from hearing the signal, and the plane disappeared in the distance. The sight of it growing smaller and smaller and finally fading on the horizon was almost more than the frantic men could bear, but now they had hope that it might be, as it actually was, one of a searching party.

At daybreak, a week after they left Cairo for a few hours' pleasure, the starving men were up and scanning the sky. About 10 o'clock they sighted a plane. They were so weak now that only by a supreme effort could one tie a bit of cloth to a rifle and wave it as a signal.

FOR an agonized moment the airplane held its course. Then it swerved, circled, yes, it swooped down and landed near the signaler.

His rescuers found him clad only in a shirt, burned pot-black by the sun, and so delirious the aviators judged he had been driven crazy by his sufferings. The other two crouched, raving and naked, in the cave.

Saline injections were given to them on the spot. They were carried on stretchers to the airplane and in a matter of minutes were at the aerodrome at Heliopolis. In the hospit they soon were well on the way to recovery, despite the closest call any of them is likely to have for some time to come.

A Tramp Miner Became a Multi-Millionaire Over Night

George Campbell Carson's Long Fight to Recover Rights to An Invention Rewarded by a Supreme Court Decision.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

LOS ANGELES.

IN a modest cottage on Sunset boulevard an old "desert rat," one George Campbell Carson, lives on borrowed money. He is small and sandy-haired, and he has the stooping "miner's back" of 40 years' prospecting, the homely speech and manner born of life as a tramp, a cook, a down-and-outer on the San Francisco water front. Last spring his wife tried to have him declared insane. But one recent morning he woke up to find that he was a great inventor and wealthy enough to buy the cottage he lives in and every other cottage for blocks around.

The Supreme Court had just upheld patent rights for which Carson has fought for 10 years, that meant that Carson is to receive from the Anaconda Copper Mining Company, more than $20,000,000.

Other suits are pending against other concerns which use the side-feeding ore furnaces invented by Carson 20 years ago. It is said that the decision affects, altogether, some 15 of the largest mining companies in the country. But Carson has to wait until the Anaconda's auditors complete a report before he will obtain his first royalties, and while he waits he finds it not unpleasant to recall the long, hard trail that led to "pay dirt" in the courts.

"I was born 60 years ago near La Crosse, Kansas, on my daddy's farm," the old prospector relates. "It wasn't a good farm. The grasshoppers ate the corn and wheat most every year and what the grasshoppers didn't get the drouth did, so I struck out from home when I was 14 and took to bumming along the railroads going west.

"Pretty soon I had drifted into the copper country of Arizona. Silver and copper those days was just opening up. I prospected up and down the country, getting as far north as the Yukon and as far south as Old Mexico.

"I got to be a practical geologist, my lawyer calls it. I wasn't any good at calling off the names of all the minerals, but no man could fool me on a copper lode and I knew paying silver rock when I saw it.

"In 1886 I discovered a mine near Clifton, Ariz. Men called it 'The Wonderful Mine.' There was the best surface outcropping of ore you ever saw—all surface ore. I'd have made my pile right there if I had stayed with it. But I got discouraged and sold out for $1500. I was a plumb fool then.

"After that I drifted from one mining town to another; joined an expedition of the American Geographical Society into Old Mexico; got back and went to work around the copper smelters. They were using the old top-feeder furnaces then. Men had to work on top and in front and it sure was hell. I've seen stout old-timers fall in faints from the heat and gases. I had sense enough to see these furnaces weren't as good as they should be. They only handle about 200 tons of ore at a charge and waste a lot.

"I GOT to thinking and figuring about a better furnace. I went back East and worked for a little while around the big smelters at Pittsburg. They were using reverberatory furnaces with the blasts of fire passing sideways instead of up and down. That was an improvement, because the gases passed out the side instead of the top, but they were still feeding them from the top. The ore was put in hoppers and dropped down on the fire bed.

"My idea was to rig up a side-feeding reverberatory furnace that would handle more ore and be easier on the men. So I figured out a way to do it and drew up some plans. Then I tried to get them patented.

"The patent office didn't like the way I explained how the furnace worked. They said I hadn't spelled the words right. I wrote it again. Still they said some words weren't spelled legal. I wrote the plans five times before they got patented.

"I got my patent in 1906. Then I started out to sell it. It sure was tough plugging. I visited all the big smelters in the country. One vice president of one of the big silver and copper companies talked to me and examined my plans. He said, 'Your furnace won't work, but we believe in encouraging inventors. We'll give you $2000 for your patent.'

"I said, 'Nope, I'm going to make you see that the furnace will work.' He just laughed at me.

"A few years later I happened to visit one of the smelters I had tried to sell my patent to and they were using a furnace just like mine. I wanted to know who gave them the right to use my furnace.

"They laughed at me. 'Your furnace?' they said. I said, 'I invented that furnace, and it's my patent.' But it was no use. They said some other man had got the patent.

"In 1915, nine years after I got my patent, while I was still trying to sell my furnace I read an article in a mining journal that described my furnace to a 'T.' The article said all the big mining companies had taken to using the furnace, but it didn't say 'George Carson is the inventor.'

"I realized then that someone had stolen my patent. Here I was knocking around the country, lots of times sleeping in the open with a rifle at my side and a six-gun for a pillow, without much money, and they using my furnace and giving nothing for it."

It was a long road from an old prospector's meager savings to an inventor's millions. He was encouraged by his aged mother alone. Others laughed.

But Carson never gave up. He took a cheap room in the "Sailor's Rest," on the San Francisco water front. He kept visiting lawyers' offices, shuffling in apologetically with his patent papers and drawings. Repeatedly he told his story and repeatedly he had to gather up his papers and shuffle out, disappointed. But after two years a lucky chance led him to Attorney John H. Miller, and the old miner finally succeeded in winning the confidence of a lawyer.

Miller had so much faith in his client's claim that the offered to finance the fight and filed suit against the American Smelting and Refining Company of Tacoma. After a long fight the defendant succeeded in changing the suit from a case in equity to a scientific dispute on blast furnace principles. The Judge, when the issues thus became obscure, threw the case out of court on the ground that the defendant's patents were basic and preceded Carson's.

DEFEATED, the old prospector was almost ready to give up. But Miller raised money to appeal the case and the United States Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francisco more than two years ago reversed the lower court's decision and ruled that the American Smelting and Refining Company had infringed on Carson's patent. It ordered the company to pay Carson damages and back royalties on his furnace.

That decision marked the turn of the tide in Carson's fortunes.

Subsequently a similar suit was filed against the Anaconda Copper Company. On May 30 of this year the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals ruled that the company had infringed on Carson's patent and ordered it to account to him financially. It was this decision that was upheld on appeal by the United States Supreme Court the other day.

"What will I do with my money?" Carson meditated.

"Why, I'll establish a laboratory for myself—a laboratory where I can actually work, carry on real research, and perfect some ideas that have been knocking around in my head for a long time.

"I could try to improve humanity—but what a mess that would be! But maybe I can help humanity. Perhaps I can give it another invention, something indestructible, something that the people will always have."

IN MARCH,, 1927, Carson, who had been a bachelor up to that time, married Mrs. Hersee M. Gross of Beverly Hills, who had been married four times previously. A year later his wife had him committed as insane.

In a hearing before Judge Thomas C. Gould of Los Angeles Carson testified that his wife said he was "crazy" because he signed away some right so he could carry on litigation."

"There is no evidence this man is insane," the Court ruled. "He is dismissed."

The Carsons later issued a statement in which they declared the incident had been merely a domestic misunderstanding.

And now, Carson says, "We are waiting for the gold I never found."

A CURIOUS CASE OF A WOOLEN FETICH

As Revealed From Abroad.

THE interesting human document which follows came a few days ago from a troubled soul in London, a foreign manager for a New York clothing house. I have had to omit some of the mere intimate parts, but I reprint enough to illustrate my point. (Of course I may change my mind and decide not to make any point.) The letter:

"I am writing to you about the woolens we have recently shipped to our New York house for our Gentlemen's ready-to-wear suits and overcoats for autumn and winter.

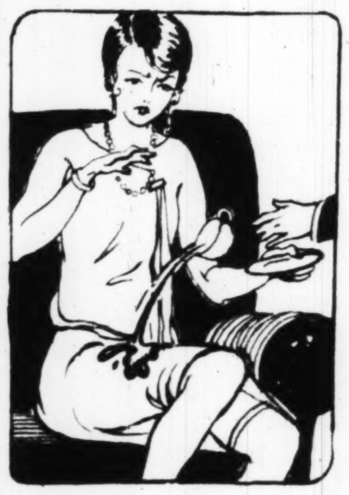
"Splendid fabrics, I can assure you. Fine hard-wearing, unfinished worsteds for business; rich longwool shetlands for informal wear; sturdy, durable cheviots for winter; soft, loungy Saxonies and outdoor tweeds of almost every description.

"The patterns, shades and mixtures are all of typically British character, and the care and skill taken in designing and tailoring these suits and overcoats in our own workrooms in New York City make this apparel really worth seeing."

Before analyzing this case, I may say that I do not know the writer. He has evidently heard of my interest in woolens, or perhaps read my book "Neuroses Caused by Cheviots."

NATURALLY I do not divulge his name. I can't make it out, anyhow. Looks like "Went" or "Nent," or something like that. We shall refer to him as Mr. Z, which will be short for Mr. Zinsmeissner, a better name than "Nent," anyway.

Beyond a doubt he has what we psychologists would call a woolen fetich. We know now that a woolen fetich is an undue fondness for wool. Kraft-Ebbing thought it was something made out of wool which you could throw about your shoulders in chill weather, as girls throw furs about their necks in summer to ward off the heat. Kraft-Ebbing did valuable work, but was not always right, notably in the case of Mrs. B., thirty-six, of Dresden, who was fond of killing her husbands. We know now, of course, that she was actuated by an insurance-collecting compulsion and could not help it, poor woman!



Beyond a doubt, we may also safely assume that Mr. Z, the woolen man, can be cured. The very fact that he has—may we say—"boiled over" and told his troubles to some, even a perfect stranger like the writer (and by the way, I am not a perfect stranger; I have my faults), is bound to bring him relief. "Splendid fabrics, I can assure you," he writes, in a rather pathetic groping for reassurance as to the quality of his woolens. Personally, I shall drop this fellow a line, telling him I just know his woolens are "splendid fabrics," and I think it would be nice if we all got together and sent him a round robin, or, better still, wrote him separate letters assuring him that we all think his woolens are "splendid fabrics."

His mind has obviously been dwelling too much on woolens. In my letter of advice I shall advise him to take up silk as a hobby. I shall advise him to cultivate some blonde young lady with a turned-up nose, who dresses entirely in silk, and take her to dinner once or twice a week. If he does this he will find that the woolens will not be so apt to prey on his mind. I'd be quite willing to bet that he has been going about entirely with ladies who dress in wool.

This is all right in moderation. Everybody likes girls who dress in wool. They unravel more easily than any other kind. But let us not make the mistake of thinking that there are no available ladies except those who do run to wool. I should certainly hesitate to warp my mind by excluding from my society all those charming females who prefer to dress in silk, satin, batiste, pongee, voile, moire, nainsook, muslin, cambric, linen, taffeta, chiffon, tulle, poplin, velvet, gingham, dotted swiss, chenille, crepe, terrycloth, gabardine, brocade, challie, chintz, cotton or rep.

I USED to keep company with a girl who wore rep all the time and I recall making a very funny remark one afternoon at a fashionable tea when some ungainly oaf spilled a cup of tea over her frock.

"He has spoiled your 'rep,'" I remarked, meaning, of course, to pun on the word "reputation," but my flame took it amiss and dropped me like a hot cake. However, I soon learned to console myself with a voile and a couple of nainsooks.

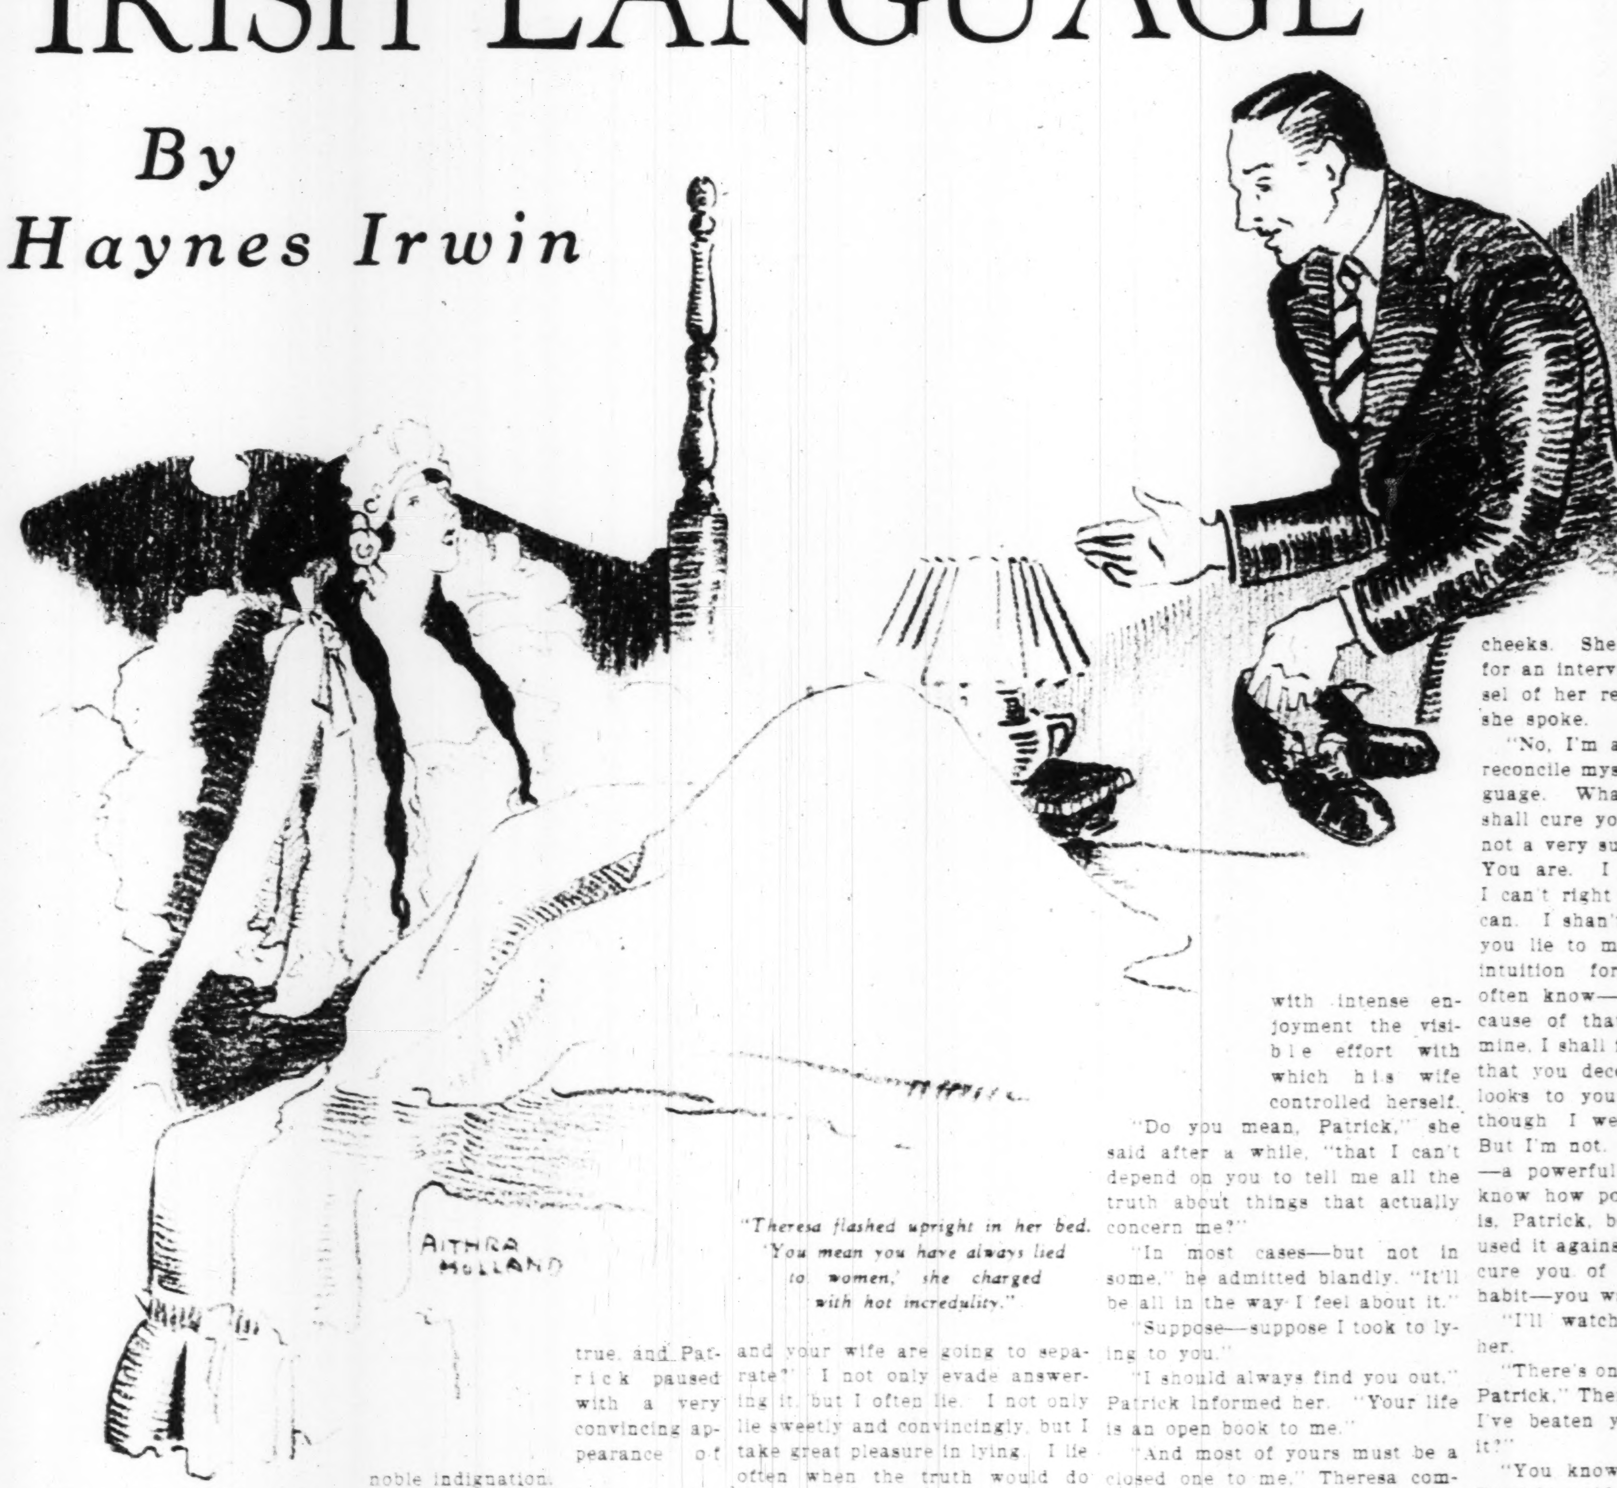
THE IRISH LANGUAGE

By

Inez Haynes Irwin



"Theresa flashed upright in her bed. 'You mean you have always lied to women,' she charged with hot incredulity."

THERESA HALLIDAY must have heard the front door close, though that was accomplished with ever so meticulous a quiet. She must have heard her husband's footsteps—though their slow succession was ever so carefully padded—and in the interval must have braced herself for the coming combat. But she could not have presented, either in face or figure, any intimation of the frontal attack she was about to make. For after a single glance thrown in her direction and an airy, "Did I wake you, my darling?" Patrick started to take his coat off. But Theresa added to her quiet "No, I haven't been asleep yet" a "Please come over here, Patrick. I want to talk with you."

Patrick heard something in her voice which turned his powerful head—not with the sudden jerk which was his natural impulse, but with a casual motion of an aroused caution—in her direction. Was anything wrong? He walked over to her bed, every antenna of his sensitive politician personality waving a protective barrage for his approach. Yes, there was something—she looked different. Yet in her pale-blue reading jacket, with its trimmings of white marabou, the coffee-colored boudoir cap, with its fringes in pale pink of rosebuds, Theresa was everything that was feminine.

The abnormal quality was a seriousness that seemed to pale the warm cream of her face and to enlarge the wide gray of her eyes. Perhaps, however, Patrick—accustomed to thinking swiftly and now thinking with an abnormal velocity—decided it was the contact of the long braids of black hair, brought forward over her ears, which produced the one effect; the position of her head on the pillow, the other. The effort to look up at him at the slant at which she lay, threw her lashes so far back that their points seemed to prick through the transparent eyelids.

"Patrick," she said directly, "last night when you telephoned me that you were at the club, you were really at the Mannerings', weren't you?"

"I—that is—I"—— Patrick actually stumbled. And yet, while he wondered how she had found this out, while yet he realized that the inevitable first quarrel was on, he made one of the lightning decisions which were characteristic of him—this time to tell the truth.

"Yes."

"Before we go any further," Theresa went on, "let me tell you that for some time now I have known that you were deceiv—lying to me."

"You've been spying on me!" In dealing with women this had been one of Patrick's favorite coups—the accustomary counter attack which, if consistently maintained, deflected attention from the main issue. Theresa was not at all like other women, but these tactics seemed about to succeed with her.

"No, I have never spied on you, Patrick. I love you"——

AH, the fight was over before it began. Patrick made ready to bend to the kiss of forgiveness and reconciliation. And then——

"—but not enough to spy on you."

Patrick waived the line of counter-accusal.

"Then what gave you this idea?" He might just as well be direct, for with Theresa he never had to be—never got anywhere by being—either casual or subtle.

Theresa answered with her usual disconcerting and disorganizing candor. "The first time—quite by accident. Jim dropped something."

Patrick groaned inwardly. Jim Dolan, the most devoted of friends, had holes in mind and memory. Jim had occasionally plunged him into political hot water; now he had thrown him into the matrimonial geyser.

"Then," Theresa continued, "for the first time I developed a definite suspicion. I had occasionally experienced a vague uneasiness in regard to you and your doings—but I dismissed that as disloyal. Now—you see, Patrick, I am the easiest person on earth to deceive. Never did unfaithful husband"——

Patrick interrupted. And he threw a bolt of steel into his voice that augmented it to a roar. This often terrified women. "I don't like that word unfaithful!"

It did not terrify Theresa. "I take it back," she instantly offered, though it was apparent that she did not hear his roar; that she only was reconsidering her own words when she spoke.

PATRICK had been sincere enough in his protest. He had not been and had no intention of being unfaithful to Theresa. With any other woman in the world, he reflected ruefully, that statement would have led instantly up a squirrel track of argument, down which he would ultimately lead her, through all the harsh stages of a violent quarrel, to the sweetest of reconciliations.

"I did not mean to use that word," Theresa apologized. "It had never occurred to me, Patrick, to doubt your fidelity. I'll begin again. Never did a lying husband have an easier victim. I am naturally unsuspicious. I take people at their word. It never occurs to me to question—but, fortunately for myself, I am a good listener and have a good memory. I remember everything — everything. All kinds of things stay in my memory—much of it trash that I wish I could get rid of. When you tell me something, it sticks. Later, when somebody tells me the exact opposite, that sticks, too. About the Mannerings last night, Nellie—of course, quite innocently—happened to have heard all about the party. Her sister is the Mannerings' maid."

Of course! What a fool he had been. Perhaps he could not with dignity manage his wife's Nellie—but he could certainly drop a delicate hint to the Mannerings' Jane.

"Now, having answered your question, Patrick, I want you to answer mine. What object have you in lying to me?"

Patrick did not like this question, but he replied immediately: "Public life gets me into strange mix-ups. You wouldn't believe the things people confide in me. They have to tell me them, of course, because they're generally asking me to get them out of a hole, or some member of their family, or some friend. I warned you when we were married that I'd never tell you these things. And I never will. I have never broken a confidence yet—and I wouldn't for all the wives on earth." This was true, and Patrick paused with a very convincing appearance of noble indignation.

"I understand that perfectly," Theresa informed him. "You know that I told you when we had our long talk about these things before our marriage that I did not expect you to share other people's secrets with me. Have I ever told you anything that's been confided to me?"

So people confided in Theresa, too? This was a new point of view to Patrick. And yet, he reflected uneasily, they would, of course, because of that quiet of hers, that simplicity, that—what was the quality he always was trying to name? Well, power described it as closely as any word he had ever found. But who? Herron, of course, always sought her out—but it was not likely that Herron . . . . When? . . . Where? . . . And, most particularly, what? Some day he would take Theresa apart and find what these confidences were. A woman had no matrimonial right to harbor secrets from her husband. Patrick could drag a secret from any woman if he only had a lead. Theresa was not, however, any woman.

"It's not that I'm talking about at all," Theresa continued. "And you know it! What I'm asking you is why, when I freely give you such liberty as no other woman I know accords her husband, when I ask you no questions in regard to affairs that do not concern me—why do you lie?"

HOW well she was phrasing all this, Patrick thought. Of course, though, she had had time to prepare. But then there was no question about it. Theresa's mind was superior to that of the average woman. Besides, she had had an education—advantages. His hunch to tell her the truth was the right one. He would go through with it now to the very end. It was going to be a real battle; as far as women were concerned, the king of battles. A kind of joy in combat warmed him.

"Well, Theresa," he began, in the quietest of conversational tones, "it's this way. As men go, I think I'm rather an honest guy. I pay my debts, I keep my word. I carry out my promises. I tell you the truth in all matters that concern money, business and politics. I'm careful about not repeating gossip. Up to that point, I'm as pure as the saints. Beyond—well, perhaps I'm as black as the devil himself. I've always held a theory that certain things are nobody's business but my own. If anybody asks me a private and personal question—you know what I mean. Suppose somebody said to me: 'Is it true that you and your wife are going to separate?' I not only evade answering it, but I often lie. I not only lie sweetly and convincingly, but I take great pleasure in lying. I lie often when the truth would do better." He paused and met with a square equability his wife's lovely, listening look and the long pause in which that look turned to a considering one.

"I think I can understand that," Theresa commented softly. "I suppose, though, in the case you cite, I should say, 'I prefer not to discuss my private affairs.'"

"THEN, of course, the son-of-a-gun would know he'd guessed right," Patrick asserted with enjoyment.

"However," Theresa went on, as though he had not interrupted, "that's aside from the mark. I'll admit that point. I'm not talking about that. I'm talking about your lying to me—not in regard to matters on which we're agreed are not my concern—but in regard to those that are. I'll ask you again, and I'll make it a particular case. Patrick, why did you lie to me about being at the Mannerings'?"

Patrick almost laughed aloud. Of course, he was going to win. He always won against women. But—"That kid's good," he commented inwardly. "You can't move the previous question on her! She's got logic!" So more of her own medicine—candor.

"Well, the thing is this, Theresa," he continued with his most agreeable air. "I don't treat a woman just the way I treat a man. I can't. I don't know how to. I decide in my own mind just how much of the truth is good for them—and give them that much. Perhaps I don't play fair with them, although I'll say I'm willing to put my record against any other man's. I don't think they're to be trusted with the truth."

Theresa flashed upright in her bed. "You mean you have always lied to women," she charged with hot incredulity. "You mean you have lied, whenever you wanted, to me?"

Ah, she was angry. The end was in sight. Having aroused her wrath, he would begin to step. "I don't put it that way to myself," he explained affably. "Being half Irish, I say that when I talk to women I speak the Irish language."

"I won't stand for that," Theresa protested stormily. "I'm just as much Irish as you are and I tell the truth. So do all my friends and yours. Of course, I've always known that sometimes you do speak what you call the Irish language. I know what you mean; being agreeable and flattering. But you can do that and tell the truth, too."

"I'm afraid I can't," Patrick asserted with suavity. He watched with intense enjoyment the visible effort with which his wife controlled herself.

"Do you mean, Patrick," she said after a while, "that I can't depend on you to tell me all the truth about things that actually concern me?"

"In most cases—but not in some," he admitted blandly. "It'll be all in the way I feel about it."

"Suppose—suppose I took to lying to you."

"I should always find you out," Patrick informed her. "Your life is an open book to me."

"And most of yours must be a closed one to me," Theresa commented. She lay back on the pillow, each of her beautiful hands holding straight upward, over the shining expanse of linen, the blue-bowed end of a black braid—and meditated.

Comfortable, even with a secret amusement—the basis of his enjoyment a very solid sense of security—Patrick watched her eyes. Blazings . . . . stars . . . . odd, irregular flamed lights . . . formed there. Suddenly Theresa dropped her lids, and when next she raised them all those fires were out.

"Patrick," she said, "I shall never lie to you. Perhaps that might be one way of keeping your affection. I don't know. And I do think I could get away with it at times. I give myself credit for that. Women can always beat a man's game in small matters. But I shan't lie. I love you—or I don't love you—enough for that. Nor will I ask you questions about what doesn't concern me. If by accident I do, I shall consider that you have a perfect right—not to evade or lie—but to say: 'I can't discuss that with you.' But you must tell me the truth in regard to what is, after all, my own affair. You must! I don't think you're playing fair not to"——

PATRICK made a faint outward deprecatory gesture with a pair of hands powerful and almost as shapely as hers. His gesture said, for him: "So be it—but that's the kind of man I am!"

"—beacuse, you see, you married me first and told me this afterward. You once said to me that you did not mind playing any game, as long as the rules were explained to you before you went into it. I thought that a noble—a sporting—line of conduct. But you're not sporting with me at all. You expect me to play the game. Yet you change the rules while the game is in progress."

Logically, of course, she had him. Patrick recognized that. But he only smiled and said: "It's altogether different with women. I was talking then about the rules of lies as they affect men. There are no rules between men and women—or rather every married pair lays down its own rules. No, I promised at the altar to be faithful to you. That promise I'll keep. As to what are my private affairs, I shall use my own judgment as to what you'll know or when. It will save you a good deal of distress, my dear, if you think I'm not lying to you—only speaking the Irish language—and then put the whole thing out of your mind."

Theresa's inky lashes swept her cheeks. She played meditatively for an interval with the blue tassel of her reading jacket. Then she spoke.

"No, I'm afraid I shall never reconcile myself to your Irish language. What's more, I think I shall cure you of using it. I am not a very subtle person, Patrick. You are. I don't lie. You do. I can't right lies with lies. You can. I shan't always know when you lie to me. I've not enough intuition for that. But I shall often know—and in the end, because of that good memory of mine, I shall find out many things that you deceived me about. It looks to you now, I'm sure, as though I were pretty hopeless. But I'm not. I have one weapon—a powerful one. You don't know how powerful a weapon it is, Patrick, because I have never used it against you. I'm going to cure you of this Irish language habit—you watch!"

"I'll watch!" Patrick assured her.

"There's only one thing I'll ask, Patrick," Theresa went on. "When I've beaten you, will you admit it?"

"You know I would," was all Patrick said, "but it's a losing fight you're engaging in, my darling."

"PERHAPS." Theresa smiled enigmatically. Then: "You see, I want you to be a Congressman sometime. I want to help to make a big man of you."

"God speed you, my dear." Patrick studied her curiously. She had lost all her anger. She showed a strange calm. What on earth did she mean. As he bent to her good-night kiss he was conscious of a slight sinking of the heart.

Then the political situation began suddenly but subtly to tangle. Herron would not say whether or not he was going to run for Assessor, although the time was fast approaching when he must make up his mind. Moreover, Patrick was not sitting quite as pretty in the political saddle as three months before. Lonigan had suddenly shown a spectacular power in a fight over the new tunnel in the Board of Supervisors. He had put up a terrific battle and won. The papers were full of him. How about—even Patrick heard these rumors—Lonigan for Assessor? Patrick was in a continual state of suppressed irritation. "Herron is the most close-mouthed fish I ever saw in my life," he fumed to Theresa. "Why doesn't the man know his own mind?"

"Sometimes I've wondered if it were a matter of Mrs. Herron's health," Theresa said. "She's always been so quiet socially. That isn't natural in a politician's wife."

"She's never had a sick day since I've known them," Patrick declared. "No, it's only that she's a dumb-bell."

"I like Mrs. Herron very much," Theresa asserted quietly, "and she likes me. She tries to show me that every time we meet."

"Well, she's all right," Patrick asserted. "Look at the color she has!"

"Yes, but"—— Theresa did not finish her sentence.

The situation prolonged itself.

And then Patrick was invited by the Dacey set to go for three days to Yosemite. The Dacey set invited Theresa, too. But although Patrick enjoyed the Dacey set very much himself, he had so little intention of letting Theresa mingle with them that he did not even extend the invitation to her. Moreover, as he knew very well, Theresa despised them—and with perfect justice. They were a roaring, drinking, dancing crowd, empty-headed, but with a wild capacity for enjoyment that had a sort of charm for Patrick. To be sure, with them, conversation consisted almost entirely of a description of that morning's "head" and an account, punct ed with shrieks of laughter, what they had done in that illu nated period which preceded th "head." The Yosemite trip w going to be "a wild one," th Dacey set prophesied to Patri They showed him their reserva Patrick felt that three days aw from San Francisco could do hi no harm. Other cars ga them a wide berth, or sometim even stopped at the side of th road and let them pass. The first night was a riot. The second night was so much of a Dacey kind of a night that it was almost noon before Patrick became him self again. And then he emerged into the light of the gorgeous Cal ifornia day only because Dacey had come galloping, obviously in a state of wild excitement, into his bedroom. "Say, the paper's full of news that'll make you sit up, Pat," he announced. "Herron's out. Last night there was a cau cus of the party machine and they indorsed Lonigan."

"WHAT!" Patrick demanded. He snatched the paper from Dacey's hand, ran through the big, black-headed morning's story, his face growing darker and darker. "I didn't think this could possibly happen," he said. "By God, somebody's going to pay for this! That Lonigan bunch just waited for me to get away to put this over." And then, the delicate political antenna apprising him that Dacey was not wholly lacking enjoyment in this situation, he broke off abruptly. "Well, Lonigan's a good man! A damn good man and a good fellow. If I couldn't get it myself, I am glad to see him win!"

But, of course, the pleasure had all gone out of the expedition for Patrick. He withdrew abruptly from the party and returned that night to San Francisco.

Theresa greeted him with her usual luminous calm.

"I hadn't the faintest idea Herron would make up his mind so suddenly," he said, after they had talked over the news.

Theresa did not answer. There was a moment of quiet. Something was in the air. Patrick was always instantly conscious of a "something in the air." He raised his head and glanced covertly at his wife. "Did you suspect it?" he asked.

Theresa lifted her head from the bit of embroidery on which she was working. "I knew it the instant he made up his mind," she said calmly.

"You knew it!" Patrick seemed to stiffen to iron where he sat. "You knew it! When did you know it, and how?"

"The afternoon of the day you went to Shasta, Herron told me here in this house."

"And you didn't tell me."

"NO. I went to the telephone to call your office. I couldn't get it. While I was waiting I called up Maud Dacey's house. I happened to cut into a conversation she was holding with her mother. Before I hung up I heard her say that she was going to Yosemite with a party of which you were a member. You had kissed me good-by for Shasta, and so I let you go to—Yosemite."

Patrick was livid. "Do you mean to tell me," he said in a steely voice, "that you were party to what, for all you knew, might be the political ruin of your husband?"

"No." Theresa preserved her emotionless serenity. "I was party to nothing of the sort. I only kept to the line of conduct that I warned you, when we had our talk six months ago, I should pursue. I told you then, Patrick, that I had one weapon with which to fight you—you and your lies. I told you you'd never suspect what that weapon was. You didn't. Now I'll tell you what it is. It's silence. Only that—silence. I told you that I had only two things, a good memory and a capacity for keeping my mouth shut. You said that I could not beat your game. I agreed with you, but I told you that I thought I could put some crimp in it. And you see, I have."

Patrick's livid look changed. He had a stricken air. "How did Herron come to tell you first of all?"

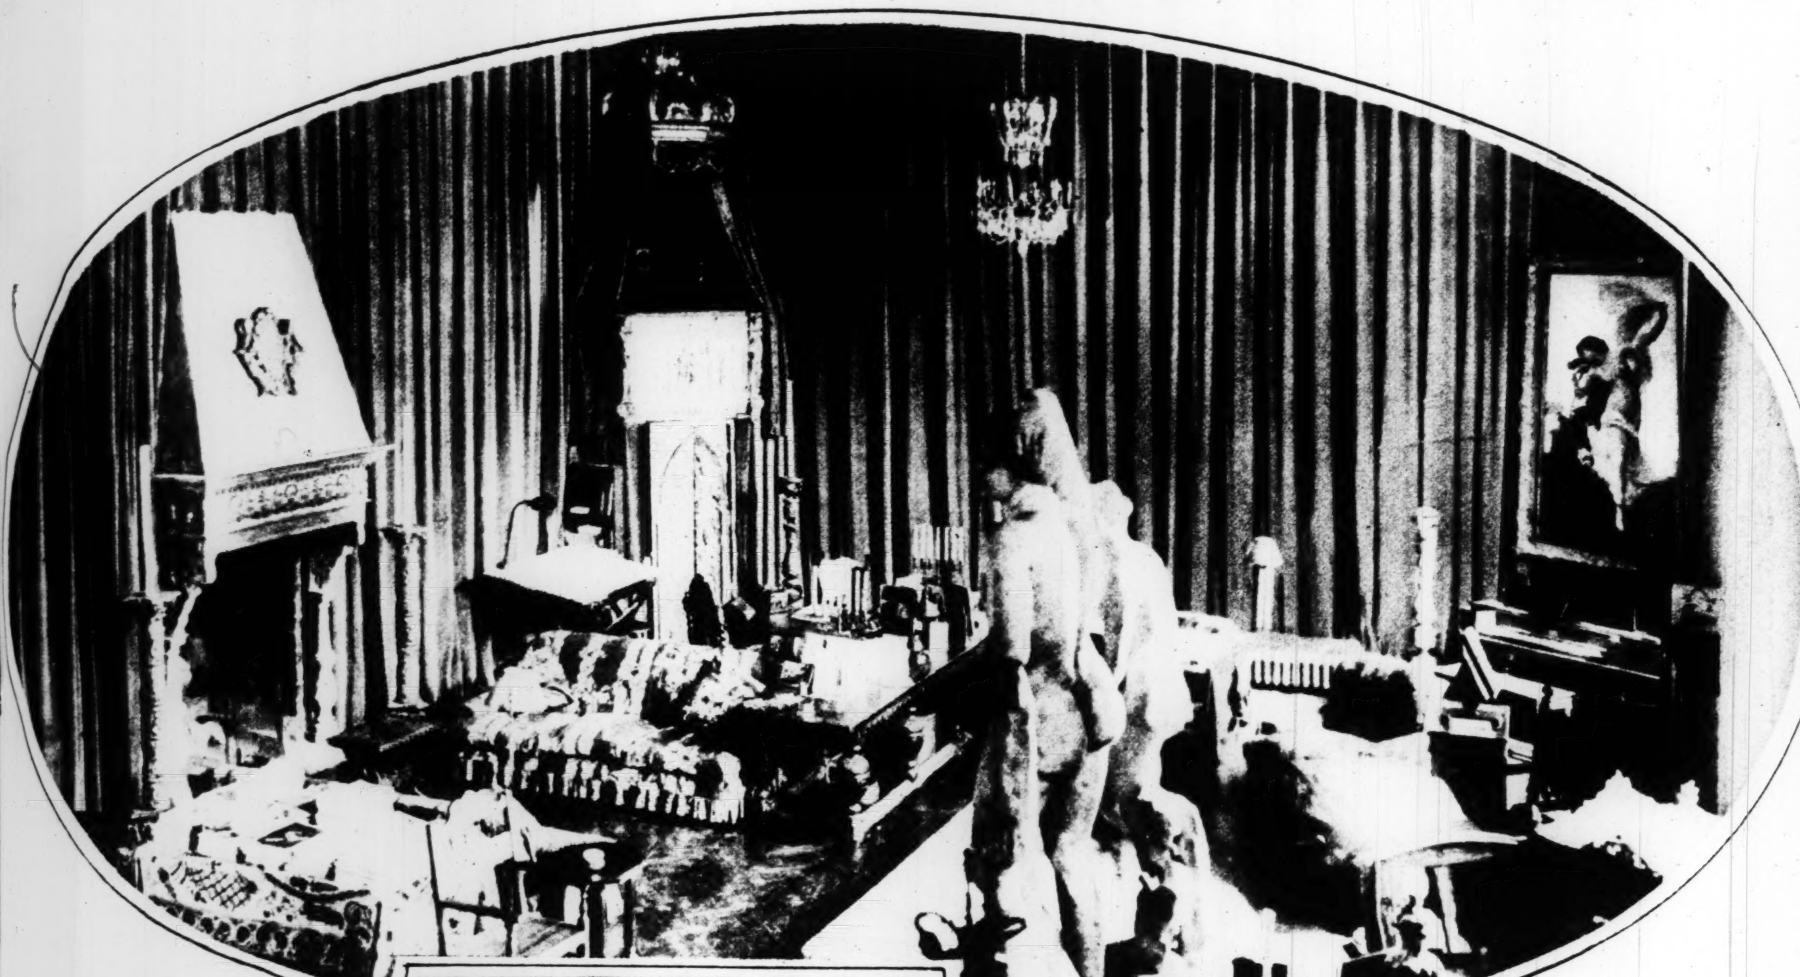
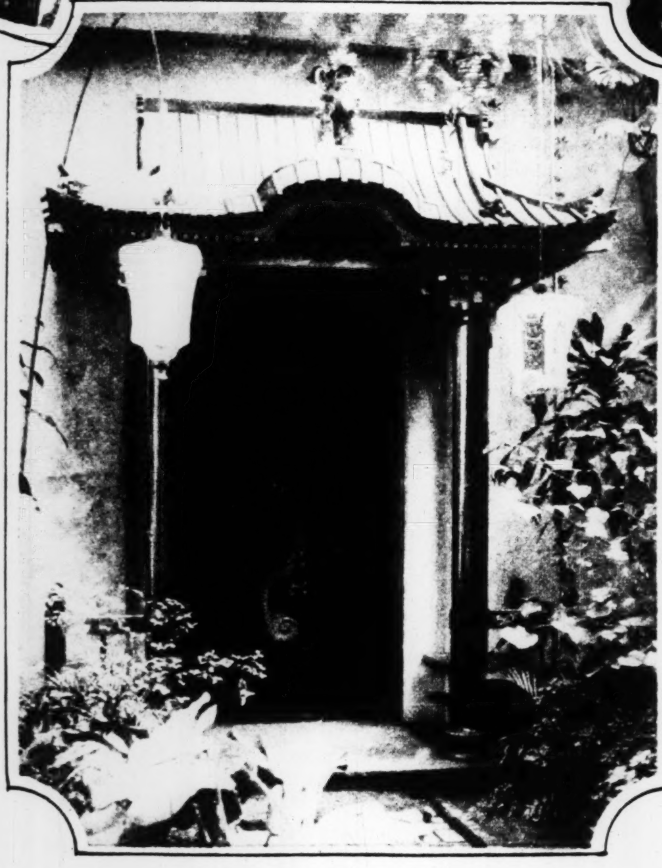
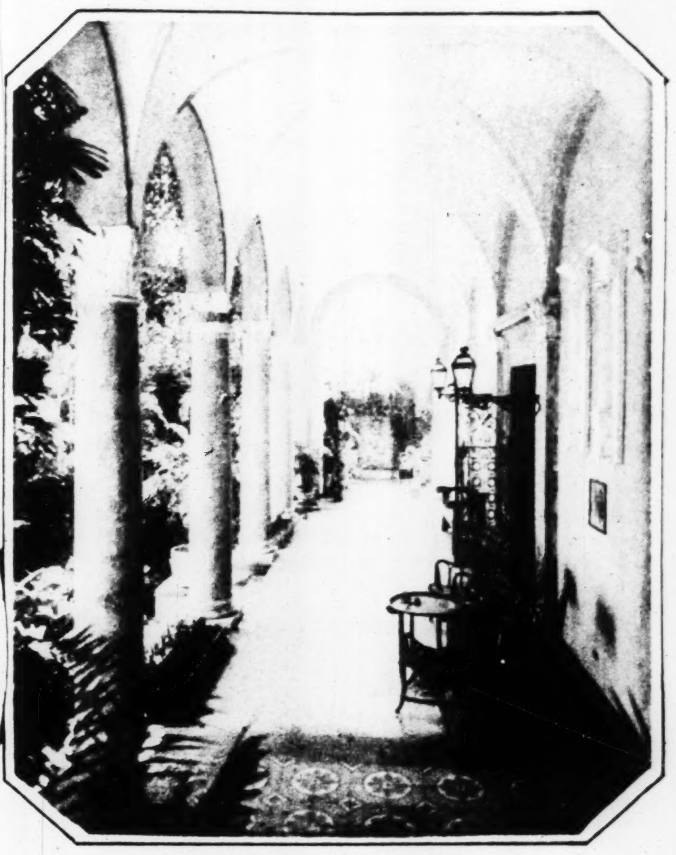
A Chicago Architect's House of Wonders



The drawing room.



The portal of the Chinese pagoda.



Loggia leading to the tropical garden.

(Concluded From Page 5.)

One cannot look in the lighthouse without feeling the roll and toss of the little vessel on which he is "riding." Yet the vessel is stationary and there is no real sea nor lighthouse visible. Another button is pressed and the "portholes" reveal mermaids disporting themselves in the near distance, clad in the conventional deep-sea costume of mermaids. Ulysses never beheld fairer sights in all his Odyssey. One leaves the "yacht" with genuine regret. He soon forgets it, however, when he proceeds to the mysterious regions upstairs.

HE enters these regions through a door taken from the De Medici palace in Rome, a relic which once belonged to Stanford White, the New York architect slain by Harry K. Thaw many years ago.

One finds four guest rooms upstairs, each furnished in a different period and style. Each represents the height of modern luxuriousness, combined with medieval comfort. The furnishings of the Spanish room were brought from Barcelona, Spain. The bed, which is of rococo design, is big enough to contain half a dozen people without crowding. Chairs, tables, rugs and drapes all carry out the same rose-tinted effect.

Another guest room, done in elephant gray muslin has a bed which is the granddaddy of them all. It is eight by ten feet and looks as if it would easily rest a baker's dozen of tired pilgrims. The other guest rooms are furnished in similar manner, with great, spacious beds, chairs and draperies harmonizing.

Two sides of the indoor garden are open balconies, stretches of never ending surprises and delights. Here, too, grows tropical foliage in luxuriance, with rare and brilliantly plumed birds nesting in the half-hidden depths. In the midst of this mass of greenery there is discovered a little Japanese tea house, brought bodily from Tokio. Instead of chairs, silken pillows are placed around on the floor. Walls of reed or split bamboo enhance the Oriental effect.

Proceeding a little farther along the balcony,, the visitor is given pause by an ornate dragon-carved wooden door. He is lucky if he gets beyond this door, for this is the entrance to the Chinese Love Temple, which is displayed only to the most honored guests.

The temple itself is a small private place of worship brought from Pekin. The floors are cushioned with silk and one must take off his shoes before treading upon the sacred cloth. Facing the door is a green gilded Buddha, said to be one of the most perfect in this country, and in the center of the floor is a small glass tank with Chinese goldfish.

Mr. Marshall, however, has his own ideas about temples, so on one side he has placed the Mandarin's bedroom, containing a huge Mandarin bed, also brought from Pekin. It occupies almost the entire room. On this bed, the Mandarin in other days was wont to receive his guests, smoke with them a friendly pipe of opium and while away the hours. Few beds like this are to be found in China now.

After passing the Chinese temple there remains but one more step. That is to complete the tour by visiting the Egyptian dining room at the very top of the studio villa. This unique chamber is glass-roofed and one side is glass-covered, but this glass disappears at the touch of the buttons.

ALONG one side is a huge Egyptian divan, probably 20 feet long and 10 feet wide. On the opposite side is another divan fully as long, but not quite so wide, built in the shape of a Nile barge, with upstanding prow and stern. Guests are frequently invited to the Egyptian room to dine. They enter with amazement at the rich coloring, the trophies from the Nile and the Valley of the Kings. They dispose themselves on the divans and naturally look about with curiosity for the table. There is none to be seen.

"Well, shall we eat now?" politely inquires the host.

The others look a bit blank. Then the host, with a mysterious motion, presses a concealed button and instantly the center of the floor ascends to the ceiling, forming a canopy over a completely equipped table that springs up from the service room below. All the guests have to do is come and get it. When the first course is over the table descends to the lower level again and comes back in a few seconds with the second course. There are no waiters, no bus boys, no attendants of any kind. Even Cleopatra might have envied such service.

There are many other things in this luxurious palace. Indeed, it would require a large volume to catalogue and describe them all. There is even a mummy from the Valley of the Kings, and the objects of art are almost numberless. The whole place, in brief, is a veritable fairyland, a museum, an extravagant dream of artistic luxuriousness. One can easily believe that it required 30 years to work out the dream that Benjamin Marshall had of an "artistic playground."

The strangest thing about it is that, owning such a castle, Marshall does not live in it. He and Mrs. Marshall and their two unmarried children reside in a modest 19-room apartment on Lake Shore Drive.

"It would spoil the whole effect to live here all the time," explains the architect. "It retains its charm only by being visited now and then." But the villa is seldom empty of guests, for the Marshalls give many house parties, and their entertainments are the talk of Chicago. If anybody ever refused an invitation to one of those famous entertainments of the architect's, where oriental splendor reigns and modern wonders hold sway, that fact is not upon the record.

which gave Warner Brothers the rights to these talking pictures.

But while Sam Warner and his three brothers might have had faith enough to move mountains, that faith did not seem capable of handling the mountains of financial trouble which seemed about to crush them. The problem was to stave off disaster until the "talkies" could be given their chance. Other big producers smiled. It seemed to them that one more of the small fry competitors was about to go under. It was as Kenneth MacGowan recorded in Vanity Fair: "When Warner Brothers made their link-up with Vitaphone, other producers looked on it as merely a straw-grasping gesture of a drowning man."

In midsummer, 1926, Vitaphone was introduced to the world. Warner Brothers presented John Barrymore "making love to 10 beautiful leading ladies," as the advertisements neatly phrased it—in "Don Juan." But at this stage of its development the Vitaphone synchronization consisted only of a musical accompaniment of the 107-piece New York Philharmonic Orchestra. Preceding the feature picture a short film was shown, a film which proved to be prophetic, for in it Will Hays arose from his seat at a desk and, in a clear, conversational tone, declared this new invention would revolutionize entertainment standards of the world.

LATER Giovanni Martinelli, leading dramatic tenor of the Metropolitan Opera Company, was seen and heard in the Vesti la Giuba from "Pagliacci."

The Warners, discouraged and almost broke, found the world not overly eager to accept Vitaphone. For another year they struggled on. Vitaphone accompaniments were given "When a Man Loves," with John Barrymore and Dolores Costello; Bruce Bairnsfather's "The Better O'le," with Syd Chaplin as Old Bill; "The Missing Link," with Syd Chaplin; "Old San Francisco," with Dolores Costello, and other pictures. Still, no hysterics were awakened in the public.

When Warner Brothers issued their prospectus of pictures to be produced in 1927, there was listed among them "The Jazz Singer." It was to star George Jessel, who had created the part on the stage and who had made "Private Izzy Murphy," "Sailor Izzy Murphy," "Ginsberg the Great," and one or two nondescript feature pictures.

Jessel, however, never made the picture. There are several stories told to explain why. One is that he wanted to direct it as well as star in it, a privilege Warner Brothers refused. Another is that he was willing to make it as a "silent" picture but when the Warners asked him to sing also, he demanded more money which the Warners couldn't pay. Anyway, he was replaced by Al Jolson, known in the show business as "The World's Greatest Entertainer."

Whether Jolson signed for $125,000, taking three-fifths of it in stock, or whether, as another story has it, he actually helped finance the picture to keep the Warners from going broke, he went through with the job and did a great job of it. In the course of the picture he sang "Dirty Hands, Dirty Face," "Toot, Toot, Tootsie, Goodbye," "Blue Skies," "Kol Nidre," the sacred song-prayer of the Jewish day of Atonement, and "Mother, I Still Have You."

THESE he sang in addition to the song which put the picture across—that peculiarly Al Jolson song, "Mammy." For his six or eight weeks' work in making the picture, he received, on the part-payment-in-stock plan, $50,000 plus stock now valued at $345,823.62. And it may be added that if he wants the cash, the Warners are now more than able to pay it.

After carrying the burdens of the world on their shoulders for several years, they find that the world turned round and, instead of being under it, they are on top.

Through their pioneering leadership, Warner Brothers have now had two years' advantage over all other talking picture producers with the exception of William Fox, who fell into line in about one year. With this leadership, they have produced and reaped rich harvests from several pictures while the others were simply trying to develop some measure of competition. Tremendous fortunes came in with the showing of such vehicles as "The Lights of New York," "Glorious Betsy," "Tenderloin," "The Terror," "The Lion and the Mouse," "State Street Sadie," and others.

So rapidly has this wealth rolled in and so promising is the Warners' future that, backed by the Sachs-Goldman banking interests, they have bought control of First National, which was recognized as one of the "big three" in motion picture circles at the time when Warners, going down for the last time, were grasping at straws in the form of talking movies.

With Al Jolson under contrac for five years, Warner Brothers have now released his second picture, "The Singing Fool." The $11 seats at its premiere sold at a premium far above that. Now in its third month, "The Singing Fool" has an advance sale of $100,000 at $3 a seat at the Winter Garden on Broadway, the place, incidentally, where Jolson made all his personal hits for the Shuberts. Conservative estimates place its New York run at from two to three years. Talkies, it appears, are here to stay.

And the Warner Brothers, to show further that they are not lacking in gratitude or business sense, have announced Al Jolson's third picture. It is "Mammy body?" he demanded, and in his voice swelled an emotion that was different from his despairing rage at the turn of political events.

"He did me the honor," Theresa explained, "to ask my advice. What I suspected turned out to be true. Mrs. Herron is not at all well. He said to me—and nothing, I think, that anybody has ever said has pleased me more—that he knew I would advise him with perfect impartiality, notwithstanding the fact that this was a matter in which my husband was intensely interested. That was true, and I did so advise him. He's now about to make reservations for the Orient to give Mrs. Herron the rest which the doctor told him she needs."

"I'm deserted by everybody," Patrick said bitterly, "wife and friends."

"I shall never desert you, Patrick," Theresa said softly. "Come over and kiss me, honey. Then I'll tell you something nice."

"Theresa," Patrick burst out with a mighty effort, "you're right and I'm wrong. I knew I was wrong six months ago and I've known I was wrong ever since. I won't lie to you ever again—or at least I'll try not to. It may be a difficult thing for me to keep this resolution, because I've got many years of habit to overcome. But if you will help me"—— He looked pleadingly at her.

"Oh, I can help you," Theresa announced serenely. "I can help you. In the future, if I have my doubts, I'll say, 'Patrick, are you speaking the Irish language?' "

"And I'll tell you the truth, as I'm an Irishman," Patrick declared ruefully, "for I'll know damn well that I'm going to lose out if I don't."

For another moment Theresa was silent. Then: "Patrick," she said, "I didn't want you to run for Assessor, anyway. I had a long talk with Senator Henderson the night he was here on the subject of your going to Congress. He agreed with me that you were the legitimate successor of Ferguson and that now that Ferguson is out there is no need for a man of your ability to go through every stage of the political route. He promised me before he left that he would throw his influence all your way next fall."

Patrick stared. "Congress!" he ejaculated. "Lonigan can take his old assessorship. By golly, Theresa, you're some wife, believe me, some wife. To think I never knew I had my political manager in my own family." He paused. "Or is it—oh, woman, woman, don't tell me you've begun to talk the Irish language yourself!"

The Fighting Dowlings and the Battle of the Sedan

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch Sunday Magazine

CHICAGO.

"THE sedan or the baby; take your choice," ordered the Judge.

Mrs. Mabel Dowling considered. With a look of sheer desperation in her very bright blue eyes, she made her decision. Strange as it may seem to those men so indiscreet as to have taught their wives to drive, she chose the baby.

Eight years ago the Dowlings had agreed to get married. That was the last thing they agreed on until last month. Then Mrs. Dowling agreed to take the baby. Dowling agreed to take the sedan. Judge Sabath sighed in prospect of Monday mornings without the regular appearance of the pair in court, after two years of weekly quarrels to settle. So ended eight years of strife over the Dowling automobile, but not before it had provided the liveliest night in the history of the Grand Crossing Police Station.

Frank S. Dowling is 29. He gets $15,000 a year for selling spring water. Mrs. Dowling is 29. She is blonde and very pretty. Dowling is tall, dark and handsome—a circumstance which provided a second theme in the Dowling family debates, for one day Mrs. Dowling found in his pocket a letter addressed to "the naughtiest man in the world" and signed "Your Sweet Waffles."

Now, any man, Mrs. Dowling was willing to admit, had a right to like waffles. Even a husband. Even sweet waffles. But waffles, and sweet waffles at that, which wrote letters—and how about that "naughtiest man in the world?"

Dowling went home to mother. Mrs. Dowling went home to mother. And they went home to their respective mothers in such haste that they forgot the sedan and left it in the garage. One can adequately marvel at the incontinence of that haste, the positive wierdness of that oversight, only when he understands that they had quarreled over that sedan for six years.

Mrs. Dowling had needed the machine for shopping tours. She could hardly call on that snobbish Mrs. So-and-So by street car or bus, could she?—and then have Mrs. So-and-So say, in that fiendishly, smug, sympathetic tone: "I'll drive you home in MY sedan." Wasn't she ever to have a chance to get out of the house? Wasn't he running around all day, seeing new faces and having all kinds of fun selling spring water?

She took great care in explaining this, but Dowling scarcely gave it the weight she felt it deserved. He went so far as to contend that he needed the car to call on his prospects. How, he was obstinate enough to argue, could he sell any spring water if he did not call on anyone who was likely to buy spring water?

Mrs. Mabel Dowling.

Frank S. Dowling.

SO IT was odd that both should hurry home to mother and forget the automobile. Mrs. Dowling looked after the baby, little Robert. She filed her divorce suit. Then she remembered. She took the car from the Dowling garage and parked it in front of her mother's home.

Dowling also remembered. That night. He went to his garage. He found that the sedan, along with Mrs. Dowling, had gone home to mother. He followed. He drove away and took the sedan home to his mother. So that it would stay home with the right mother, he changed the transmission lock.

Mrs. Dowling discovered the sedan was gone. She went to Dowling's mother's. She tried to drive the machine back to her mother's. Her key would not fit. Her brother, Edward Larson, who had driven her there, hooked on with his machine and towed the sedan away just as Dowling and his sister, Alice, ran out with cries of "Stop, thief! Auto thieves! Bandits!" and other favorite Chicago cheers.

The Dowlings caught up at Seventy-fifth street and Stony Island avenue, where a stop light showed red. Policeman Benjamin ordered both automobiles and all four persons to the Grand Crossing Police Station, in a comparatively quiet and conservative residence section, where gangsters and sawed-off shotguns are rare sights and the rat-tat-tat of a machine gun would cause more than a momentary stir.

LIEUTENANT HUZAR was looking over a stack of routine night reports when the Dowling parade drove up.

"Divorced?" he asked.

"No, but we're going to be divorced today," they replied, for their case was docketed for the morning.

"Can't do a thing for you," said the Lieutenant, returning to what he fondly expected to be another quiet night. Dowling spent a mysterious moment in a telephone booth. He climbed into the rear seat of the sedan. Mrs. Dowling held forth in the front seat. The keys remained in the rear seat, in Dowling's pocket.

In a moment Dowling's brother, George, drove up, hauled out a tow rope and tied it to the rear axle of the Dowling sedan. Larson, whose tow rope was still on the front axle, started up. George Dowling leaped into his machine and started up. Engines roared. Gears clashed. Tires spun. The odor of hot rubber and exhaust gas was rather more than perceptible. The sedan did not move.

Mrs. Dowling cheered her brother from the front seat. Dowling cheered his brother from the rear seat. His mother directed from one side. Mrs. Dowling's mother directed from the other side. Nieces and nephews gathered. Hundreds of spectators assembled. Windows went up, disheveled heads appeared, sleepy eyes stared. Spectators took sides and cheered. Both tow ropes broke at once. The sedan did not move.

Alice Dowling ran home and brought coffee and doughnuts for Frank Dowling. Mary Larson found a restaurant and brought coffee and sandwiches for Mrs. Dowling. Policeman kept the crowd back from the firing line. Policemen separated embattled nieces and nephews. More cheers. More roaring of motors and spinning of tires. Five hours of it. Fat chance for an officer to get any rest. Lieutenant Huzar, haggard, stepped from the police station. Even then the sedan did not move.

"YOU can't make all this noise in front of my police station," said the Lieutenant. He was about to be vexed. "Go away or I'll pinch you both."

"You can't arrest me," said the Dowlings.

"Get out of that car and we'll see whether I can or I can't," shouted the policeman, now thoroughly roused. He laid a hand on Mrs. Dowling's arm. Dowling said: "Take me instead." Mrs. Dowling said: "Don't take him—we'll put the old car in storag And the sleepless policeman w back to his comfortable desk.

The Dowlings exchanged se and Frank Dowling drove to a ga-rage. "Don't let either of us ha the car until the Court decides t day," admonished Mrs. Dowlin Dowling winked. At daylight h returned, obtained the car, an headed for Indiana.

The Dowling and Larson cla the Dowling and Larson att neys and everyone possibly c cerned were in Judge Sabat court. Except Dowling himself. The case was about to go by default. Dowling's lawyer received a telephone call.

"I'M 65 miles from Chicago, stuck in the snow," explained his client.

That was the first of many continuances. Judge Sabath got so used to adjusting the Dowlings' automobile trouble every Monday morning that he felt like a mechanic. Once he thought he had settled it with $225 a month temporary alimony and a ruling that Mrs. Dowling should have the car three days a week and Dowling should have it four days. But he omitted to specify which days.

Dowling changed cars, hoping to change his luck. The new car did not help. But the other day Judge Sabath said. "Either Mr Dowling gives up the car and takes the child, or Mrs. Dowling gives up the car and takes the baby. Settle it between you."

Both wanted the baby, but Dowling gave it up and agreed to pay $75 a month to support it. Mrs. Dowling agreed to let him have the sedan and to accept a property settlement in lieu of further alimony. The Dowlin are agreed at last.

Are You Ready When Your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care will not prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of plain Castoria. No sooner done than Baby is soothed; relief is a matter of moments. Yet you have eased the child without using a single doubtful drug; Castoria is a vegetable product. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain you cannot pat away. Then too, it's always ready for the crueler pangs of colic, or constipation, or diarrhea which must be checked without delay. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

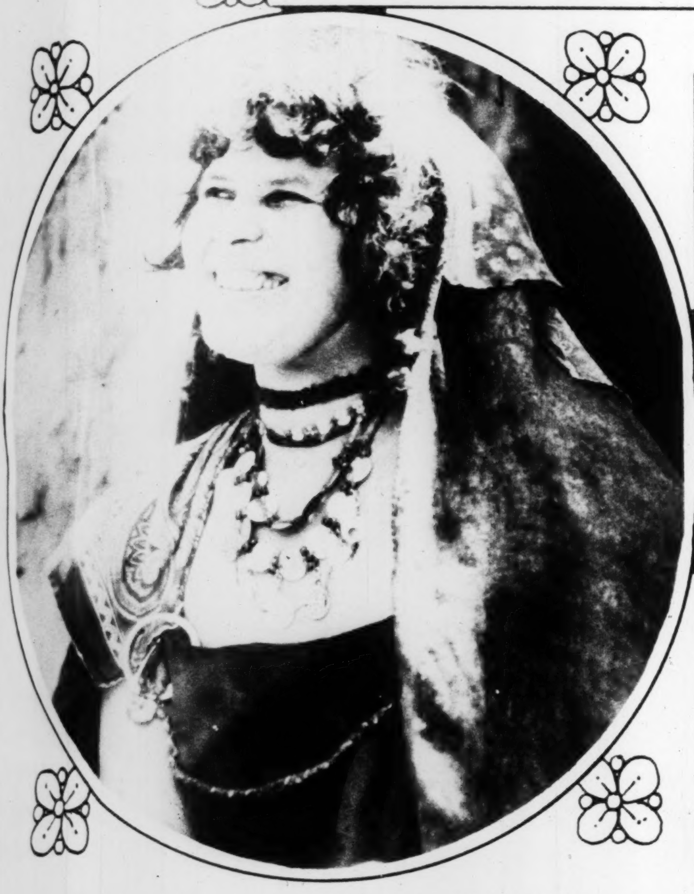
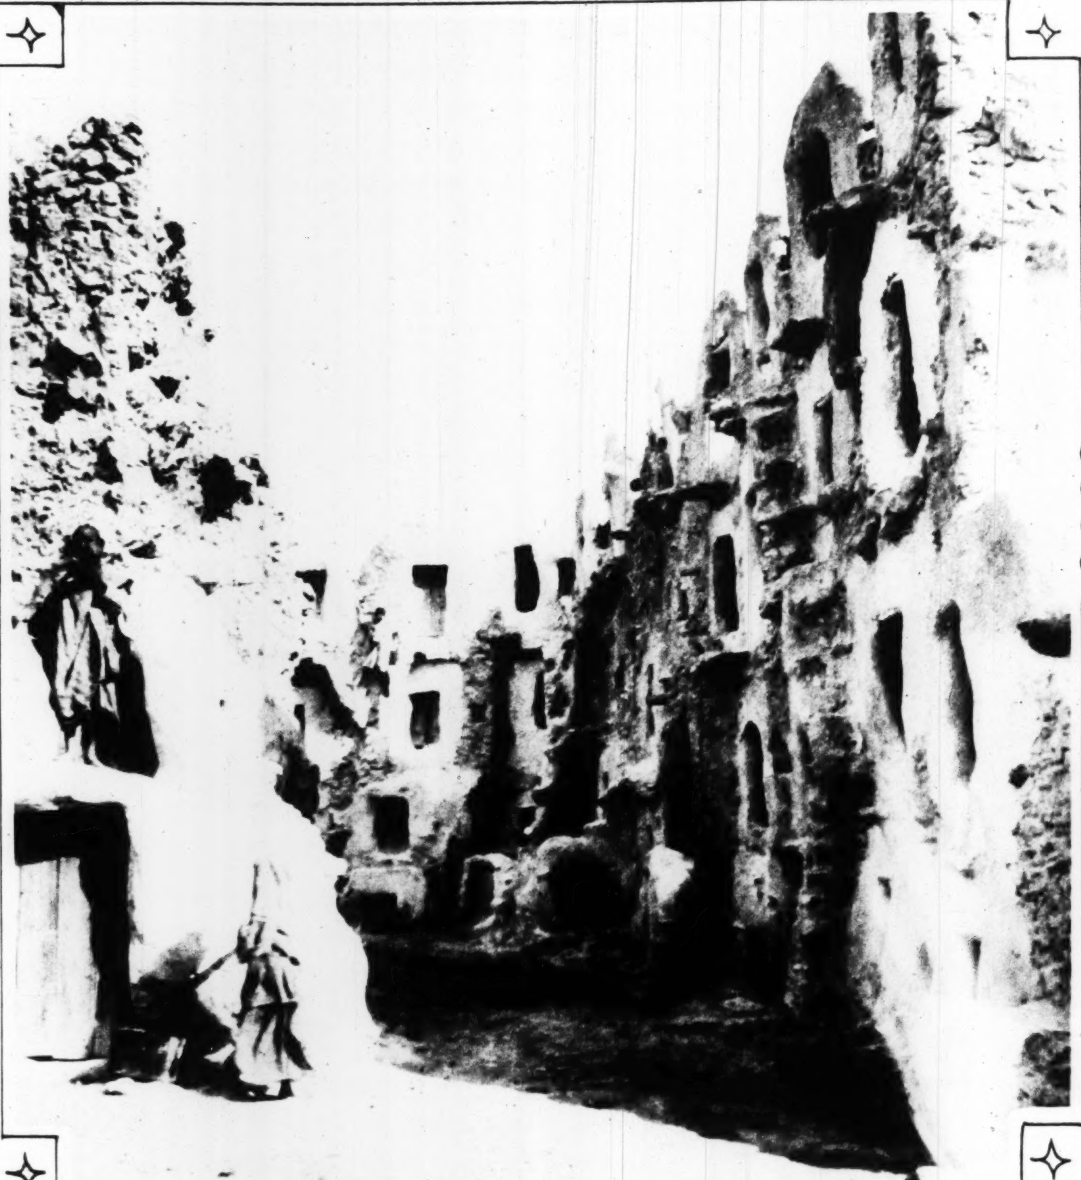
THE WORLD'S STRANGEST CITY





A Trogdolyte woman of Southern Tunisia, in Arabia, where dwell the Berbers in a mode of life unlike that of any other place on the globe. These people were recently visited by an officer of the French Colonial Office and pictures taken of their varied types of dwellings. In one, homes are constructed like pigeon lofts, one above the other, to which the owners must climb like monkeys. Such an apartment house is shown in the photograph on the right. In the other type of community, the homes resemble huge loaves of bread, placed tightly side by side. A view of such a Trogdolyte settlement appears in the photograph below. —International photo.

Cold Canada's Favorite

A FEW years ago in Canada, a famous Italian skin specialist, who was wintering there, noticed that many Canadians suffered from rough, chapped skin. Snow, wind and cold moisture-laden air destroyed the natural, smooth texture of the skin.

Later in his laboratory, Dr. Campana discovered what has since become Canada's favorite—the skin softener, Campana's Italian Balm. Only an expert could have invented it. It combines, for the first time, not alone the usual and commonly-known skin-comforting ingredients, but also certain remarkable, valued, imported essential oils.

Italian Balm is a household word in Canada. Most Canadians prefer it to any other skin protector made.

Approved by Good Housekeeping. Two sizes—a generous bottle for 35c; an extra-economy size at 60c. At drug and department stores. Free travel-size sample sent on request to anyone writing the Campana Corporation, 26 Lincoln Way, Batavia, Ill.

How Science Fights Fat

Not by starving

Some 25 years ago, scientists found a great cause of excess fat. It lies in an under-active gland. By thousands of tests on fat animals they found that treating this cause led to loss of weight and gain in health and vigor. That discovery changed the methods of dealing with excess fat.

That is the basic factor in Marmola prescription tablets. People have used them for over 20 years—millions of boxes of them. They did not starve or overwork. They simply took four tablets daily until weight came down to normal.

Users told the others the results. The use of Marmola spread. Now you see the results in every circle. Excess fat is disappearing. Slender figures are the rule. New youth and beauty, new vitality, has come to countless people in this modern way.

Consider these facts. Then, if you are seeking like results, get them in this scientific way. Every box of Marmola contains the formula, also the reasons for results. As fat departs and new vitality returns you will know exactly why. Try the method which for 20 years has brought such delightful results to so many. Do it now. You owe that to yourself.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Including some persons of genius and wealth . . . .

. . . thousands never have clean teeth because their dentifrices try to "cure" and fail to clean

YOU use a dentifrice on your toothbrush to clean your teeth more thoroughly and pleasantly than you can with the brush alone. So, clearly, the most important action of a dentifrice is to clean. Colgate's is made to give you the greatest possible safe cleansing power. If we had tried to make it a medicine or treatment, it could not be as good a cleanser.

Colgate's is made as dentists recommend

"What kind of dentifrice would you like your patients to use?"—we asked leading dentists. They answered, "Give us a simple, non-medicated dentifrice that really cleans. Give us as much cleansing power as possible without harm to the teeth. Nothing protects and beautifies teeth like cleaning." So we made Colgate's a cleanser.

Richard, Robert and REM

"REM is the only cough medicine I have used for three or four years," says Mrs. Yinger. "I have two boys, Richard and Robert, and every winter they have coughs and colds like most children. I always give them REM at the first sign of a cough, and it always checks it right away. I saw REM advertised in the papers about three years ago when my mother had a very bad cough and I got my first bottle for her at J. Sonnenberg's Pharmacy, 10th & Penn Sts. Now we always keep a bottle on hand, and have very little trouble with coughs."

Children seldom have to be coaxed to take REM. How mothers will appreciate that! Perfectly harmless yet effective. It soothes the irritation and quickly relieves the cough. REM is different.

Insist on REM! Remember, its effectiveness is largely due to a special ingredient, not in ordinary cough syrups.

Beautiful DAMASK
now covers the NEW BEAUTYRESTS

MRS. MORGAN BELMONT is a popular member of New York's exclusive younger set and a familiar figure at the polo grounds. She has chosen for her New York apartment Simmons Bed, Model 1569, and the new Beautyrest Mattress with Simmons Ace Spring.

The new damask in a choice of six clear lovely colors. All over pattern in light blue, lilac, rose. Medallion pattern in sea-foam green, beige, Venetian blue.

SIMMONS BEAUTYREST MATTRESS—Hundreds of resilient coil springs, buried under thick layers of soft, luxurious upholstering. Covered with beautiful new damask, an exclusive Simmons innovation. $39.50

SIMMONS ACE SPRING—The perfected open coil spring. Light weight. Coils close together. Maximum comfort and wear assured. Smartly tailored slip-cover at slight extra cost. $19.75

NOW all the new Simmons Beautyrests are covered with real damask! Gorgeous French patterns! Colorful shades that harmonize with and accent the decorative scheme of the bedroom.

Truly as noteworthy a contribution to appearance as the inner construction of the mattress is to comfort.

Made in the famous old jacquard weave, these artistic new coverings are rich with the satin beauty traditional to damask. They are staunch and wearable as the old-fashioned nondescript ticking. Top and bottom of the new Beautyrest Mattress are fashioned in one piece, eliminating the unsightly, uncomfortable seams and the possibility of tearing apart.

You have a choice of two lovely patterns—and six colors. The all-over design of delicate wreaths in light blue, lilac and rose. The medallion pattern in sea-foam green, beige and Venetian blue.

Mrs. Morgan Belmont, whose charming duplex apartment in New York City is furnished with a fine sense of beauty, harmony and comfort, says of this new Beautyrest, "The only mattress covering I have seen that is as fine and handsome as the fabrics one would select for other furnishings."

The best furniture and department stores now have the Beautyrest in the lovely new damask. You may have this handsome and luxurious sleeping equipment at no advance in price over the old-fashioned coverings.

In furniture and department stores, Simmons Beautyrest Mattress $39.50. Simmons Ace Spring $19.75. Simmons Beds $10 to $60; No. 1569 $49.75. Look for the name "Simmons." The Simmons Company, New York, Chicago, Atlanta, San Francisco.

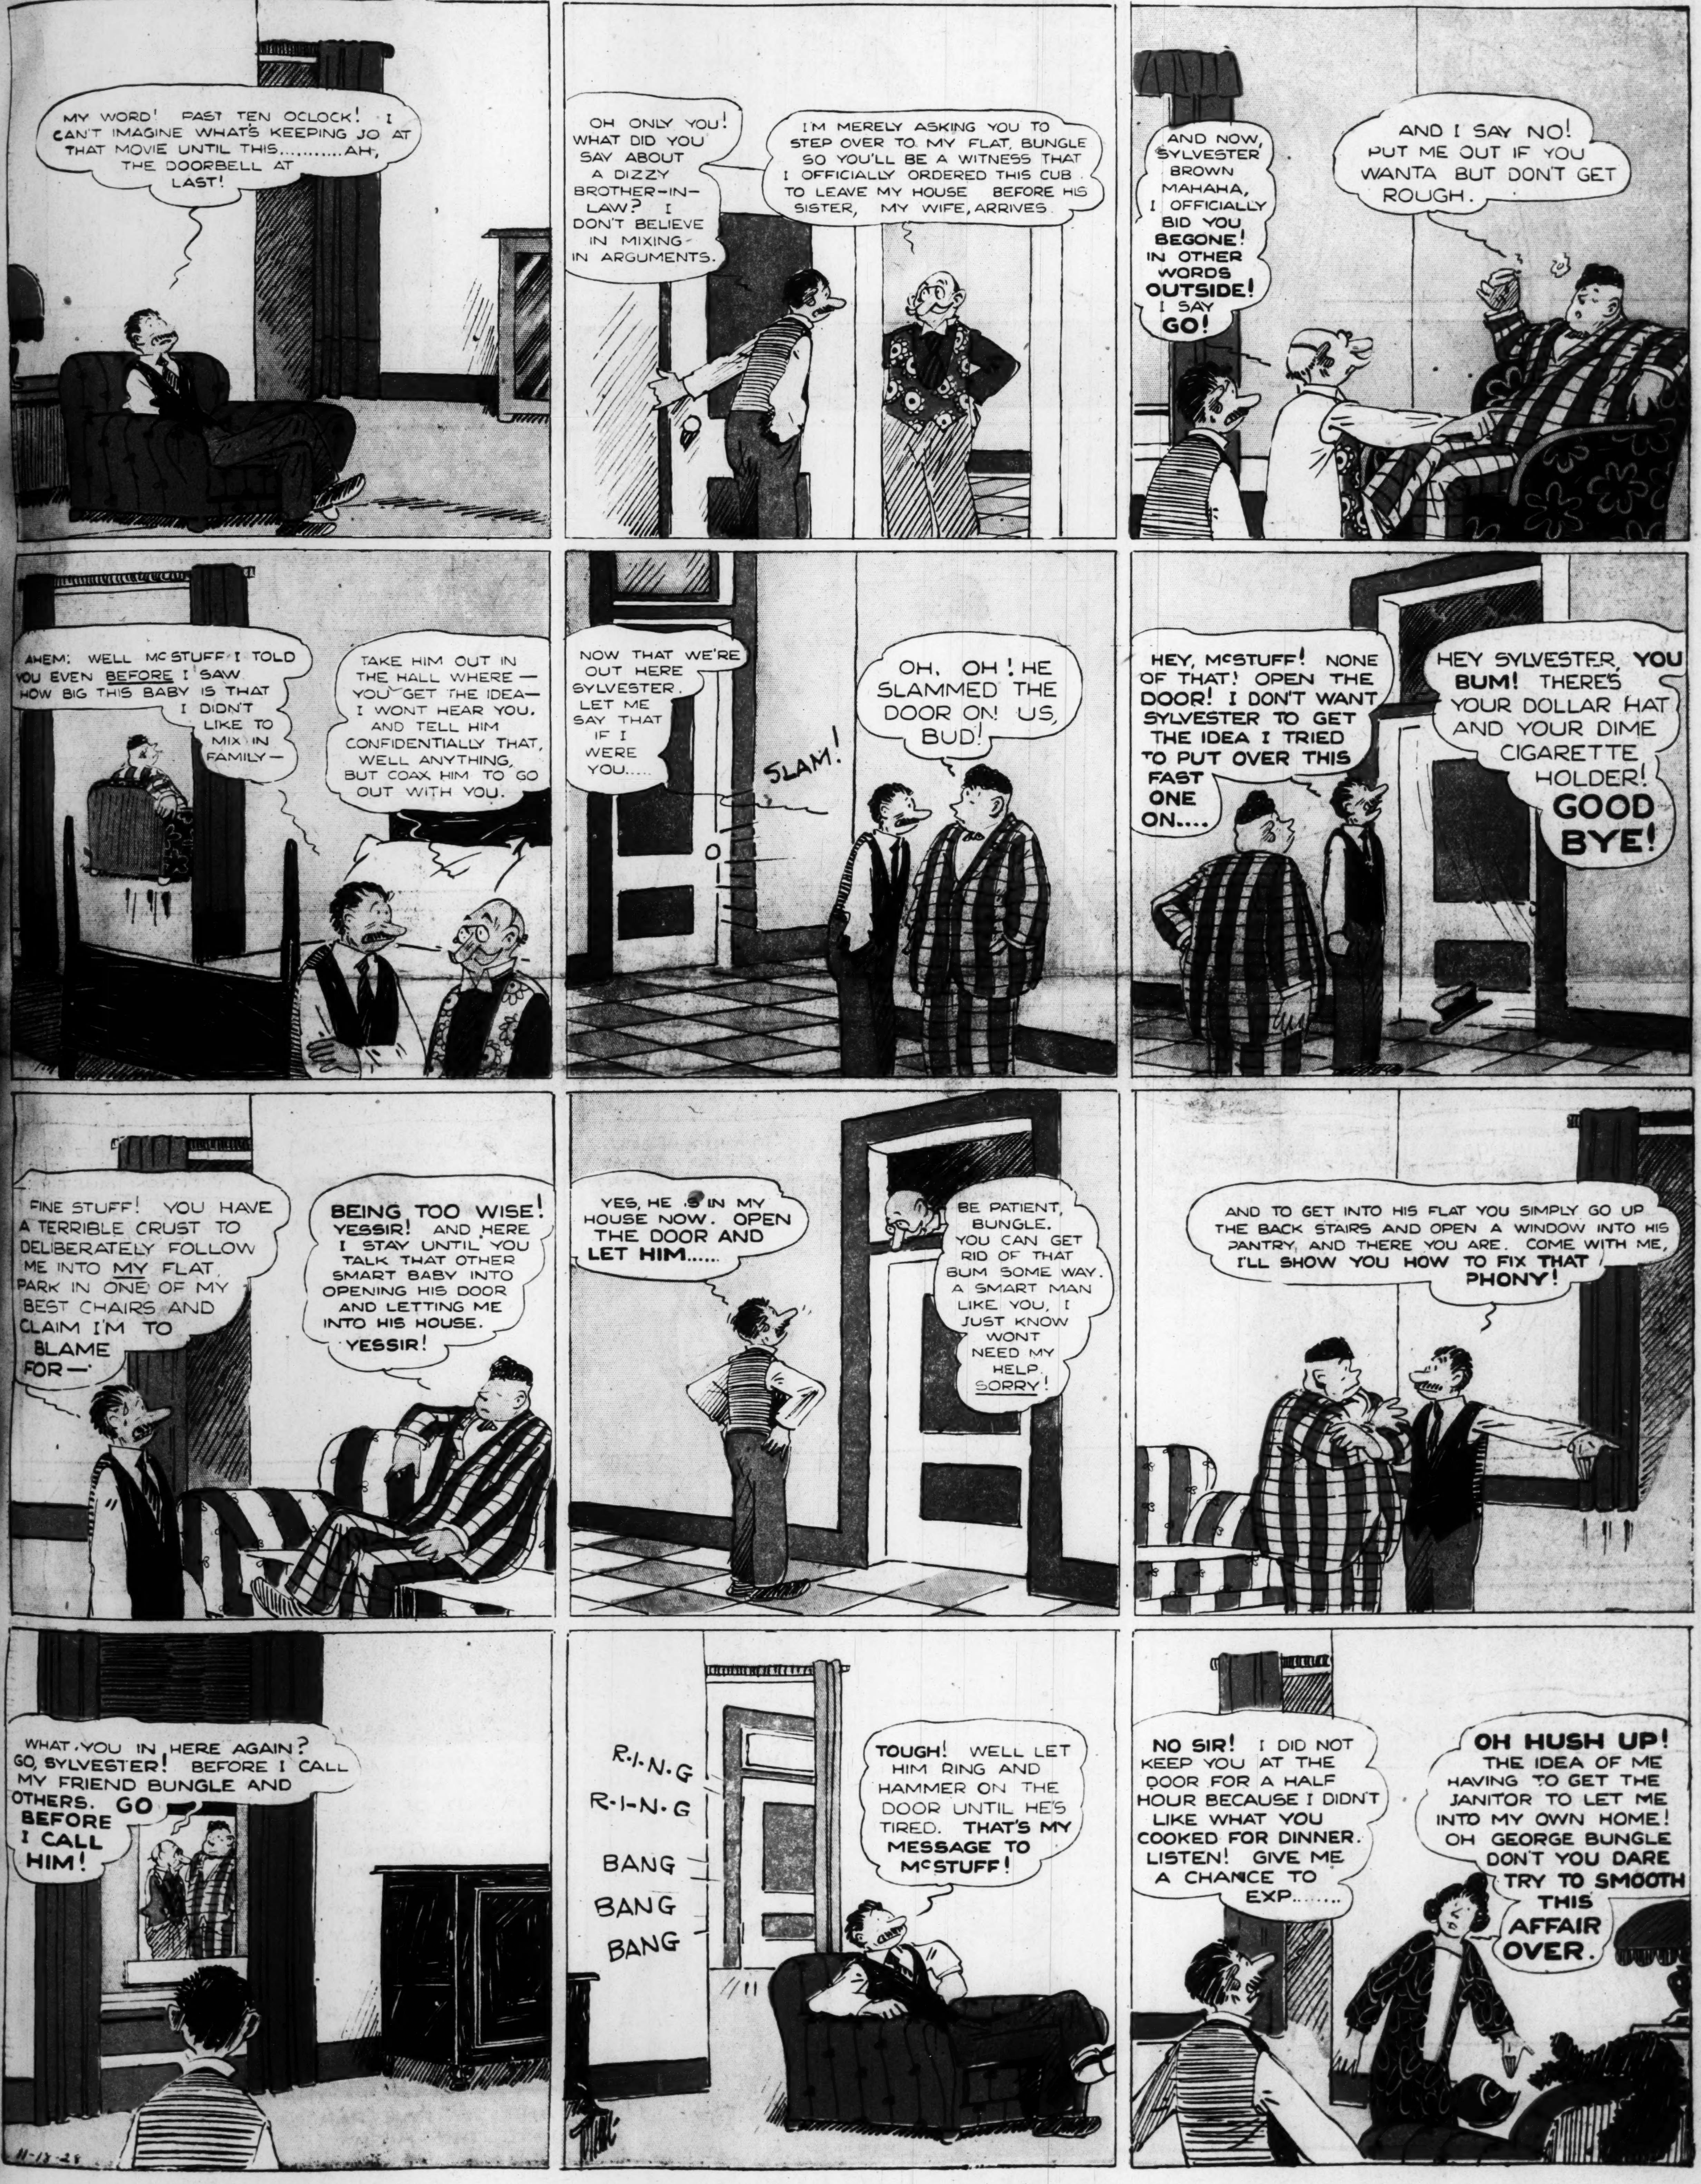
This comic appears every day in one of the TWO comic pages of the daily Post-Dispatch

By H. J. TUTHILL



MY WORD! PAST TEN OCLOCK! I CAN'T IMAGINE WHAT'S KEEPING JO AT THAT MOVIE UNTIL THIS..........AH, THE DOORBELL AT LAST!
OH ONLY YOU! WHAT DID YOU SAY ABOUT A DIZZY BROTHER-IN-LAW? I DON'T BELIEVE IN MIXING-IN ARGUMENTS.
I'M MERELY ASKING YOU TO STEP OVER TO MY FLAT, BUNGLE SO YOU'LL BE A WITNESS THAT I OFFICIALLY ORDERED THIS CUB TO LEAVE MY HOUSE BEFORE HIS SISTER, MY WIFE, ARRIVES.
AND NOW, SYLVESTER BROWN MAHAHA, I OFFICIALLY BID YOU BEGONE! IN OTHER WORDS OUTSIDE! I SAY GO!
AND I SAY NO! PUT ME OUT IF YOU WANTA BUT DON'T GET ROUGH.
AHEM: WELL McSTUFF I TOLD YOU EVEN BEFORE I SAW HOW BIG THIS BABY IS THAT I DIDN'T LIKE TO MIX IN FAMILY—
TAKE HIM OUT IN THE HALL WHERE—YOU GET THE IDEA—I WONT HEAR YOU. AND TELL HIM CONFIDENTIALLY THAT, WELL ANYTHING, BUT COAX HIM TO GO OUT WITH YOU.
NOW THAT WE'RE OUT HERE SYLVESTER. LET ME SAY THAT IF I WERE YOU....
SLAM!
OH, OH! HE SLAMMED THE DOOR ON! US, BUD!
HEY, McSTUFF! NONE OF THAT! OPEN THE DOOR! I DON'T WANT SYLVESTER TO GET THE IDEA I TRIED TO PUT OVER THIS FAST ONE ON....
HEY SYLVESTER, YOU BUM! THERE'S YOUR DOLLAR HAT AND YOUR DIME CIGARETTE HOLDER! GOOD BYE!
FINE STUFF! YOU HAVE A TERRIBLE CRUST TO DELIBERATELY FOLLOW ME INTO MY FLAT, PARK IN ONE OF MY BEST CHAIRS AND CLAIM I'M TO BLAME FOR—
BEING TOO WISE! YESSIR! AND HERE I STAY UNTIL YOU TALK THAT OTHER SMART BABY INTO OPENING HIS DOOR AND LETTING ME INTO HIS HOUSE. YESSIR!
YES, HE IS IN MY HOUSE NOW. OPEN THE DOOR AND LET HIM......
BE PATIENT, BUNGLE. YOU CAN GET RID OF THAT BUM SOME WAY. A SMART MAN LIKE YOU, I JUST KNOW WONT NEED MY HELP. SORRY!
AND TO GET INTO HIS FLAT YOU SIMPLY GO UP THE BACK STAIRS AND OPEN A WINDOW INTO HIS PANTRY, AND THERE YOU ARE. COME WITH ME, I'LL SHOW YOU HOW TO FIX THAT PHONY!
WHAT, YOU IN HERE AGAIN? GO, SYLVESTER! BEFORE I CALL MY FRIEND BUNGLE AND OTHERS. GO BEFORE I CALL HIM!
R-I-N-G
R-I-N-G
BANG
BANG
BANG
TOUGH! WELL LET HIM RING AND HAMMER ON THE DOOR UNTIL HE'S TIRED. THAT'S MY MESSAGE TO McSTUFF!
NO SIR! I DID NOT KEEP YOU AT THE DOOR FOR A HALF HOUR BECAUSE I DIDN'T LIKE WHAT YOU COOKED FOR DINNER. LISTEN! GIVE ME A CHANCE TO EXP.......
OH HUSH UP! THE IDEA OF ME HAVING TO GET THE JANITOR TO LET ME INTO MY OWN HOME! OH GEORGE BUNGLE DON'T YOU DARE TRY TO SMOOTH THIS AFFAIR OVER.

GRACE AND I HAVE THE DANDIEST SCHEME!
WHAT 'TIS?
WELL SIR - WE'RE GOING TO OPEN UP A GIFT SHOP - AT LEAST WE WANT TO WHERE'LL YOU RAISE THE MONEY?
WHAT?
I SAY WHERE ARE YOU GOING TO GET THE DOUGH IT DOES TAKE MONEY YOU KNOW
WELL - THIS IS WHAT WE THOUGHT - GRACE SAID SHE WAS SURE BOB WOULD PUT UP HALF AND I THOUGHT - - UH - H YOU'D PUT UP HALF - - IT WOULDN'T TAKE SO MUCH - WOULD IT?
YEAH?
WE COULD PAY IT OFF IN A YEAR - - - OR SO
WELL WELL HOW SIMPLE - FOLLOW ME
- OR WE COULD BORROW IT FROM THE BANK
MY BANK BALANCE AT THE PRESENT TIME IS JUST EXACTLY $91.26
AND THEN CHRISTMAS IS COMING AND WE COULD SELL LOTS OF CUTE THINGS
THEN THERE'S THE OVER-HEAD, RENT - LIGHT, - TELEPHONE OR WE THOUGHT MAYBE A TEA ROOM ——
ALSO - IF YOU BORROW THE MONEY SAY $5000.00 THE INTEREST WOULD AMOUNT TO SAY $300.00 A YEAR
THE BEAUTY OF A TEA ROOM IS - EVERYBODY HAS TO EAT - YOU CAN'T GET AWAY FROM IT
TEA ROOMS ARE AS THICK AS FLIES - - THE COMPETITION MUST BE FIERCE
WE COULD TRY IT IN A SMALL WAY - TO START
YOU'D HAVE TO GO IN FOR A BIG INITIAL COST -
IT'S ALMOST IMPOSSIBLE TO GET GOOD HELP - A GOOD COOK YOU'D HAVE TO HAVE - THEN A DISH WASHER, WAITRESSES - AND THEN THERE'S THE LOCATION YOU KNOW - IS THERE ANYTHING ELSE YOU CAN THINK OF?
GO AHEAD - GO AHEAD AND GET IT OUT OF YOUR SYSTEM - DON'T LET ANYTHING I SAY STOP YOU AND GRACE - - YOU GET THIS YEN REGULARLY. EVERY YEAR - OF COURSE EXPERIENCE ISN'T NECESSARY OH NO - - WELL GO AHEAD - GO - AHEAD
YOU ARE SUCH A HELP - - EVERY - TIME I EXPRESS A DESIRE TO BE A LITTLE HELP YOU HAVE TO COME ACROSS WITH BUCKETS OF COLD ICE - SOMEBODY ELSE MAKES GOOD AND I DON'T SEE WHY WE CAN'T - YOU - U - "CREPE - HANGER AND SO FAR, FAR INTO THE NIGHT.

WELL, SON. WELL GET RABBIT AND QUAIL_A RABBIT POT PIE ISNT SO HARD TO TAKE AND QUAIL BROILED, SITTING ON TOAST ISN'T BAD EITHER
WHY CANT WE GET A DEER, DADDY?
YOU'VE GOT TO HAVE A RIFLE TO GET A DEER_I ONLY HAVE MY SHOT GUN WITH ME_IT SCATTERS SHOT.
WHAT'S SCATTERED SHOT, DADDY?
WHY IT SPREADS WHEN IT LEAVES THE SHELL AND TAKES IN A LARGER AREA WHICH MAKES IT EASIER TO SHOOT SMALL GAME
OH, DADDY, LOOK_QUICK! THERE'S A RABBIT_LOOK QUICK!!
I'LL GET THEM, SON.
YOU SHOULDNT HOLLER SO LOUD AND SCARE THEM_I DIDNT HAVE TIME TO TAKE AIM!
I DIDNT SCARE THEM, DADDY, YOU SHOT MUCH TOO HIGH_MAYBE YOU THOUGHT YOU WERE SHOOTING AT BIRDS.
GEE, HOW COULD YOU MISS ALL THEM, DADDY?_DON'T SEEM LIKE YOU COULD SHOOT BETWEEN THEM.
I GUESS YOUR SHOTS DON'T SCATTER ENOUGH_MAYBE YOU GOT GLUE ON THEM OR SOMETHING TO MAKE THEM STICK TOGETHER
GEE, DADDY, YOU'RE GETTING BETTER_YOU'RE MISSING THEM CLOSER EVERY TIME.
I THINK THERE MUST BE SOMETHING THE MATTER WITH THESE SHELLS_I BET THAT FELLOW SOLD ME SOME BAD ONES
Sol Hess
I'M DISGUSTED AND TIRED-LET'S SIT DOWN HERE AND REST_I'M JUST WASTING TIME WITH THESE SHELLS_THEY'RE NO GOOD!
POW
LOOKOUT, DADDY!! YOU'LL GET HURT
DADDY, YOU OUGHT TO DO ALL YOUR SHOOTING WITHOUT LOOKING IS THAT SO?_I SAW THE OLD WILD TURK SITTING UP IN THAT TREE AND I PRETENDED NOT TO SEE HIM_THAT'S WHY I SAT DOWN THERE_WHEN I GOT UNDER HIM I LET GO_THAT'S AN OLD TRICK OF MINE.

I'VE SWEPT UP VERY CAREFULLY - WHAT NEXT? I WAS HIRED ORIGINALLY AS A REPORTER YOU KNOW
ALL RIGHT, YOU CAN CLEAN OUT ALL THE BASKETS AND WASTE PAPER
CITY EDITOR
I'VE GOT THE WHOLE OFFICE AS ANTISEPTIC AS AN OPERATING ROOM - CAN I HAVE AN ASSIGNMENT MORE ALONG REPORTORIAL LINES ?
SURE - CLEAN OUT THE SINKS
CITY EDITOR
BUT, CHIEF, COULDN'T I DO SOMETHING ON THE PAPER? SOMETHING THAT WOULD SHOW UP MY PERSONALITY MORE?
ALL RIGHT - GO OUT AND COUNT THE NUMBER OF AUTOS THAT PASS GRAND AND OLIVE IN FOUR HOURS - I NEED THE FIGURES FOR AN ARTICLE ON TRAFFIC REGULATION
CITY ED
A BURGLAR HAS IT MUCH EASIER BREAKING INTO A BANK THAN A YOUNG FELLOW HAS BREAKING INTO THE NEWSPAPER GAME 18 - 19 - 20 - 21
WHY, ROD!
I'M ON MY WAY TO THE VAN-DYNE WEDDING - EVERYBODY OF ANY CONSEQUENCE WILL BE THERE
GOSH, I'D LIKE TO GET PICTURES AND THE STORY OF IT FOR MY PAPER - - IT WOULD BE A SCOOP, BUT I HAVE TO STAY HERE AND COUNT AUTOS
YOU GO TO THE WEDDING, ROD - - I'LL STAY HERE AND COUNT THE CARS FOR YOU - - YOUR FUTURE MEANS MORE TO ME THAN JUST WATCHING ANOTHER WEDDING
GEE, DORA, BUT YOU'RE SWEET TO ME - - - THE CHIEF WILL HAVE MORE RESPECT FOR ME WHEN HE SEES WHAT A NEWS-GETTER I AM
THE CHIEF WILL PROBABLY MAKE ME THE STAR REPORTER FOR THIS FLASHLIGHT POWDER
POOF
I ADMIT I MAY HAVE USED TOO MUCH POWDER, BUT MY EXCUSE IS THAT I'M NEW AT THE JOB
MY, GOSH, WHERE'S DORA? SHE PROMISED TO KEEP TRACK OF THE AUTOS UNTIL I GOT BACK HERE
SOME FELLOW SHE KNEW CAME ALONG IN A CAR AND THEY DROVE AWAY TOGETHER
IT WAS MEAN OF ME - I PROMISED ROD I'D DO IT FOR HIM - BUT, GEE, GEORGIE, YOU'RE SO MASTERFUL AND DOMINATING I JUST COULDN'T REFUSE YOUR INVITATION
DONT WORRY ABOUT THAT - - - THE CHIEF DOESN'T WANT THOSE STATISTICS - - HE JUST TOLD ROD TO DO THAT TO GET RID OF HIM - HE'S A NUISANCE AROUND THE OFFICE - - LET'S DANCE
